THE BETA OF GEORGIA CHAPTER OF PHI BETA KAPPA

BY CLEO HEARON

The opening of Agnes Scott was made especially notable this year by the announcement that a chapter of Phi Beta Kappa had been granted to the college by the council of the United Chapters assembled in New York. The announcement was received with enthusiasm as a formal recognition of the high academic standards of Agnes Scott by the honor society of scholars in America.

A chapter of Phi Beta Kappa is coveted by colleges and universities because of the honorable history of the society and the high place it holds in the academic world today.

The society, at first an undergraduate secret society differing little from other early college societies, was organized at William and Mary College, December 5, 1776. In its origin it is contemporary with our independence and many of its early members played an active part in the Revolution. But the ideals of friendship and scholarship formulated by the little band of students in a small college in the youth of the country were worthy of perpetuation not only in William and Mary, but in other higher institutions of learning throughout America. In 1778 a charter was granted for a chapter at Harvard and in 1780 for one at Yale. At the end of the first hundred years there were twenty-five chapters; secrecy had been abolished, and the fraternity had become the national academic honor society. In 1881 the chapters were formed into a national organization known as the United Chapters of Phi Beta Kappa. Women were first admitted in 1875, in a co-educational institution, the University of Vermont; and Vassar in 1898, was the first woman's college, not a co-educational college, to which a chapter was granted. In 1924 there were ninety-nine chapters, and eight charters were granted for new chapters in September, 1925.

From the time that Agnes Scott was recognized as a college, the Phi Beta Kappa members of the faculty, under the leadership of Professor Armistead, were interested in obtaining a chapter of the honor society for the college, but conforming to the well established policy of Agnes Scott they resolved not to petition for a charter until they were fully assured that the college measured up to every requirement for recognition. In the meantime, they organized Gamma Tau Alpha on the principles of Phi Beta Kappa to honor the members of the senior class who attained the standards of the national society.

Just as the Phi Beta Kappa group in the faculty were ready to petition the United Chapters for a charter for a chapter at Agnes Scott, the method of granting charters was changed, and they were informed that henceforth a college must wait for an invitation to petition for a charter. Under the regulations that went into effect in 1922, two-thirds of the chapters of the South Atlantic section in the fall of 1924 recommended Agnes Scott to the Senate as worthy of a chapter, and the Phi Beta Kappa members of the faculty were invited by Dr. Voorhees, Secretary of the United Chapters, to apply for a charter.

After personal investigation by Dr. Voorhees, and the president, Dr. Thwing, and the careful examination of reports and questionnaires by the Senate, the conferring of a charter was recommended by that body, and granted September 9th, by the Council of delegates from the chapters assembled in New York.

The proceedings in the session of the National Council in which the charter was granted are gratifying to every graduate of the college. When Agnes Scott was taken up for consideration, delegates from five chapters rose for recognition. The chair recognized only two. Washington and Lee University urged the granting of a charter to Agnes Scott not only in recognition of the high standards of the college but also in recognition of the services that it had rendered to the cause of academic standards in its section. Miss Wooley, of Mount Holyoke, was permitted to say a word. She declared that three years ago she had visited Agnes Scott and was convinced then that the college was worthy of a chapter. No delegate wishing to speak in the negative, the vote was taken and Agnes Scott was granted a charter by the highest vote received by any of the colleges before the council for consideration.

On September 24, the Phi Beta Kappa members of the faculty were formally notified by Dr. Voorhees that a charter had been granted on their petition and requested to arrange for the installation of the Beta of Georgia chapter in Agnes Scott College.

The charter members of the Beta of Georgia chapter are as follows:
Professor Lillian S. Smith, Ph.D. Syracuse, 1904.

Professor Samuel Guerry Stukes, A.B., A.M., B.D. Davidson, 1923.

Professor Cleo Hearon, Ph.D., Chicago, 1914.

Professor Robert B. Holt, B.A., M.S. Wisconsin, 1901.

Miss Coma Cole, A.M. Duke, 1922.

In a meeting of the charter members, September 30, Dr. McCain was elected a Foundation member of the chapter and will take part in the work of organization. The members counted themselves fortunate in being able under the rules of the society to elect Dr. McCain to membership before the installation of the chapter, for much of the success of the movement for a charter for Agnes Scott is due to him. From the beginning he was keenly interested, and he helped in the forming of plans and was untiring in answering questionnaires and preparing statements concerning the academic standards and financial affairs of the college.

The installation of the chapter will probably take place in February. Both President Thwing and Dr. Voorhees have accepted invitations to be present. The alumnae members will be chosen in the meantime and all new members will be presented for initiation at the installation.

A LOYAL RESPONSE

If you were one of the two hundred odd Agnes Scott alumnae who gathered at East Lake Country Club two years ago in May for the annual luncheon of the General Association, you cannot have forgotten the occasion, for it was unique in the long succession of alumnae luncheons. Our leader of thirty years service was gone, and we paused to give expression to our sorrow. Our new leader was with us, and we paused again to pledge him the loyal support of the Agnes Scott Alumnae as he took up the work. You remember as well as I the thrill of that pledge as Essie Roberts DePre, with charming naivete and sincerity, in true ex-service style pledged our loyalty "to a man." I believe that the alumnae have been taking up that pledge during these two years of President McCain's leadership, and I am writing this today because it seems to me we have a fresh evidence of loyalty which is certain to interest all readers of the Quarterly.

Just about a year ago, Miss McKinney's great desire to increase the effectiveness and enrich the appeal of the English collection in our college library inspired in her resourceful brain the bright idea of sending out a personal appeal to a number of our privileged alumnae who were in a position to answer the call. Of the number of personal letters written by Miss McKinney, only two failed to elicit a response. All the replies were full of enthusiasm and expressions of interest; a very large per cent contained contributions to the book fund. In the space of a few months the fund has reached $650.00. The names of these loyal alumnae will be of general interest and it is only their due that public mention be made of their generosity. A cursory glance at the list will assure us that their interest in Agnes Scott has stood the test of time and distance. The contributors are:

Lena (Orr) McCarthy, ex '97, Chicago.
Margaret (Cannon) Howell, ex '98, Atlanta.
Jean (Ramspeck) Harper, '00, Philadelphia.
Susan (Young) Eagan, ex '99, Atlanta.
Lucy (Candler) Heinz, ex '03, Atlanta.
Ada (Hooper) Keith, ex '95, Selma, Ala.
Olive (Carothers) Burke, ex '06, Lakeland, Fla.
Laura (Caldwell) Edmonds, '02, Portland, Oregon.
Bell (Jones) Horton, ex '95, Tuscaloosa, Ala.
Annie Graham King, '06, Selma, Ala.
Mabel McKowen, '05, Lindsay, La.

To these contributions another was added by the Executive Committee of the General Association, the committee expressing in this form its appreciation of Miss McKinney's unselfish services in organizing last year for the Association three branches in widely separate cities.

The largest single contribution to the fund came from an old time friend of Miss McKinney's—a friend who is not an alumna, but who has earned the lasting gratitude of us all. This gift came from Mr. Walter Robertson of Norfolk, Va., who started the fund with a two hundred dollar check, and such an inspiring letter that faintheartedness would have been cowardice. And best of all, he assured us that his interest will continue to follow our efforts. We take this occasion of making acknowledgment to Mr. Robertson (believing that he will be interested enough to read our Quarterly), and of presenting him to the Agnes Scott Alumnae as a friend indeed.

Miss McKinney has shared with the other members of the English faculty the joy of selecting the books and with their thoughtful co-operation several well-considered book-lists have been made. Already one hundred and twenty volumes have been purchased, among them the nineteen volumes of Variorum Shakespere, many good books on Shakespere, on 19th century English poetry, on American Literature, a number of notable biographies, and some books of general interest, such as a book on costumes.

One half of the money in hand has already been spent and another list is now ready to be sent to the publishers. These books are to be cataloged at once and placed on the shelves where they will be accessible to the entire college community.

We believe that Miss McKinney has "started something"; that this is the auspicious beginning of larger things; that she has pointed out to the alumnae who are eager to bring intelligent aid, a definite way to meet one of the needs (perhaps a more intangible need that may not appeal to the public at large) of our rapidly growing college.

RIVER THOUGHT

ELIZABETH CHEATHAM, '25

I came into this lovely place to sing,
 All for my own delight, the beaten gold
 Of this wide river, and the manifold
 Bright crimson beauty that the maples fling.
 Whispers of waving grasses I would bring
 For my small song, and sunlight, and the bold
 Rush of the river's sound. I would have sold
 High heaven's beauty and that bird's blue wing!

Then, then, I heard the deep voice of the river
 Rising up in tones most vast and clear
 In song of untold beauty, thrilling high.
 Bowed I inarticulate, aquiver
 With glad humility that I might hear,
 Amazed that I had thought of singing—I!

PORGY

DUBOSE HEYWARD

"Porgy, Maria, and Bess,
Robbins, and Peter, and Crown;
Life was a three-stringed harp
Brought from the woods to town.

Marvelous tunes you rang
From Passion, and death, and birth.
You who have laughed and wept,
On the warm, brown lap of the earth.

Now in your untried hands
An instrument, terrible, new,
Is thrust by a master who frowns
Demanding strange songs of you.

God of the white and black,
Grant us great hearts on the way
That we may understand
Until you have learned to play."

With this poem of dedication begins "Porgy", a negro novel by DuBose Heyward. It is an adventure into new territory—new for the poet-author, as this is his first novel, new for the readers, as he has here captured the little-known lives and the strange mercurial moods of an uncivilized race in the heart of a civilized community. It could have been written only by a southerner, one who has lived among negroes, who has known them—their shiftlessness, their deep, religious emotions, their sufferings, and their loyalties—and knowing, has understood and loved them.

Porgy, a lame beggar about whom the story centers, was something of a dreamer. He was happy to move along in his goatcart on the busy streets where many bright coins would fall, jingling, into his cup, but he found a deeper contentment when he could settle himself and his goat on a quiet doorstep where he could sit for hours, uninterrupted, lost in wistful meditation. Life, for him, was tense only in times of religious emotion when he could sway his body back and forth, singing out "O my Jedus" and "Yes, my Lord" in answer to prayers; or in the great moments of crap games when he crooned fond medleys to his beloved dice, witching them, as the other negroes complained, with soft words like, "O, little stars, roll me some light! Roll me a sun an' moon." From one of these games sprang the tragedy which wound its meshes around the life of Porgy, bringing love and suffering, success and loneliness.

Laughter and life, tears and death, move human hearts whether the participants in the enacting drama are black or white of skin. The fact that they are black in this story of "Porgy" and that they are drawn with exquisiteness of detail and understanding makes this novel one of the most significant of negro novels since Rene Maran's "Batouala." It has all the wildness of the moods of the savages in "Batouala," with the added eccentricities of a religion which has not overcome superstition and a civilization that has not civilized. The great parade of "The Sons and Daughters of Repent Ye Saith the Lord" is in its clashing discords of music and its garish colors, not unlike the wild celebrations of Batouala and his people in African woods. After reading it, one has much the same impression of the negro as after reading Vachel Lindsay's "Congo"—in both there is the wild, exotic rhythm, superstitions, and beliefs.

GOD'S STEPCHILDREN

SARAH GERTRUDE MILLIN. BONI AND LIVERIGHT

Another novel dealing with people of black skin is "God's Stepchildren." In contrast to the setting of "Porgy", we have here a milieu in the south of Africa. It is more of a problem novel than "Porgy", dealing with the sad question of those who are cursed with white blood, but having even so much as a drop of negro blood, are considered negroes. In the fashion of many authors of today, the story is carried through three generations and we see men and women striving against the curse of their birth, having some of the refined instincts of their white ancestry and some of the physical characteristics of their black forefathers. The story could only be one of pathos. A young Hottentot, listening to a missionary explain that all human beings are God's children, replied, "Then we must be God's stepchildren". In spite of the pathos, the ending of the story is satisfying, though the problems are not all solved, for the development of fineness of character and unselfish, sacrificial devotion cannot be all tragedy.

IRONY

(Note: This poem won the prize offered by the Poetry Society of South Carolina. It was published in the Society's Year Book.)

The fairy quite forgotten entered late,
 Uninvited to his christening and birth.
 She came to bring him gifts in angry mirth,
 Announced officiously that she was Fate,
 And laughed aloud and fawned to hide her hate.
 She gave to him an ugly body first,
 And then, because she wished him doubly cursed,
 She gave a love of beauty far too great.
 And now a careless, mocking word or jeer
 Can stab him quick and cleanly like a blade,
 And leave him trembling with a wound more deep
 Than friends can know, who only see his queer
 Dull face and awkward form, and not the shade
 Of beauty's holiness his heart can keep.

THE REUNION CLASSES CELEBRATE

THE CLASSES OF '95, '00, '05, '10, '15,
'20, '22, '24 ATTEND REUNION

THE NAUGHTY-NAUGHT'S REUNION

It is really thrilling to be a quarter of a century Agnes Scott alumna. This was the feeling of all those who gathered at commencement time for the class reunion of 1900. There were five class members present out of eight, and we came perilously near winning the silver cup for the largest percentage of class attendance. If the class of 1910 had not filed out at midnight the night before reunion day and brought in a neighboring member, we would have won.

Three of our members were unable to attend. Mrs. George Howe, of Yonkers, N. Y., was present after an absence of twenty-five years from the campus. She brought us greetings on Class Reunion Day, and is going to further prove her love and loyalty to Agnes Scott by sending her daughters to us in the near future.

The reunion luncheon was held at the home of Mrs. Lewis Gaines in Atlanta, where we spent a pleasant hour or two together talking of old days at Agnes Scott.

Since our reunion a distinct honor has come to a member of the class. Miss Mary Barker, of Atlanta, was elected president of the American Federation of Teachers at the annual meeting in Chicago. Miss Barker has made her mark in educational work in Atlanta and we are glad of this recent recognition of her ability.

But all things have an end, even twenty-fifth reunions. We only hope that all the young alumnae will be as happy in their Alma Mater as the class of 1900.

E. A. G.

WE WON THAT CUP!

The class of 1910 has been earnestly besought to send in an account of their reunion to this quarterly, but their heads are so high in the air over winning the silver loving-cup offered for the largest per cent attendance, that they cannot be prevailed upon to do so. Another reason they have no reunion write-up is that they say it is utterly impossible for mere words pounded out on a mere typewriter (or written with pen and ink—which is even mere-er) to express the glorious good time they had at commencement. Suffice it to say that their radio class stunt was quite the cleverest imaginable, and the abundance of pep they displayed (led by Annie Smith, the author of "the Purple and the White") proved conclusively that although 1910 has been out of college fifteen long years, "there's life in the old girl yet!"

'20 REUNES WITH SMALL NUMBERS BUT MUCH ENTHUSIASM

When the class of '20 returned last commencement for its first five-year reunion, it was prouder of Alma Mater and of the progress in the Alumnae Association than ever before. The Trustees showed us their appreciation of what we have done by their lovely luncheon, having as guests the faculty, Seniors, Reunion Classes, and alumnae in general. That affair on Saturday of Commencement was a gala occasion for Rebekah Scott dining-hall. The walls rang with merriment and echoed the gay chatter of all of us who had come back. Our hearts were thrilled to hear about the new gymnasium and to see where a beginning had been made, and then to hear Gertrude Manly McFarland's sister, (Martha Lin, the president of the Senior class), tell about the "greatness" of the graduating class. Just think of eighty girls going out from Agnes Scott at one time, and remember how big we thought we were with our forty-two!

Not all of our forty-two came back for reunion, of course. More would have made the effort, if they could have realized what joys were in store. We who were there consoled ourselves by believing that we could do as well as the class of '10, the prize winner, and some other far-back classes, after our babies had gotten old enough to leave and the teacher members were experienced enough to manage to get off for Alumnae Reunions.

Alice Cooper and Lois (McIntyre) Beall represented the Atlanta contingent. Margery

Moore, since then Mrs. McAulay, took time from her trousseau shopping to enjoy the meetings. "Crip" Slack came for one day—the only day she could get off from her duties at LaGrange. Doesn't that show the real Agnes Scott spirit? And all of us had such a good time that we felt sorry for those who had to miss it.

At the business meeting of the Alumnae Association all the officers and committees gave very encouraging reports that showed how much we have grown in the last five years.

Monday afternoon, just after the class reunion luncheons, we all adjourned to the lawn behind the Alumnae House for our class stunts, and they were all so original and clever that I know it was hard for the committee to decide which was best. 1910 won, and had the best representation, too. Will '20 have to wait fifteen years for this honor? We ought to come back with flying colors after ten years, so let's all plan now for our reunion in 1930.

Girls of 1920, ask yourselves these questions: Have you ever seen our Anna Young Alumnae House? Have you ever spent a night there? Or examined the lovely room our class has furnished? Have you ever seen the recently completed gymnasium and auditorium? They say Miss Randolph and Dr. Sweet fairly beam with pride over their new workshop, and I know Miss Gooch and the Blackfriars will when those purple velvet curtains swing back on their first performance. Changes may make you sad, but don't they make you happy too when they are progressive? Come back and see what else we have to boast of on the campus.

THIRTEEN REUNITE WITH '22

(Written by One Suffering with Acute Arlenitis.)

There was a Reunion. There have been many reunions; and as long as the middle class continues to function academically there will probably be many more reunions. But to us as we met there, twittering about first one thing and another, there was only A Reunion. From the walks of life we had come, thus and so, possessed with the ideal idea. The ideal idea, according to present-day customs, must be concealed by blatant mirth and raucus enthusiasm; it is so expressed that it is never mentioned by one Nordic to another Nordic for then it would become tangible, and everyone knows that a perfect ideal idea must be intangible.

And while we thought deeply we spoke lightly of this and of that, and many ears of our missing contemporaries must have burned alarmingly. Perhaps they would like to know who started all those rumors. It must have been and doubtless was any or all of the thirteen: Jeannette Archer, Nell Buchanan, Catherine (Dennington) Jervey, Mary Floding, Marion Hull, Mary Knight, Ruth (Laughon) Dyer, Ruth Pirkle, Harriet (Scott) Bowen, Martha Lee Taliaferro, Ivelyn Giradeau, Ethel Ware, and Elizabeth Wilson.

We discussed, we cheered, we sang, we put our best foot forward, we became utterly and ungracefully entangled in that exhausting thing called "college spirit". And the ideal idea fluttered in a vague sort of way. (You may not entirely comprehend this, but if you do, it will probably mean something.)

—E. W.

THE THRILLS OF THAT FIRST REUNION

Since practically all of the members of '24 who returned to our first hilarious reunion are hard-handed daughters of toil, working for hard-hearted bosses, commencement had progressed as far as noon on Saturday before most of '24 showed up. But we managed to arrive in time for the Trustee's luncheon to the faculty, senior class, and alumnae in Rebeccah Scott dining-room, at two o'clock. When, at three minutes after two the dining-room doors still remained closed, Mr. Tart was the only person in the lobby to bewail the fact that we weren't beginning on time, for all of the old grads, among whom we proudly count ourselves, were having a glorious time meeting old friends and shrieking with joy over each new arrival.

Some angel from heaven must have taken a social secretary's course, and then sat up all night a couple of times to have arranged the placecards so beautifully, for after winding around in that labyrinth of tables for fifteen minutes and reading hundreds of placecards, while all the time the horrible sensation that you had been overlooked sank into your heart, could anything be sweeter than to find yourself between two members of your own class, with your sister class just across the table? The menu began with grapefruit, and before the first shot could be fired, '24, to a man, lifted their napkins from their laps and tucked them securely in their necks. Should these brand-new dresses that we had bought with our own first salary checks be spotted by grapefruit? Never! We are still wondering what the older grads and the seniors whose bills are paid by husbands and poppers (respectively), thought of us. But at the time we were too happy over being together again to care. The luncheon was perfect, from the angle of the company, the speakers, the menu, and any other angles which may have escaped us. Then the roll was called and the different classes were asked to rise. '24 found that we had returned twenty-three strong,—we might say twenty-four strong, for the one of our number who had annexed a husband, had him in tow.

After luncheon, we streamed into "that Prophylactic Hall" for the annual alumnae association meeting, and when that was over, the afternoon was also. There was just time to rush over to the Alumnae House—the sewing-room had been lined with cots and was our headquarters—and dress for supper, and the recital afterwards. We attended the recital en masse, and in the intermissions discovered dozens of other old alumnae that we had not seen at lunch. After the recital, we wandered around the campus in little groups of threes and fours, visited all our favorite spots and professors, and made pop-calls on "students we have known".

Sunday, we marched in the academic procession over to the Decatur Presbyterian Church for the Baccalaureate sermon; is it only one short year since we sat there in cap and gown?

Monday is Alumnae Day, as well as Class Day. Our class luncheon was held in the Silhouette Tea-room and verily, verily, it was an occasion when one might truly say, "a good time was had by all". The class roll was called and the following girls answered "present": Amis, Arnold, Bivings, Brown, Davidson, Dobbs, Ficklen, (Gilliland) Stukes, Greene, Howie, King, McDow, McMurry, Morton, Ordway, Peck, Powell, Scandrett, Smith, D. F., Smith, M., Stone.

We may as well admit it: such gossiping was done at that table as was never heard before, and probably will not be again until our next reunion in 1927. Every member present was made to tell the story of her life since last we met, mentally, morally, spiritually, physically, financially, and matrimonially. And the things we didn't surmise about the absent members! Of course we sang. Our own song, "Hail, Agnes Scott, we sing to thee," and all the rest, with more vim than tune, we fear.

And Reader, we would probably still be sitting around that table singing, if Mrs. Hazen Smith, chairman of reunions, hadn't summoned us to the lawn back of the Tea House, where the class stunts were to be given. We rushed frantically around putting the finishing touches to our stunt, trying on our blue and white jockey-caps, and practicing a jaunty gallop on the prancing steeds (neigh brooms) loaned by the Alumnae House. Speedy King and Margaret Powell received the news that they were to be tea-hounds very nicely, and submitted to being decorated with long flapping hound ears of blue and white, but when someone approached from the rear and attempted to pin on long blue crepe paper tails, they flatly refused to wear them, and had to be talked to rather sternly before they consented. We still think our class stunt was the cleverest, although 1910 persists in having that same view about theirs.

That night the glee club gave their annual public warble; we trouped over and occupied all the seats we could. Tuesday morning commencement exercises were held in the chapel, and our hearts thrilled again at "Ancient of Days" and the "Alma Mater"—all three verses! Only too soon the seniors were marching out of the chapel—eighty-one of them!—to join our ranks as alumnae; only too soon our first reunion was a thing of the past, and we were hurrying back to our husband and jobs. Yes, "we'll remember ever," Agnes Scott, and we'll be back for our third reunion in 1927.

FROM THE ALUMNAE OFFICE

FALL OPENING OF THE ANNA YOUNG ALUMNAE HOUSE

On Wednesday afternoon, November 25, the Alumnae Association will be "At Home" from three o'clock to five o'clock at the Alumnae House. November 25 will be Miss Anna Young's birthday, and we hope to make this date an annual home-coming for all alumnae.

If you are planning to come to Atlanta, and of course to Agnes Scott, this fall, make your visit in time for Wednesday, the day before Thanksgiving, and come to the Alumnae House. We are expecting to see a large number of Alumnae.

ANNIE (BRYAN) SCOTT,

Chairman of the House and Tea Room Committee.

CHANGES IN THE ALUMNAE HOUSE MANAGEMENT

We regret that Miss Martha Bishop and Miss Nell Buchanan are no longer on the "staff" of the Alumnae House. While we miss them indeed, the work is being efficiently carried on by Miss Florinne Brown, ex '11, manager of the Tea Room, and Miss Polly Stone, '24, General Alumnae Secretary. Miss Brown is a graduate of the Lewis Tea Room Training School, and is proving her capabilities by the success she has already attained in the two months the Tea Room has been under her management. Miss Stone has had two years experience in the business world, with the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company, and with the Atlanta Y. W. C. A., and is fitted for her duties in connection with the publication of the Alumnae Quarterly by journalistic work on the "Agonistic" and the editorship of the annual—the "Silhouette"—while a student at Agnes Scott. The three mainstays of the kitchen, Bartow, Ola, and Laurie, are still with us. All communications regarding reservations in the Alumnae House should be addressed to General Secretary, Alumnae Association, Agnes Scott College, Decatur, Ga. Thanksgiving reservations should be made immediately.

TO THE CLASS OF '25

With this issue of the Quarterly we welcome into the Agnes Scott Alumnae family our newest sister, the class of '25. As their president, Martha Lin Manly, said in speaking of this class at the Trustee's luncheon last commencement, "this is the largest and" (one of) "the best that has been graduated from Agnes Scott." Since ye editor and the many gentle readers of the Quarterly represent various and sundry classes other than '25, it seems best to qualify somewhat her sweeping statement that it is the best. But no one will take issue with the fact that when eighty-one seniors marched into the chapel last June to receive their diplomas, all other class records were broken.

"Where, oh where are the grave old seniors?"

They are scattered far and wide now over the face of the earth. Forty-seven of their number are teaching, three are already married and settled in homes of their own, six are continuing their studies in other institutions, the business world has claimed seven, the theatre, one, social service work, three, while fourteen are at home this winter resting from their four years of labor.

If the older sisters may be permitted to give this youngest little sister one word of advice it would be—keep in touch. For four years you have had every interest common; now that college days are over make it a point not to drift apart. Remember that even one year out of college is a long time unless you keep in touch. Do this through membership in the Alumnae Association, through your class secretary, Belle Walker, (who, by the way, although the youngest, is the very best secretatry in the whole association!), through the Alumnae Quarterly, and best of all, by coming back frequently to Agnes Scott.

Class of '25, Agnes Scott misses you. The college halls and campus echo the words:

"Where oh where are the grave old seniors?
Safe now in the wide, wide world."

ARE YOU A GOOD ALUMNA?

No college is stronger than its ability to hold its alumnae. Do all the alumnae realize the responsibility that rests on them? The strength of a college is often impaired because its alumnae confine their interest to memories of their undergraduate days. There is no reason why a woman should receive the benefits of a college for four years and thereafter take no interest in the advancement of the institution. Are the Agnes Scott alumnae keeping up with the growth of the college? Are they interested in the educational movements on foot in America today? Here are some ways to be a good alumna:

1. Join the Alumnae Association. Membership in the association is far from being a mere form, but carries with it many privileges, such as the Alumnae Quarterly with news of the college and of classmates; the use of the beautiful Anna Young Alumnae House; the Alumnae Banquet at commencement time, etc. If you can show your interest in no more personal way, membership in the association alone will help.
2. Join the local Agnes Scott Club, if there is one in your city.

3. Join the local branch of the American Association of University Women if there is one in your city. This will keep you abreast of all educational movements of the day.
4. Visit the college as often as you can. Be SURE to come back to your class reunions.
5. Keep the college advised of all High School students in your locality who are good "Agnes Scott material." More and more the alumnae are giving substantial help in the selecting of students. You know the type girl you would want to come to Agnes Scott.

HELP WANTED

You are earnestly requested to communicate promptly any change of name or residence, together with correction of errors and omissions in the Alumnae Register to the Alumnae Secretary, Agnes Scott College, Decatur, Georgia. Sincere thanks are due to the many alumnae who have already sent in corrections; these will be shown in the new correction list to be published in the spring.

ON THE CAMPUS*HONOR ROLL FOR 1924-25

For the past two years it has been the custom at Agnes Scott to recognize those students who have shown the highest degree of scholarship not only among the members of the senior class (which has been done by election to Gamma Tau Alpha) but in the Freshman, Sophomore, and Junior classes as well. At the opening of the session in September, Dr. McCain announced the following names as comprising the honor roll for the terms 1924-25:

Freshman Class:

Leila Anderson, Macon, Ga.
 Myrtle Bledsoe, Atlanta, Ga.
 Frances Brown, Staunton, Va.
 Elizabeth Grier, Suchowfu, China.
 Evangeline Papageorge, Atlanta, Ga.

Sophomore Class:

Frances Buchanan, Macon, Ga.
 Susan Clayton, Atlanta, Ga.
 Mary Loyd Davis, LaGrange, Ga.
 Kenneth Maner, Atlanta, Ga.
 Miriam Preston, Soonchun, Korea, Asia.
 Mamie Shaw, Gainesville, Fla.

Junior Class:

Isabelle Clarke, Atlanta, Ga.
 Louisa Duls, Charlotte, N. C.
 Catherine Graeber, Yazoo City, Miss.
 Juanita Greer, Atlanta, Ga.
 Nan Lingle, Richmond, Va.
 Josephine North, Yazoo City, Miss.
 Grace Augusta Ogden, Mobile, Ala.
 Margaret Whittington, Atlanta, Ga.

STUDENT ORGANIZATION PLANS FOR THE YEAR

1. Student Government

To learn to live honorably and unselfishly in a community, and to share in the responsibility of the government is a part of the broader education for which we come to college. With this in view as the purpose for which our Association was founded, Student Government has chosen as its "watchwords" for 1925-26, "Co-operation" and "Progress."

In addition to Lower House, we have a Proctor Board, consisting of the proctors from every dormitory, which shall hold weekly meetings at a definite time and place.

This year the president of Y. W. C. A. meets regularly with the Executive Committee, and we feel in this way, Y. W. C. A. is actively co-operating with Student Government. One of the most progressive steps so far is the requirement of a Day Student Representative on the Executive Board.

We are looking forward to the Northern Inter-collegiate Conference to be held at Wellesley this fall as an opportunity to compare our Student Government Association with that of other colleges and to receive the help necessary to keep our Association progressive that it may ever be ready to serve the Greater Agnes Scott.

VIRGINIA BROWNING, President.

2. Dramatic Club

With the incentive of the magnificently adequate stage and lighting facilities in the new gymnasium auditorium, the Blackfriars are planning for a year of real achievement. Any money made by the club this year will go towards the purchase of scenery, as we are woefully wanting in that respect.

We have enlarged the scope of our club this year to include not only those girls who are good actresses but also those girls who are interested in any phase of dramatic work—producing, costuming, playwriting, etc. Miss Nan Stephens' class in the writing of drama has generously offered to work with us and we are planning to put on several programs of the one-act plays—and probably in the Spring, a three-act play—written by this class.

Our first offering for the year was on the evening of October 24. The three one-act plays presented that night were:

"Followers" by Brighthouse.

"Nevertheless" by Stuart Walker.

"Will o' the Wisp" by Halman.

The Thanksgiving play will be "Daddy Long Legs."

ELLEN DOUGLAS LEYBURN, President.

3. Young Women's Christian Association

The plans for the work of the Y. W. C. A. for the coming year were made out at Pine Lodge Camp in September. The Cabinet members returned early to do this, and each committee planned a special project for the year. A definite theme was chosen to form a basis for the Sunday vesper services, and every effort is being made to have full attendance and real interest in these meetings.

The Vocational Information Committee has many good ideas, and it intends to make good use of the new Vocational Library which Mr. Cator Woolford so generously gave us.

An entirely new project is being sponsored this year, primarily by Y. W. C. A. with the backing of Student Government. This takes the form of a Circulating Library of good modern fiction on a two cent a day basis. All books and financial aid are asked for and gratefully received by the committee working on this Library.

In the spring, a special program for interesting students in Blue Ridge will be given, and we hope to have a big delegation at next year's conference.

VIRGINIA PEELER, President.

4. Athletic Association

The new gym has given the Athletic Association such an impetus that we hope by the end of the year to have accomplished great things. With the new pool, more of the girls are going in for swimming; the athletic field will be in fine condition by the time we are ready for field day in the spring, and the three indoor basket-ball courts are being used every day and evening. We expect to have our annual tennis tournament again, but regret exceedingly that on account of the condition of the athletic field, hockey will have to be foregone this fall. Pine Lodge, the college camp at Stone Mountain, is signed up for every week-end, as is also the Venable guest house, which they have kindly turned over to us again for the winter. Agnes Scott has indeed traveled far since the days when the young ladies of the Decatur Female Seminary obtained their exercise by walking on the verandas and around the buildings, or by gently propelling a croquet-ball through a wicket.

SARAH SLAUGHTER, President.

5. LECTURE ASSOCIATION

The Lecture Association at Agnes Scott endeavors to bring to the college each year four or five men or women who are outstanding in some one line of work. In past years, it has been fortunate enough to secure such lecturers as Hamilton, Holt, Stephen Leacock, Justice Florence E. Allen, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, DuBose Heyward, Frank Swinnerton, Dr. Joseph E. Ames, Vilhjalmar Stefansson, and others. This year John Drinkwater has been scheduled for November 4th and Count Byron de Proroc for February 10th. Two or three more lectures are to be arranged.

CATHERINE GRAEBER,
Student Chairman.

6. PI ALPHA PHI DEBATING CLUB

The purpose of this organization is to stimulate interest in debating, to train the individual members along that line, and to prepare two teams for the yearly tri-angular debate with Sophie Newcomb and Randolph Macon. The inter-collegiate debaters are chosen by the faculty committee from the twelve girls who have previously been selected to do intensive work on debating. Out of the fourteen debates in which Agnes Scott has taken part, she has won nine. This year, her hope is for a double victory.

CATHERINE GRAEBER,
President.

NEW FACULTY MEMBERS

Helen Eagleson—Instructor in Psychology—M. A. University of Washington; Ph. D. Johns Hopkins University.

Annie Mae Christie—Assistant Professor of English—M. A. Columbia University.

Annie Ruth Lineberry—Acting Instructor in Mathematics—B.A. Meredith College; M. A. Columbia University.

Mrs. W. C. Goodpasture—substitute Instructor in Physical Education—Graduate Boston Normal School of Gymnastics; Special Certificate from Wellesley.

Nan Bagby Stephens—Instructor in Playwriting—Agnes Scott Institute; advanced work in drama in New York. Miss Stephens is well known as the vice-president of the National Music Association, and as the author of "Rose Anne," which won fame on Broadway.

NEW GYMNASIUM BUILDING IN USE

The new gymnasium looms large upon the campus horizon this year, both figuratively and actually. It is an enormous building, covering half of the old athletic field, while a much larger new athletic field has been graded and extends down by the side of the new gym from the back of West Lawn Cottage, past the new amphitheatre (where May Day exercises were held last spring) down to Ansley Street, the boundary line of the college property. Classes have been held in the new gym from the beginning of the session in September, but the swimming-pool was not open until several weeks later, due to the lack of water in Decatur. This pool is sixty by twenty-five feet, lined with glistening white tiles, and is a perfect joy after the "enlarged bath-tub" of the old gym.

On the evening of October 8, the building was formally opened and a dedicatory service held. A beautiful bronze tablet in the entrance hall was unveiled. It bears the inscription:

In Memory of George Bucher Scott
1855-1920
A Member of the Board of Trustees
For Twenty-four Years
Chairman of the Committee on Buildings and Grounds
For Seventeen Years
This Building
Has Been Named for Him in Recognition of His Devotion to Agnes Scott College and of His Labors for its Development.

Two nights later, on October 10, the first performance was given on the stage—the contest of wits between the sophomores and freshmen, in which the sophomores came off victorious. Footlights, and an elaborate lighting system make possible varied and very beautiful effects on the stage which were utterly out of the question in the days—now forever past—when the Blackfriars gave their performances in the chapel in Rebecca Scott Hall. The acoustics of the building are splendid; even those sitting on the back row in the gallery are able to hear perfectly, and there are no roof-supporting pillars to obstruct the view of the stage. Heavy velvet curtains in purple and silver are the joy of Blackfriar hearts.

The only regret that anyone can find in connection with the new gym is that the best tennis-court on the campus—the one behind the library—had to be sacrificed, but in view of all we have gained by the change, we consider the loss worth while.

Agnes Scott Alumnae, this magnificent building which belongs to you is just one more reason why you should pay your college a visit in the near future. A sight of it is worth a trip back. The cost of the completed building is around $175,000.00—it is one of the finest in the south.

THE ALUMNAE ASSOCIATION

REPORT OF ANNUAL MEETING MAY, 1925

The Alumnae Association held its annual meeting in the Propylean Hall immediately after the trustees' luncheon, on May 23, 1925. A large number of Alumnae were in attendance. The following reports were given:

REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT

The annual meeting of the Agnes Scott Alumnae Association of May 23, 1925, brings to a close the first year of service of this administration, and, without infringing on the reports of the committees which are to be given, this report will attempt to touch upon some of the outstanding marks of development in our association.

Three lines of work were recommended to us last year at this time as the pressing needs for this year, and, with these as our aims, we began in September to lay stress on the formation of more local clubs, the greater and more closely knit organization of classes and the perfecting, if possible, of our card index files. Just briefly, the report on these lines at the close of the year is this: the number of clubs has grown from two to eight; the classes have each a definitely accepted secretary, reporting regularly to the office following her letters to her classmates and the splendid reunion classes of this year are the real flowerings of this constant nurture; the work on the files, under the supervision of Miss Nell Buchanan, has been brought well on its way toward completion, so much so that our first Alumnae Register is soon to be published.

Another object of pride and interest to every alumna has been the Alumnae Quarterly, three numbers of which have been issued this year up to this time and each issue has brought a flood of enthusiastic letters from girls, far and near, to cheer the hearts of the Publicity Committee and Miss Buchanan. Surely, to this publication, linking us with memories of our college days and friends and with happenings on the campus now, is due in large measure the increasing number of paid members of the Alumnae Association and also the genuine revival of love and interest among our alumnae, as evidenced by their letters.

A great asset, of course, is our Alumnae House, whose committee's report will be so full that I need not go into a detailed report, only mentioning the prompt payment of the thousand dollars on March 15th, with a tidy balance on hand and enough pledges from clubs and individuals to provide for our final payment next year. It is with regret that we accept Miss Bishop's resignation, recognizing her ability and loyalty and thanking her for the years of successful management, but we are extremely fortunate in having secured the services of another alumna and are looking forward to a very prosperous year.

The Alumnae Council has held two meetings this year, one in January and one in May, meetings filled with interesting contacts with joint problems of the college community and the alumnae.

Our new endeavor, just beginning to feel its way, yet growing stronger and more tangible each day, is what is called the "College after College" plan, sponsored by Miss Lucile Alexander, who has won the active support of leading members of the faculty to the extent of giving their services to accomplish this plan. Her report is so definite that I shall only mention this and take this opportunity on behalf of the Alumnae Association to thank Miss Alexander, Miss McKinney, Miss Lewis, Miss Hearon, Miss Laney, Miss Davis, who have consented to form the faculty of this movement. Surely, the Alumnae Association has a very real responsibility and obligation when it has such generous support given its plans by the college community.

This report would not be complete without mention of the wonderful work done in the alumnae office under Miss Buchanan. We have, indeed, been fortunate in having had in closest touch with our alumnae a person of Miss Buchanan's charm and ability, and the results of her ideas and her personality have been far reaching in the welding of the alumnae members into a united body. A great deal of correspondence, very necessary and very welcome, is carried on in the office with individual members, clubs, secretaries of classes, chairmen of committees, etc.; the quarterly, also, is very largely compiled in the office, and the sending out of notices and questionnaires on various lines are necessary; of course, the files are a continual work, as addresses and names also change rapidly. Next year the association will enjoy the services of a full time secretary, a step long recommended to us.

Nor would we fail to make grateful acknowledgement of the support of Dr. McCain, of the college and of Miss McKinney's wonderful service to the association in her visits to Charlotte, Richmond, and Birmingham at the formation of these three clubs and we feel that the inspiration of her presence at their initial meetings is the secret of the successful organization of these active clubs.

I wish to express my deepest gratitude to the general officers and the chairmen of committees for their cooperation, the generous giving of their time and efforts and their encouraging support and wish for each of them even greater results in their work next year.

The Alumnae Association has become, through years of earnest endeavor in the past, an organized body of which we are justly proud and yet, back of the organization, back of the office, of the Quarterly, of the Alumnae House and of the reports of chairmen stands each of you, the unit of the organization, the very fibre of its being, and every good endeavour, every step forward is made by each of you working together for the good of our college and the furtherance of the cause of education. What a joy to us to know that in the reports of the year each of us has had a part and may the next year bring the association greater achievements and increased development through the added sense of responsibility and joy in service of each alumna.

Respectfully submitted,

FANNIE G. (MAYSON) DONALDSON,

President.

REPORT OF GENERAL SECRETARY

It is through the Alumnae office that the Association committees have done their work, and it is gratifying to know that each of these committees has been active and working throughout the year. Of course, in order to do our best service, we must be able to locate our girls, and to this end we have spent much of our time this year. We have sent out letters and follow-up letters and postal cards to the girls, and if we have gotten no response, we have written to their relatives and friends. We are publishing our first alumnae directory this year, and while it will not be complete, it is a start, and we ask your co-operation in making corrections. Of the 2,625 names on our college list, the addresses of 1,950 have been verified, 570 have not been heard from, and 105 are definitely lost. We have so far done but little work on the institute and academy files, and I suppose will concentrate on them next year.

The office has concentrated its work on the following committees:

Publicity Committee—In helping with the Alumnae Quarterly.

Local Clubs Committee—We have no dead wood in our local clubs either. Their officers have been most efficient, and have kept in close touch with the central office.

Class Organization Committees—In helping to work up reunions, and in keeping the classes together. This commencement we are definitely organizing the class at large, for many of our most loyal alumnae are non-graduates. The work of the class secretaries speaks for itself in the news they have sent for the Alumnae Quarterly. They have been almost 100 per cent active.

Curriculum Committee—That is, the College after College phase of it. You have heard their report, and lastly

The Vocational Guidance Committee—In sending out the vocational questionnaires. We hope next year to have a vocational file in the office.

We have on our mailing list 750 names. There are about 200 new members in the association this year. This number includes comparatively few of last year's class, as most of them joined before leaving last year.

The alumnae are using the alumnae office more and more. Many write to get addresses and to ask for information and small services. The office is always eager to do anything that will serve to strengthen the tie between the alumnae and the college. Many letters have come to the office during the year, showing marked increase in the interest the alumnae are taking in the work of the association. The alumnae are doing a great work now, and in a few years, as our organization becomes more complete, I am sure we will be in a position to be of much greater service.

Respectfully submitted,

NELL BUCHANAN, General Secretary.

REPORT OF THE PUBLICITY COMMITTEE *

The Alumnae Quarterly, cherished offspring of the Publicity Committee, has thrived and developed until its lusty cries have aroused the wonder and admiration not only of the Agnes Scott Alumnae Association collectively and individually—but also of other associations and men and women of prominence throughout the country.

The eminent Dr. Thwing on his recent visit to Agnes Scott paid it an unusual tribute in saying it is one of the very few outstanding publications of its kind in the United States, and that both in subject matter and typography it has a finish that is seldom seen in magazines of this type.

We, of the committee, feel that we can never express our deep appreciation to Nell Buchanan who has edited the Quarterly for the year and to whom all the credit for its success is due.

While the Quarterly has been the chief source of publicity for the year we have also succeeded in getting some local recognition through the Atlanta press.

Respectfully submitted,

LOUISE MCA. JOHNSON, Chairman.

REPORT OF PREPARATORY SCHOOLS COMMITTEE

Following the suggestion of Mrs. Donaldson, acting in advisory capacity to the committee, and Dr. McCain, the Preparatory Schools Committee has endeavored during the past year to concentrate its efforts in certain localities which heretofore have not been especially stressed. A letter was written to an alumna in each of these cities asking that she try to do three things, or, at least one of three things: first, to send to Dr. McCain a list of especially recommended students in the Senior and Junior classes of the high school or other standard preparatory school in that city; second, to cooperate with local A. A. U. W. branches in the celebration of College Day and to secure representation of Agnes Scott at such events; third, to have Agnes Scott parties, along with other alumnae of that city, to which High School Seniors are invited and Agnes Scott posters, pictures, etc., shown to them.

Letters were written to this purpose to alumnae in the following cities: Memphis, Tenn.; Nashville, Tenn.; Little Rock, Ark.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Pensacola, Fla.; Mobile, Ala.; Miami, Fla.; Macon, Ga.; Louisville, Ky.; New Orleans, La.; and Charleston, S. C.

Almost all of those to whom letters were written agreed to send in the lists of students. In many of the places there were no A. A. U. W. organizations and hence no college day celebration. In two of the places Agnes Scott parties were being planned. Two of the letters were returned for incorrect address.

Besides these places where we tried to concentrate our efforts, the committee arranged for Agnes Scott to be represented (by Miss Nell Buchanan, Alumnae Secretary) at College day celebrations in Charlotte, N. C., Monroe, N. C., Concord, N. C., and Gastonia, N. C.

I feel that the work of this committee has been handicapped this year by the fact that its chairman has had to give much of her time to other alumnae work—the establishment of the Charlotte Agnes Scott Club, by reason of the illness of the local representative on that committee.

The names of the members of this committee have not been sent in up to this time and I am going to consider those to whom the letters were sent as composing this committee. These are Margaret Rowe, Mrs. Harlin Tucker, Mrs. Wm. O. Lyon, Alice Jones, Annie Chapin McLane, Grace Harris, Mrs. L. L. Noble, Eva Wassum, Eleanor Carpenter, Mrs. D. F. Dickson, Mrs. John Van de Erve and Beth McClure.

Respectfully submitted,

JULIA (HAGOOD) CUTHBERTSON,

Chairman.

REPORT OF ALUMNAE HOUSE AND TEA ROOM COMMITTEE

In beginning its report the committee desires to acknowledge with gratitude three lovely gifts presented to the house this year. On Miss Anna Young's birthday, Mrs. Young and Anna Young Eagin beautified our dining-room by adding to its appointments a silver coffee pot, silver tea-pot, and three silver bon bon dishes. Miss Alexander's gift of a complete set of flat silver makes the dining room further attractive. The house guests during the year have enjoyed the gift of the Decatur club—the Atlanta Constitution, a morning paper.

We are deeply grateful to Miss Morton for her efficient bookkeeping for the Tea Room, and to Miss Martha Bishop, our charming hostess and Tea Room manager, for all she has done in making our home and Tea Room so attractive. Her absence will be felt next year. A cordial welcome, however, is given both to Miss Florine Brown, her successor as manager of the House and Tea Room and to Miss Polly Stone, our new general secretary of the Association, who will also act as hostess for our home.

Purchases for the House and Tea Room:
Tea Room funds equal five per cent per month of Tea Room profit:

One dozen soup plates.
Two dozen cups and saucers.
Three dozen ice tea glasses.
Three dozen ice tea spoons.
Three dozen sherbet glasses.

Fund from Alumnae Budget:

Mahogany desk.
Kitchen walls cleaned.
Three cots and pads.

Financial statement:

Total receipts .....	$6,977.33
Total profits .....	217.89
75% of profits to Alumnae Association .....	163.41
20% of profits to Miss Bishop .....	43.57
5% of profits to Tea Room fund (including $17.05, 5% profits of May, 1924) .....	27.96

Although not very many purchases have been made during the year for house furnishings, we are proud of our Alumnae House as it is, and the numbers of returning alumnae are delighted with their home on the campus. Distinguished guests, whom it has been our pleasure to entertain from time to time, have been charmed with our house. We were pleased to know that DuBose Heyward, spoke of its lovely appointments. In addition to that of DuBose Heyward, our Guest Book contains the names of Mrs. DuBose Heyward, Dr. D. Clay Lilly, Mrs. D. Clay Lilly, Dr. Ira Lowther Peters, of Goucher College, Charles A. Thwing and Mrs. Charles A. Thwing. We believe that as a result of their visit in our Alumnae House they* will have a very friendly feeling for Agnes Scott.

The following recommendations, made by the committee, to the Executive Committee of the Association at a recent meeting were accepted.

1. That as a slight mark of appreciation of her work, the Tea Room Treasurer be given two dinners a month in the Tea Room.

2. That Miss Martha Bishop, our retiring hostess and Tea Room manager, be given the privilege of returning at any time to the Alumnae House as to her own home,—that is, without the usual charge of fifty cents a night.

3. That resolutions be drawn up by the Secretary relative to Miss Bishop and Miss Buchanan and their work.

Respectfully submitted,

ANNIE (BRYAN) SCOTT, Chairman.

RESOLUTION

It has been with deep regret that the Alumnae Association has accepted the resignation of two of its most valuable officers, that of Miss Martha Bishop, manager of the Tea Room and Hostess of the Alumnae House, and that of Miss Nell Buchanan, General Alumnae Secretary. We feel that formal resolutions are quite inadequate to express our sincere sorrow in losing them. So we shall only say good-by and good luck to them always.

REPORT OF LOCAL CLUBS COMMITTEE

The Local Clubs Committee feels very fortunate in being able to report that four new clubs,—Charlotte, N. C., Richmond, Va., New York City, and Birmingham, Ala.,—have been organized, and that two others—Lynchburg, Va., and Anniston, Ala., are ready for their first meetings.

It has been the purpose of each club to keep its members in touch with the work, plans, and latest developments of the College, to promote closer fellowship between the alumnae and the students of the college, to create greater interest in Agnes Scott among the high school girls, and to give every alumna an opportunity to serve her Alma Mater.

Charlotte and Richmond are still working under the enthusiasm given them by Miss McKinney, whom Dr. McCain so kindly sent to be present at their first meetings in order that both clubs might have a touch of the spirit and atmosphere of Agnes Scott. Charlotte has thirty members, practically all of whom are active workers. Special emphasis has been put on the plans for a "greater Agnes Scott." Pictures and blue prints have been used to show where the new buildings are to be placed and how they will look on the campus. At present, the club is in the midst of a campaign to raise $100.00 which will be given to help raise the debt on the Alumnae House.

Although small in numbers, the Richmond Club is strong in spirit. In February the club gave a tea to some of the high school girls. Pictures, blue prints, annuals, and catalogues were shown, and talks were given so that the girls might have a glimpse of all sides of life at Agnes Scott. In March, the club made three posters which the A. A. U. W. used in the high schools and two large girls' schools in connection with their college day program.

In March, the Peg Woffington was the scene of a very enthusiastic meeting of seventeen Agnes Scott girls who unanimously voted the organization of a New York chapter of the Alumnae Association. Miss Nan Stephens, who was honor guest, gave such a glowing account of a course in playwriting, which is to be given at the College next year under the auspices of the Alumnae Association, that the club immediately pledged $100.00 toward its support.

The Birmingham Club is only about a month old, but already it has the distinction of being the largest Agnes Scott Club in existence.

The Atlanta and Decatur Clubs have, as always, accomplished a maximum amount of work: the Atlanta Club having contributed $500.00 to the Alumnae Fund, and the Decatur Club $250.00.

The Committee has had very encouraging reports from Valdosta, Ga., Montgomery, Ala., Chattanooga, Tenn., and Marietta, Ga. Due to local conditions, they have not been able to form definite organizations, but we feel confident that the Association can count on their support and co-operation in next year's work.

Several other cities are eligible for membership, so we are "hitching our wagon to a star", and hoping that by the end of next year the Committee will be able to report outstanding clubs in all the southern States as well as in several of the northern ones.

Respectfully submitted,

AIMEE D. (GLOVER) LITTLE,

Chairman.

REPORT OF THE VOCATIONAL COMMITTEE

The Vocational Committee of the Alumnae Association of Agnes Scott College has worked along the following lines:

1. Study of vocational counselling being done in colleges and universities.
2. Vocational census of our own alumnae.
3. Compiling of types of service given by vocational bureaus.
4. Compiling of information regarding placement work for college women.

Since we are filing full reports of the last three divisions of work in the Alumnae Office, I shall not attempt a detailed report.

Through the alumnae questionnaire we have been able to ascertain the vocations of one hundred and thirty-six (136) Agnes Scott Alumnae. We also obtained information in regard to the need for vocational counselling. Of the one hundred and thirty-six (136) questionnaires, seventy (70) left the question relative to undergraduate counselling unanswered, seven (7) thought it unnecessary, and fifty-nine (59) would have found it useful. In answer to the question concerning counsel now, eighty-six (86) left the question unanswered, ten (10) desired none, while thirty-nine (39) wished it. From these things desired, we are making certain recommendations to the committees which handle them.

We have placed on file in the alumnae office the addresses of twelve Vocational Bureaus with the service given by each, the salary at which a college woman may expect to begin work, and statements as to the difficulty or ease of placing college graduates who have had no professional training or experience.

There is also on file a list of Employment Agencies for college women, arranged according to vocations where certain lines of work are especially handled.

The first phase of the work has only been begun. We find many colleges and universities experimenting along the line of vocational counsel and personnel work. Most undergraduates now are planning to go into some work and many of them desire to enter professions. We consider the choice of one's life work most important and are eager that students choose intelligently with as many facts as possible before them about vocations and their own abilities. We would, therefore, recommend that the principal work of the committee for next year consist of a comparative study of the vocational counsel and personnel work for women done in colleges and universities.

We also suggest that the committee offer through President McCain their services to the college in any way he might think advisable and possible for undergraduates.

We are indebted to the Bureau of Vocational Information of New York City for most of the information we have collected, and would express our appreciation for the cordial help they have given us.

Respectfully submitted,

RUTH SCANDRETT,

Chairman.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON BEAUTIFYING GROUNDS AND BUILDINGS

The Committee has kept in touch with the college during the past year and has met with the usual cordial response.

The foundation planting of shrubbery outlined by Wachendorff Brothers, Florists of Atlanta, last year, has been made about Rebecca Scott Hall, and also at their suggestion the fountain has been removed from the front of Main Building. This change has not only improved the entrance to this building but has given the much needed parking space that has greatly facilitated traffic in and out of the campus.

The only definite work done by the Committee was the very pleasant task of choosing three plants as a gift from the Alumnae Association to the college at Christmas. These were two Dracenas for the chapel and one for the parlor of Main Building, which we feel so interested in, since we had a share in refurnishing it last year. These plants were very much appreciated and we hope are being enjoyed by the college community.

Respectfully submitted,

ALLIE (CANDLER) GUY,

REPORT OF ENTERTAINMENT COMMITTEE

The work of the Entertainment Committee of Agnes Scott Alumnae Association for 1924-25 has consisted chiefly in a Valentine Tea for the Senior class on Thursday, February 12th, at the Alumnae House. A program consisting of brief talks of the history of the Alumnae Association was given by Miss Alexander, Mrs. Donaldson and Miss Nell Buchanan, following which refreshments were served to about ninety guests.

The Committee has helped to plan with Miss Hopkins and Mrs. Thatcher the Alumnae Luncheon to be given by the Trustees on May 23rd. It will take charge of the table decorations, etc.

Respectfully submitted,

EUGENIA (JOHNSTON) GRIFFIN,

Chairman.

REPORT OF LOUISE McKINNEY PLAY CONTEST COMMITTEE

The Committee expended considerable effort during the year in bringing the Play Contest to the attention of the Alumnae. Many personal letters were written urging the entrance of contestants.

One member of the Committee compiled a "play dummy", giving full instructions as to the form, appearance, and general make-up of the manuscript of a play, together with a list of helpful books on the subject of play-writing. This material was sent to all "prospects", together with the conditions governing the contest.

In consultation with the donor of the Louise McKinney Play Prize the conditions were slightly changed. They are as follows:

"Each play submitted must be full length (approximately one hundred typewritten pages).

"Plays must be sent by January 1, 1925, to General Secretary, Alumnae Association, Agnes Scott College, Decatur, Ga. The plays will then be numbered and sent to judges.

"The Agnes Scott Alumnae Association has no option on the rights to the plays submitted. Contestants are urged to have manuscripts copyrighted and to hold in their possession the original manuscript, sending in the first carbon copy for the contest. Participation in the contest does not preclude marketing of plays by the author before or after the decision of the judges.

"There will be no award unless at least one of the three judges considers that there is some degree of craftsmanship or inherent sense of the theatre, or real inspiration in the play submitted.

"Announcement of the award will be made at Commencement, May, 1925."

One play was received and forwarded to the judges.

If criticism or suggestions regarding outline or draft of play is desired by any contestant she is asked to write for further information to any member of the Play Contest Committee.

Respectfully submitted,

MARY WALLACE KIRK,

Chairman.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON CLASS REUNIONS

The work of this Committee has consisted chiefly in letter-writing and verbal propoganda. During the past year letters have been written to all reunion classes seeking to arouse interest and urging them to return for commencement. With the help of our efficient Alumnae Secretary plans have been formulated for class organizations and much space given to reunions in the Alumnae Quarterly, and the present prospects are that there will be more girls back this year than ever before.

Respectfully submitted,

RUTH (SLACK) SMITH,

Chairman.

REPORT OF TREASURER OF ALUMNAE AID LEAGUE

April 28, 1925:

Received from former Treasurer,
M. W. Kirk .....	$113.98
Received from loans returned .....	250.00
Paid on exchange .....	.99
Balance on hand .....	$362.99
Donation .....	15.00
Total .....	$377.99

A record of the accounts of the Aid League has been placed in the files of the Alumnae Office.

The Chairman has prepared printed blanks, so that in future a girl may sign a note for the amount borrowed. This has not been done in the past.

A large number of applications for loans have been made to date, and we hope to be of service to as many of these girls as possible.

The Aid League is maintained only by subscription and returned loans. Please remember it, therefore, when in a subscribing mood.

Respectfully submitted,

BELLE B. COOPER,

Treasurer.

REPORT OF SCHOLARSHIP COMMITTEE

The Agnes Scott Alumnae Scholarship for the session 1925-26 has been awarded to Miss Virginia Wing, of 266 Ponce de Leon Avenue, Atlanta.

ETHEL (ALEXANDER) GAINES,

Chairman.

CURRICULUM COMMITTEE

My Dear Alumnae:

You will all be too proud, I am sure, when you learn that not nearly all of us have let our poor feeble brains and mental ambitions be entirely stagnated and submerged in the daily grind of keeping Johnny's ears clean, or struggling to keep down the gas bills.

(We know, of course, that those of us who are pursuing noble careers in the line of education, medicine, dramatics, music, business, religious work, etc., etc., are never letting their mental alertness be dulled in the slightest. But it is also interesting and very gratifying to know that lots of us who have chosen the humble career of matrimony and housekeeping are still interested in a few outside things.)

For please listen to this: Lots of our alumnae are planning to take one or more of our alumnae reading courses this year with their husbands! Our office has really been flooded with letters from interested alumnae from everywhere who want these courses, some for fireside study this winter, some for group or club study in different organizations. Already there have been about two hundred applications for courses. If you have not sent for yours they are all ready for you at the Alumnae Office, and will be sent you on receipt of one dollar (to cover expenses of printing, postage, etc.)

You remember that the subjects for the courses offered this winter are

- Modern European History,
- Modern Drama,
- Contemporary American Poetry,
- Art History,
- Sociology.

There have been requests from our alumnae for courses on anything from the teaching of French, to General Social Psychology. Some of the topics mentioned for courses are: the Bible, Mental Tests and Measurements, French Poetry, Modern Science, General Economics, etc. And so we hope by another year to include some of these different requests in a somewhat more varied program. In the meanwhile our program for this year has met with a most enthusiastic response. One alumna says, "I am so glad to see that all of the courses offered are on contemporary problems—and joys, too,—or their immediate background, and surely hope the plan materializes. It does sound promising."

The study outlines look most interesting and make one very eager to take them all. They have all been carefully and thoughtfully studied out by the professors, and we are assuredly deeply grateful to them for the many hours of work which they have put into the assembling of such a thorough and well-organized study of each subject.

In the poetry course Miss Laney has selected works and criticisms of our most noted contemporary poets. Miss McKinney's modern drama course you know is interesting, and will teach us many things we need to know about modern-day dramatists and plays. The history course is a painstaking and exhaustive study of the subject, and will be a real effort and a real joy to those who do it well. Miss Hearon has worked it out in detail so carefully that it will be very easy to follow, and should give to those who conscientiously do so, a thorough knowledge of the subject. The course in Art History is fascinating, with all its line of painters, sculptors, and other artists to read about. Miss Lewis, with her comprehension of the subject, has been able to make this one particularly so. Then there is the Sociology course by Miss Davis. She is thoroughly interested in the subject and so can give us an inspirational view of it.

Good luck and best wishes to all of you in your winter's study, wherever or whatever it maybe. Write what you would be interested to study. We want to know the things that appeal to the most of our alumnae.

Very sincerely yours,

JANE (HARWELL) RUTLAND,

Chairman of the Curriculum Committee.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MINUTES

The Alumnae Council held its spring meeting on Thursday, May 21, with seven members present.

Miss Hopkins reported that she had noticed a marked increase in the interest shown by alumnae, especially in remarks made about the Trustees' Luncheon and the Alumnae Quarterly.

It was reported that an instructor in drama composition, Miss Nan Stephens, had been secured for next year.

The Alumnae Council discussed placing a trellis covered with honey-suckle over the garbage cans by the Tea Room side door. Plans for renovating Mr. Dieckman's studio were also brought forward.

It was reported that dinner will be held at night next year. Each student is to turn in six napkins at the beginning of the year, and the laundering of these is to be cared for by the college. Smaller tables were advocated.

Suggestions for cutting down college expenses were advanced, and also suggestions for helping college girls make money by such methods as tea room work, etc.

As there was no further business, the meeting was adjourned.

Respectfully submitted,

MARGARET BLAND, Secretary.

REPORT OF THE RICHMOND, VIRGINIA CLUB

The Richmond Club was organized in December, 1924. The first meeting was held during Miss McKinney's visit to us, when she told us about the plans for the enlargement of Agnes Scott and the new alumnae clubs. It was a great pleasure to find fourteen Agnes Scott girls in Richmond. They are:

Josephine Logan, Beth McClure, Margaret McDow, Elizabeth Doggett, Mrs. Motte Martin, Dr. India Hunt, Mary White Caldwell, Mrs. W. A. Williams, Mrs. John J. Wicker, Jr., Mrs. H. J. Williams, Mrs. Robert A. Towers, Louise Sanders, Louise Payne, Nannie Campbell.

At the second meeting officers were elected, the report of the nominating committee being accepted. Beth McClure was elected president, Jo Logan secretary, and Mrs. H. J. Williams, treasurer. One meeting was given to making three beautiful posters which were used in connection with College Day in the high school and two girls' private schools.

In February the Club gave a tea to which some high school girls were invited. Every phase of Agnes Scott life was presented to them through pictures, pamphlets, annuals, cross word puzzles, and conversation. (The last being the most effective). The thing that we are very proud of is that we feel we can claim one of this year's freshmen as our very own. Her home is in Richmond, and she never would have considered going to Agnes Scott except for our Richmond Club.

We are young yet, but we hope to serve our Alma Mater this year and show that our love for her is stronger than ever. Our power to serve has been increased by the splendid new members the Training School has brought us and we are hoping for a successful year.

1903—Secretary, Eileen Gober, 515 Cherokee St., Marietta, Ga.

Emily Winn, with her father and brother, landed in this country in July for a year's leave from their mission work in Korea. After spending a few weeks with relatives in Decatur and Greenville, they went to Montreat in August for the Foreign Mission Conference.

Grace Hardie and her mother were in New York City for the early spring and summer, going later to the White Mountains for the remainder of the summer. They will be in Greenville, S. C. for the winter.

Hattie Blackford Williams spent a pleasant summer at Massanetta Spring, Va., where she and her daughter, Harriett, had charge of the book room. Harriett expects to enter Agnes Scott next year.

Eileen Gober visited Laura Candler Wilds during July in Hendersonville, N. C., where Dr. Wilds is the pastor of the Presbyterian Church. There are three little Wilds—Mary Scott, age five; Annie, age three and Murphey Candler, age one and a half.

Marian Bucher went to Montreat for the Leadership Training Conference in August.

Juliet Cox Coleman has recently moved to Durham, N. C. Her husband, Dr. Cornelius Coleman, has been pastor of the Citadel Church in Charleston, S. C. for some years but has resigned this pastorate to accept the charge of a church in Durham. Her address is 418 Cleveland St., Durham, N. C.

Audrey Turner Bennet lives at 818 Piedmont Avenue, Atlanta. Her husband, Mr. M. C. Bennet, is Governor Walker's private secretary.

1904—Secretary, Lois (Johnson) Aycock, (Mrs. C. G.), 170 Penn Ave., Atlanta.

We sympathize deeply with Janie Curry in the loss of her mother during the early part of the year. Janie is at 1730 Glenwood Place, Memphis. She lives a very busy life, helping her father in his pastorate.

Clifford Hunter is principal of the Primary department of one hundred and eighty boarding pupils in the Southern Baptist College, Hwang Hsien, Shantung Province, China.

1910—Secretary, Agnes (Nicolassen) Wharton, (Mrs. T. J.), Central City, Ky. ~~Delaware~~

Mildred Thompson is the superintendent of the department for the Feeble Minded, State Board of Control, Minnesota. Her address is 369 Laurel Ave., Apt. 204, St. Paul, Minn.

New Address: Mrs. Overdown Whitmire (Flora Crowe), 77 Prospect St., East Orange, New Jersey.

1911—Secretary, Theodosia (Willingham) Anderson, (Mrs. W.), 63 Avery Drive, Atlanta.

Adelaide Cunningham is teaching at the Commercial High School in Atlanta. She is also running a paper, the "Co-ed Leader," which, by the way, was entered in a contest at Columbia University last spring and won a silver loving cup.

Louise (Wells) Parsons has two little girls, the youngest, Jean, being eight months old. She is living in Massachusetts.

I wonder how many of us know that Mary Leech graduated from Johns Hopkins Training School for Nurses several years ago?

Eleanor (Coleman) Burchard has a little son, Preston, two years old. Her husband is with the U. S. Geological Survey in Washington, D. C. Miss Colton, our ex-French teacher, visited her for a few days last February and spoke before one of the circles of the Central Presbyterian Church in Washington.

Lucile Alexander, as you know, is head of the French Department at Agnes Scott, and is quite an important member of the faculty.

Mary Wallace Kirk toured Europe this summer. Her father was sent to Wales as a delegate to the Presbyterian convention.

Theodosia (Willingham) Anderson has two children, a little girl four, and a boy twenty months. The little boy weighed only two and a half pounds when he was born, but now is a fine specimen—so much for having a baby specialist for a Daddy.

(Secretary's note: Girls, of 1911, if I have made any mistakes about you in this very limited edition, please let me know and I will correct them. Those of you who know anything interesting about yourselves please communicate with me before the next quarterly. T. W. A.)

1916—Secretary, Louise Hutcheson, McDonough St., Decatur, Ga.

Eloise (Gay) Brawley, (Mrs. Foote), was a guest at the Hoace banquet in the Alumnae House on the evening of October 8th. Eloise, you will remember, was one of the charter members of Hoace.

Margaret Phythian spent the summer studying in Paris and in Lausanne.

1917—Secretary, Laurie (Caldwell) Tucker, (Mrs. J. H.), 1310 S. Howard Ave., Tampa, Fla.

Mary Alice Eakes (Mrs. Lester Rumble), is living at 20 Vermont Terrace, Southington, Conn. this winter, while her husband is studying at Yale.

May Smith is at Chicago University again this winter. Her sister Louise has gone up to be with her and to get her degree at Chicago.

Spott Payne visited Mary Brock Mallard, '19, and Maggie Leyburn, '18, at their apartment in Atlanta during the first week of October. Spott is one of the Deans at Lucy Cobb Institute in Athens, Ga.

Vallie Young White (Mrs. E. S. Archibald), has been elected president of the recently formed Agnes Scott club in Birmingham, Alabama.

Augusta Skeen was at Columbia University this summer.

1918—Secretary, Margaret Leyburn, 683 Peachtree St., Atlanta.

Rose Harwood (Mrs. Lee B. Taylor, of Brownsville, Tenn.), announces the arrival of a daughter, Melissa Jane, of September twenty-third. Melissa Jane is already registered as a member of the class of '47.

Annie White Marshall studied at Columbia University this summer.

1919—Secretary, Alameda Hutcheson, McDonough St., Decatur, Ga.

Jane Bernhardt is touring Europe.

Mary Brock Mallard has a new position with Hancock-Hubbard Printing Co., Atlanta.

Lenora Gray, ex-'19 writes that she has just completed her sixth year of housekeeping. She has two children, George L., Jr., aged 4, and Jean Gray, aged 3 months. Jean is destined for the class of '47 too. Lenora has moved to Sumner, Mississippi.

Julia Lake Skinner visited the college during the first week in October.

1920—Secretary, Mary (Burnett) Thorington (Mrs. W. L.), Taft, Texas.

Laura Stockton Molloy spent the summer in New York, studying at Columbia. She and Mary Colley, ex-'24, shared an apartment on Riverside Drive.

Margaret Bland had a lovely summer studying with Margaret Phythian, '16, in Paris. They spent the last few weeks of their stay traveling in the Alps.

Alice Cooper has gone to New York for the winter. She is living with Elizabeth Wilson at 431 Riverside Drive, Apt. 1. We have come to the conclusion that this apartment is made of India rubber, since it never seems to reach capacity, but is always hospitably open to any A. S. C. girls in New York.

Anne Houston has moved permanently to Lewisburg, Tenn.

Our sympathy is extended to Eugenia Peed, who lost her father during the summer. Prof. Peed was for thirty-six years the head of the mathematics department of Emory University. Eugenia is at the Carnegie Library in Atlanta this winter.

Margaret Winslett visited the college during September.

Margaret (Shive) Bellingrath studied at Columbia University last summer.

1921—Secretary, Frances Charlotte Markley, Miss Fine's School, Princeton, N. J.

Lina Parry is working with the American Red Cross in Atlanta.

Mary Louise Green, Caroline Agee, Marguerite Cousins, Eleanor Carpenter, and Frances Markley studied at Columbia this summer. In addition to Columbia, Eleanor studied ballet and musical comedy dancing at the Ned Weyburn Studios. Caroline is spending the winter in New York, and will get her M. A. in English. In the intermission between the summer and fall session she has been having gay adventures with a job.

Mary Anne (Justice) Miracle writes a most interesting account of her honeymoon at an engineering camp in Kentucky, twenty-two miles from a railroad. "You can well imagine how far we are from civilization. The roads are unspeakable—rough and narrow with huge mud-holes like those Christian had to struggle through to reach the little wicket gate. The natives are the most pathetic, abandoned creatures I have ever seen, and we rarely see any "furriners" as they call us. The arrival of the tri-weekly mail and the occasional visits of the engineers from the office are the main events in our round of days. It really is a wonderful existence though, camping in the heart of the Kentucky mountains. This Red Bird country is lovely with its rugged ridges, virgin forests and rocky creeks. We fish, ride, tramp, swim, and enjoy life generally. Civilization with its luxuries and hectic rush seems very remote, for we have turned the corner, and are in the midst of the 'great adventure.'"

Isabel (Carr) Battle has moved to Harriman, Tenn.

Eugenia (Johnston) Griffin has moved to Tifton, Ga.

Fanny McCaa is studying at the Seminary in Richmond, Virginia.

Charlotte Newton is teaching at the University of Florida.

Janef Preston is working for her master's degree at Columbia University this winter. Janef bids fair to be the most famous member of '21. Not only has she had a poem—"The Aristocrat"—accepted by "The Bookman" recently, but she is included in Mr. Braithwaite's anthology of the best magazine verse printed last year. The poem "To Rescue Today From Oblivion" is the one which was selected for this volume. It was first published in the pages of the Alumnae Quarterly. Her address is 411 W. 116th Street.

Martha Stansfield was awarded her master's degree in Latin at Chicago University this summer. She attained this degree in the shortest time allowed for the work, and handed in such an excellent thesis that she was told that with a few changes and additions, it will do to present for her doctor's degree.

Helen Wayt and Aimee D. (Glover) Little were visitors at the Alumnae House for the opening of college.

Frances Whitfield is staying at home this winter. Her address is Hawkinsville, Ga.

1922—Secretary, Julia Jameson, Franklin, Tenn. Ruth Virden and Ethel Ware studied at Columbia University this summer. Ruth is doing

Y. W. C. A. work at Wilmington, N. C. this winter. Ethel is teaching again at the North Avenue Presbyterian School in Atlanta. She is secretary of the Atlanta branch of the A. A. U. W.

Jeannette Archer is looking forward to the New York State Board Examinations in January. She writes that learning to be a nurse is the most fascinating work imaginable, but also the most work. Her address is 37 E. 71st St., New York.

Gena (Callaway) Merry has moved to 1150 Glenn Ave., Augusta, Ga.

Lucia Murchison will do graduate work in Social Economics at Johns-Hopkins University this winter.

Frances Oliver is working in the bank at Plains, Ga.

Phyllis Strickland, infant daughter of Helen (LeGate) Strickland, was the recipient of much flattering attention at a tea given by her mother last July. For her mother's sake she sweetly endured with a dignified aloofness much cuddling and handling by the guests, and bore up well under the heavy strain. Invited to meet Phyllis were Misses Mary Markley, Frances Markley, Eleanor Carpenter, Ethel Ware, Caroline Agee, Ruth Virden and Elizabeth Wilson.

Nell Buchanan conducted a party of A. S. C. girls to Europe this summer. She is doing quite a variety of things this fall. She has a class in English at the college in Marion, Va., is studying music and taking a business course. After Christmas, she and Ruth Evans are planning to go to New York to study.

Ruth Evans was a guest at the Alumnae House in October. She is on her way to Florida to make a fortune selling real estate with Liz Brown.

Carolyn Moore visited Susye (Mims) Lazenby '23 in October.

Ruth Scandrett spent the summer in Europe, going over with the Student Pilgrimage under the management of the Y. W. C. A. to study student problems in Europe. Dick Scandrett '24, was also in the party. They visited the university towns of England, France, Germany, Holland, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, and Switzerland. Ruth is back at Florida State College for Women this year.

Althea Stephens was a guest at the Alumnae House in September. She and her mother drove up from Jacksonville, Fla. to Russellville, Ky., where Althea is head of the music department at Logan College.

Elizabeth Wilson has turned from editing to advertising. She is now connected with the Erickson Company in New York.

Alice Whipple is in Cordele this winter.

1923—Secretary, Emily Guille, 3400 Brook Road, Richmond, Va.

Clara Mae Allen is at Columbia this winter studying for her M. A.

Imogene is staying at home and plans to have several months in Florida with her family this winter.

Ruth Almond is teaching again in the High School at Leesburg, Fla. Algebra and Plane Geometry don't keep her very busy and she is having time to be a social butterfly.

A nice long letter from Dot (Bowron) Collins tells of her beginning housekeeping. When she was first married, her mother was not well, so she stayed at home, but now she is to have an apartment all her own, and she is busy collecting linen and tin ware and practicing her culinary arts. She and Lib Ransom and Margaret Colville are to be in Mary Evelyn Arnold's wedding.

Nannie Campbell is working at the Woman's Exchange in Richmond.

Helen (Faw) Mull has moved to Woodlawn Apt. B-2, Iowa City, Iowa. Her husband is connected with the University there.

Maud (Foster) Jackson says that her wee son Ernest L., Jr., whose birthday is August 2, composes all the news for her just now. She says she has her hands full keeping house and keeping him.

Jessie Dean Cooper is teaching at home (Centreville, Ala.), this year.

Mary Harris is teaching Latin at DeFuniak Springs, Fla.

Quenelle Harrold is in charge of the Georgia College Placement Bureau in Atlanta this winter. She had a lovely summer as counselor at a camp in Wisconsin, and is now enjoying life in her own apartment on Piedmont Ave., which she shares with Geraldine Dietz, a Cleveland, (Ohio) girl who is teaching music in Atlanta.

Edith McCallie has accepted a position as teacher in the Fulton High School in Atlanta.

Lois McClain breezed into the Alumnae House one week-end in October. She is still working with the bank in Jasper, Ga.

Hilda McConnell is back at the Atlanta Normal School this winter. She is the head of the Psychology department, and faculty councillor for the student government association. Hilda was bridesmaid in two weddings this summer, took a motor trip to North Carolina, and held down a three weeks job with the Southern Woman's Educational Alliance.

Susye (Mims) Lazenby has been working in the Monroe County Bank of Alabama, of which her husband is cashier.

Pearl Smith is teaching in Rome, Ga. again this winter. She says she is so fat we would never recognize the P. Smith of Agnes Scott days.

Mary Hewlett is teaching in Decatur.

Margaret Ransom (Mrs. I. M. Sheffield, has bought a lovely new cream brick bungalow at number 43 E. Wesley Road, Atlanta, and is keeping house.

Christine Evans motored to Atlanta in October and visited her cousin, Ann Heyes, at the college.

Hall McDougall is teaching just 15 miles from Russellville, Ky., so she and Walkie and Elizabeth Perry see each other often.

Lucie Howard is at home this winter in Lynchburg. She made a visit to Atlanta this summer to be a bridesmaid in a wedding. Lucie brings joy to the secretary's heart with her promptness in answering petitions.

Minnie Lee (Clarke) Cordle's son is seven months old. She says he will make a fine football player at the rate he goes now.

Eleanor Hyde's "glorified title," as she calls it, is head of the French department of St. Mary's College, Dallas, Texas. She hopes to start an A. S. club in Dallas this winter.

Jane Knight is at home this winter.

Eloise Knight is teaching at her home town (Safety Harbour, Fla.) this winter. She has four little sisters attending Agnes Scott this year. Who but a Florida family could afford such a thing?

Elizabeth (Lockhart) Davis is busy getting acquainted with Manganet Davis, Jr., who arrived Sept. 8th.

Josephine Logan is in Richmond, Va. for her second year at the Training School. There are rumors as to her kind of work hereafter. She came by the Alumnae House in September to see her young sister properly enrolled as a member of the class of '29.

Martha (McIntosh) Nall is moving to Miami—to live there, she says, just long enough to make their fortune, then come home again. She said she made an attempt at teaching last winter, but will only keep the apartment this winter.

Mary Stewart McLeod taught last winter, but she is in North Carolina now helping the family farm. She says when she goes home to Florida she intends to study Psychology and china painting.

Anna Meade is the same Anna, staying at home, but flying around at a great rate. She is one of the leading spirits in the Agnes Scott Club in Birmingham.

Myrtle Murphy is teaching the sixth grade at Conway, S. C.

Lib Ransom says she is tired of teaching, and will be a lady of leisure this winter.

Catherine Shields is teaching Latin in the Newnan High School, Newnan, Ga.

Lucy Timmerman is taking the Pastor's Assistant Course at the Baptist Bible Institute in New Orleans.

Nancy Tripp is working for Allyn and Bacon, a publishing concern in Atlanta. She says their office is quite an Agnes Scott settlement. Pete Hutcheson, Georgia May Little, Clyde Passmore, Margaret Neal and Rosalie Robison are all working there. Nancy's address is changed to 52 Drewry St., Atlanta.

Eva Wassum moved to Charlotte, N. C. her address being 502 Central Ave. She taught nature study during the summer at a Girl Scout Camp—Camp Juliette Low. Betty Floding was one of her pupils. This winter she is teaching in the Piedmont High School in Charlotte.

Emily Quille was counsellor at Miss Randolph's camp in New England during the summer. She is studying at the Training School at Richmond, Va. this winter. Other A. S. C. girls there are Beth McClure, Fan McCaa and Claudia Sentelle.

Beth (Flake) Cole has moved to 50 W. 15th St., Atlanta.

Philip Gilchrist is back at Agnes Scott as an instructor in Chemistry.

Lucile (Little) Morgan was a guest at the Alumnae House during October.

Margaret Brenner spent the summer visiting her relatives in Germany.

1924—Secretary, Dick Scandrett, Agnes Scott College, Decatur, Ga.

Francis Anis is working in the bank at her hometown, Fordyce, Arkansas, "on the cotton belt."

Dell Bernhardt and Margaret Powell traveled in Europe together last summer. They are both at home this winter.

Rebecca Bivings is teaching in the Emory University grammar school, Atlanta. Her pupils are all children of Emory professors.

Janice Brown and Mary Green are teaching in Honea Path, S. C. again this winter. They spent the summer traveling throughout the west, stopping for a six weeks course at the University of California at Berkeley, and dipping down into Mexico long enough to witness a genuine bull fight.

Helen Lane Comfort is studying at the New York Library School this winter. Her address is 431 Riverside Drive, Apt. 1.

Beulah Davidson is back at Tate during the week, and back at the Alumnae House for the week-ends. She sees Lois McClain frequently, and Sine Caldwell and she have established the Alumnae House as a half-way station. Why don't more Agnes Scott girls do this?

Marguerite Dobbs is teaching in East Point, Ga.

Martha Eakes has found the perfect job. She teaches spelling at the Wm. A. Bass Junior High School in Atlanta, and lives at home, where she enjoys the use of her own automobile and the proximity to Emory.

Nancy Evans is teaching at Arkansas College, Batesville, Ark. Her younger sister, Lynn, is living with her, and studying at the college.

'24 is well represented on the campus this winter. Daisy Frances Smith is a member of the English department, Cora Fraser Morton of the Physics department, Dick Scandrett is Secretary to the registrar and Dean, Polly Stone is taking Nell Buchanan's place as Alumnae Secretary, and Frances (Gilliland) Stukes may be said to belong to the Psychology department.

Margaret Griffin is working in Atlanta.

Vivian Little has returned to Atlanta after her year of study in Paris.

Lil McAlpine was a guest at the college in September. She is teaching again at Salem College, Winston-Salem, N. C. Lil, Frances Stukes, Dick Scandrett and Polly Stone had lunch together one day in Frances's lovely new home on College Place.

Margaret McDow is teaching Bible and coaching athletics at the Synodical college in Holly Springs, Miss. Margaret came by the Alumnae House on her way over, and spent a night with Margaret Bland, '20. The two Margarets happen to be cousins.

Frances Myers is having a very gay good time in Kobe, Japan. Elma Swaney came by the Alumnae House in October on her way to visit in Richmond, Va. She says she is half-way planning to visit Fran in the spring.

Virginia Ordway spent several weeks of the early fall with Anne Gambrell, ex-'23 in Anderson, S. C. On her way home she stopped by Atlanta to get her bridesmaid's dress for Mary Evelyn Arnold's wedding.

Melissa Smith is studying at Columbia University this winter. She and Brownie are there together, and they say they are having quite as much fun as they used to here.

Pauline Wheeler visited Hilda McConnell and body in Cordele is getting married and that she and Alice Whipple '22 have about decided that the fever is contagious.

Augusta Thomas is teaching in Marion, Ala-Dick Scandrett in October. She says every-bama.

Elizabeth Askew is back at Tate, Ga. this year.

Elizabeth Henry is at home in Augusta, Ga. She and Emmie Ficklen both have little sisters in the class of '29.

Virginia Burt spent the summer traveling in Europe.

1925—Secretary, Belle Walker, Stillmore, Ga. Margery Speake is teaching French, English and Bible at Palmer College, DeFuniak Springs, Florida.

Martha Jackson taught French and Latin in the summer school at Fulton High in Atlanta. This winter she is teaching five classes of Latin a day at Reynolds High School in Winston-Salem, N. C. She says, "this place reminds me of Agnes Scott, for you surely do have to work."

Lucille Phippen spent the summer learning to use the typewriter, "just four years too late," as she puts it. Lucille was probably thinking of all those Bible notes she took. This winter she is teaching Mathematics at Woodbury Hall, a girls finishing school in Atlanta.

Elizabeth Woltz visited the two Catherines in Asheville, N. C. this summer. She is teaching in Belmont, holding down the chair of English in the Senior High School. She says that the beauty of her position is that she is near enough to run home every week-end.

Floy Sadler traveled through New England this summer, spending most of the time in Maine, but stopping at New York City, Lake George, and Boston, and going over into Canada. She is enrolled at the Carnegie Library School in Atlanta this winter. Her address is 53 E. 14th St.

Julia Pope writes joyously and shamelessly that she loafed all summer and never enjoyed anything more. She also paid a short visit to Louisa Duls in Little Switzerland, N. C. Now she is teaching Latin in Lanett, Alabama. Julia is another member of '25 who sent a little sister to swell the numbers of the freshman class at A. S. C. this year.

Pocahontas Wight went to Europe in June, and after touring a while settled in Paris where she is studying violin and expression.

Charlotte Smith was operated on during the summer for appendicitis. She spent August getting over that, and then in September started teaching French and English in the High School in Shellman, Ga.

Catherine Carrier stayed most of the summer at the family camp near Chimney Rock, N. C., where Catherine Randolph and Elizabeth Woltz visited her. After November, she will journey down to her family's summer home in Fort Myers, Florida, and spend the winter resting up from four strenuous years at Agnes Scott.

Anne McKay is living at home and teaching in the public schools of Macon. She spent the week-end of October 10 at the college.

Frances Moore is teaching at Tonnille, Ga.

Eugenia Thompson is directing recreation at the Avondale Cotton Mills in Birmingham, Ala.

Elizabeth Griffin is teaching in Dublin, Ga. Her address is 505 Bellevue Ave.

Ruth Johnston is at Clinton, La., teaching Latin in Silliman College. She has a young sister in the freshman class at Agnes Scott this year.

Agatha Deaver is spending the winter in Florida with her family.

Emily Spivey is teaching in Sulligent, Ala. She writes that she is very hard-boiled with her physical ed. classes, but that under a crusty exterior she often carries a quaking heart.

Tootsie Janes is in Orlando, Florida, selling real estate for the Hollywood Company.

Louise Buchanan and Carolyn Smith are working with the Retail Credit Company in Atlanta.

Isabel Ferguson is with the Community Employment Service in Atlanta. She is Polly Stone's successor, and Polly succeeded Lucile (Little) Morgan '23, and Lucile succeeded Elizabeth Wilson '22. They can't run that office without an Agnes Scott graduate, it seems.

Martha Lin Manly is giving two little girls private lessons at her home in Dalton. She spent the week-end of October 10th at the college.

Emily Zellars is teaching in North Carolina. Belle Walker is teaching in the High School at Stillmore, Ga. She has charge of the History and English departments. Belle visited Elizabeth Blalock at Jonesboro, Ga., and Eunice Kell at Pascagoula, Miss., this summer.

FEBRUARY 22nd, FOUNDERS' DAY, CELEBRATED BY RADIO PROGRAM

A nation-wide Agnes Scott day! A coast to coast celebration of Founders' Day, which is made possible this year for the first time by radio!

On February 22nd the college always celebrates the anniversary of the founding of Agnes Scott. The students are given a holiday and the formal dinner that night over which the seniors preside in colonial costume, is one of the big events of the year, and a memory long cherished by alumnae. This year we are planning for a celebration, not only on the campus by the immediate college community, but an observance of the day wherever there are Agnes Scott alumnae, and by alumnae we mean those girls who have at any time since the founding of the college been students there.

On Monday, February 22nd, all the Agnes Scott clubs are to meet for seven o'clock dinner, and in towns where the alumnae group is too small for the formation of a club, the girls are to get together on this night for this first great nation-wide Founders' Day program.

Promptly at eight o'clock, over WSB, the broadcasting station of the Atlanta Journal, President McCain's voice will greet his "girls", scattered over the entire United States, but meeting together at this time, and bound together always by the tie of love for their Alma Mater. An hour's program has been arranged, consisting for the most part of music. The college glee club and orchestra will furnish numbers. There will be solos by Frances (Gilliland) Stukes, '24, and Helen Bates, '26, and you may expect to hear the peppy swing of "Hottentot" at some time during the evening. The program will close with Agnes Scott girls from California to Maine joining the radio voices of the glee club in singing the "Alma Mater".

Each Agnes Scott club will have as its guest at dinner that night some representative from the college, and before the radio program begins, local songs and after-dinner speeches will be in order. In the small towns where there are only one or two alumnae, these girls are planning to tune in on their own or someone else's radio, and get the program from the college at eight o'clock, Atlanta time.

And, Clubs, and Individuals too, from Florida to Washington state, won't you telegraph us that night when you begin getting the program? These telegrams can be relayed over the radio, and will form a most interesting feature of the evening. Address telegrams to Atlanta Journal Radio Broadcasting Station, Atlanta Biltmore Hotel.

It will be a day marked forever in red on the calendar of the Greater Agnes Scott—February 22nd, 1926—our first great national Agnes Scott day!

PLAYWRITING CLASS PRESENTS FIRST BILL ON FEBRUARY 20th

The need has long been felt at Agnes Scott for a course which should offer to the student in the field of the drama what English 318 has been offering in poetry, and English 304 in connection with the short story. The year 1925-26 has seen the putting on of this course, sponsored by the Alumnae Association, and taught by Miss Nan Stephens, herself a successful playwright, and at the same time, an Agnes Scott alumna. Six upper-classmen and two graduate students have been working through the fall on the technicalities of playwriting.

From eight one-act plays written in the class during the first semester and submitted to judges chosen from the English faculty, four have been selected for immediate production, and are now in rehearsal by the Blackfriars, under the direction of Miss Gooch.

The bill which is to be presented Saturday night, February 20th, includes "The Charm of the Hawthorne", a delightful fantasy by Elizabeth McCallie, '27; "Aunt Teenie", an atmospheric play depicting the grim power of the sea, by Grace Augusta Ogden, '26; "The Darned Dress", a play of the North Carolina mountains by Margaret Bland, '20, and "Values", by Polly Stone, '24, which deals with an oft-recurring problem of the conventional modern family.

The class has made a splendid beginning, and in due time we are hoping that the Agnes Scott playwriting course will be as famous as the 47 Workshop at Harvard.

CONTRIBUTORS TO THIS ISSUE OF THE QUARTERLY

Isabel Fitz Randolph, B.A., Barnard College, B.S., Teachers College, is Associate Professor of Physical Education at Agnes Scott. The accompanying article is from an address delivered by her at the dedication of the new Bucher Scott Gymnasium on the campus.

Quenelle Harrold, B.A., Agnes Scott College, is in charge of the Georgia College Placement Bureau, under the direction of Mr. Cator Woolford, in Atlanta. This bureau is the first of its kind to be established in the south.

Samuel Guerry Stukes, B.A., Davidson College, A.M., Princeton University, B.D., Princeton Seminary, is Professor of Philosophy and Education at Agnes Scott. For the past few years he has also held the position of registrar for the college.

Clyde E. Pettus is a graduate of Agnes Scott in the class of 1907, and is on the staff of the Atlanta Carnegie Library.

Frances Charlotte Markley, A.B., Agnes Scott, '21, is teaching in Miss Fine's School, Princeton, New Jersey.

SELECTION OF STUDENTS AT AGNES SCOTT

We believe that a brief explanation of our method of selecting students will be of some interest to our Alumnae and perhaps clear up some misunderstanding of the position taken by the college.

Our plan of selection has been developing gradually through a period of years. For a long while we have had many more applications than we could accept. Under our old method applicants were accepted in order of registration. Thus it happened in many cases that poorly prepared students who registered early were admitted and superior students who registered late could not be accommodated. This situation led to the adoption of our present method of selecting our new students.

Occasionally we hear some criticisms of the principle of selection on the ground that it is unfair to students who plan their college course early and register far in advance. We admit that it does bring disappointment to some applicants but we are convinced that our policy is entirely fair. After the college authorities make a thorough investigation of the applicant and reach the conclusion that she is poorly prepared and will in all probability have trouble with her college work here, or have reason to believe that she is not the type of student who will adjust herself to our student body or will not be in sympathy with our ideals, is it not fair to her, to the college, and to our students to reject her application? We need to remember that Agnes Scott does a particular type of work leading to the one degree and it is no reflection upon the applicant if we feel that it would be for her good to go elsewhere. Furthermore, Agnes Scott spends quite a sum of money on each student. The cost to the college is much more than the student pays in tuition and other fees. This is necessarily true if we are to keep up our high standard of equipment and instruction. We are able to do this because of the endowment funds which friends and alumnae have contributed. In fairness to those who have given us this help we feel that the resources of the college should be used in the education of the most worthy students. This is our position as to the fairness and justice of a plan of selection.

I wish to state some details of our method. An applicant may register at any time, even late in the summer, and gain admission. However we urge registration in the fall or early winter before the opening of the session when the student expects to enter. After registration we begin to make our investigation of the applicant and we hope to make this even more far-reaching and searching than it has been in the past, for we are calling on our alumnae to help us. We secure all possible information and after we have the complete preparatory school records—which is usually about June fifteenth—we make our selection of new students, reserving fifteen or twenty dormitory spaces which are gradually filled during the summer. In this way, as stated above, unusually well prepared and highly recommended applicants may gain admission even with a late registration. Our actual selection is based upon the following information: (1) the preparation of the student for college work as indicated by the preparatory school record; (2) the results of a general intelligence test which is required of all applicants; (3) information regarding the applicant's character and personality; (4) the time of registration (well prepared acceptable applicants who register early will of course be given preference over those who register at a later date).

The results of this plan of selection have been most gratifying. Our number of automatic exclusions has been reduced tremendously. We have more students doing high grade work in the first year than ever before, and above all we are doing more in realizing the Agnes Scott Ideal which means so much to every loyal alumna.

The continued success of this plan depends on the co-operation of all who can help us in learning more about our applicants. We urge our alumnae to help us by sending us the names of high school seniors whom they would recommend and urge too that they write us fully and frankly regarding any of our applicants whom they may know. More than all others our alumnae understand the type of student we want at Agnes Scott. Help us to carry on!

THE DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND PHYSICAL EDUCATION IN A LIBERAL ARTS COLLEGE

The modern conception of health might revert for its inspiration to that period in the past when we are told that "God saw everything that He had made, and behold, it was good". For that is the basis of the newer conception of health which presents the body as a gift and a responsibility on which to build. We do not strive for the perfect body merely to have it so, but we look upon it as being a necessity because of the fact that it is the cement by which the mind and soul attain their best, the sine qua non of the whole. Health makes possible the unhandicapped freedom of mind and spirit.

The relation of the Department of Physical Education at Agnes Scott to the other departments is largely based on the inter-relations of mind and body. To get full value out of the four years of college, a student must have a background of control, of wholesomeness, keenness, and a sense of lack of strain.

The problems of student health are, in general, those by which we are confronted in every department of education. First of all, the difficulty of getting the emphasis in the right place. Many are the discouraging little freshmen, and upper-classmen too, who do their daily exercise or go on a hike merely to put it down on the exercise chart, or receive a better grade at the end of the semester. They have missed the point entirely, and as in other phases of education, the grade is apt to become to them the important thing, rather than that for which the grade stands.

The second problem is the student who builds health merely for health's sake, and does not see that health is for the sake of something beyond, and not an objective in itself.

Thirdly comes the task of supplanting the unreal by the real—of making it the thing to play the game rather than to be the spectator, to have hundreds of participants in a sport rather than to turn out one Olympic swimmer, or one champion team.

And lastly is that problem which is so very universal in all lines, and even in the life of the individual. It is the difficulty of making the commonplace seem interesting, of attaching importance to the routine of health building, of putting color into the repetition of health habits,—trivial, yet all-important.

In the facing and solution of all these problems the new Bucher Scott Gymnasium means a great deal. It furnishes us actual means to attain the end for some of them. It makes attractive all phases of the work, and from its impetus has come an enthusiasm in the health work, that has produced better results in one year than we have formerly attained in five, handicapped as we have been with poor equipment.

Not only within the walls of the gymnasium is the work of the physical education department carried on. On the athletic field, the tennis courts, hockey ground, outdoor basketball court, at Pine Lodge camp, in the May Day dances in the new outdoor theatre, through every phase of campus life runs the scarlet thread of health. The recreational value of sports, antidoting the stress and strain of college life, the possibilities for developing through sports absolute values in honesty, fairness, good sportsmanship and leadership, give them their high place in the college program.

A building is a structure of stone and mortar, but the new Bucher Scott Gymnasium at Agnes Scott shall never be merely that. Our very keen hope for it is that it will mean the development in the students of a health conscience and consciousness—a strengthening and using of the splendid resources that come with a perfect development. But that is not all. Health—to infinity—is life, and life is a gift, not to tarnish or ill use, but with which to build more stately mansions for our souls.

NATIONAL STUDENT CONFERENCE FOR DISCUSSION OF THE WORLD COURT HELD AT PRINCETON, NEW JERSEY, DECEMBER 14, 15, 1925

My impressions of the conference are of a decidedly mixed variety. Nevertheless, I realize that the dominant feeling is one of great relief that undergraduates should at last come together to discuss matters of national concern—no matter though the discussion itself be of questionable value. There were two meetings at which the students en masse carried on discussion—to one of these they invited the general public.

The first general meeting was supposed to be a debate between Senator Lenroot and Clarence Darrow on "Should the United States Join the Permanent Court of International Justice." I suppose Mr. Lenroot felt it incumbent upon him to uphold the legend of senatorial speeches. He did that. Mr. Darrow was much more interested in Darrow than he was in the World Court. As a result the points scarcely clashed.

The discussion groups, about fifteen in number, were one of the fine things of the conference. I went to the group headed by General Allen, commander of the Rhine

Army of Occupation, where the discussion was centered on the Locarno treaty. Most of the delegates in this group were men, but I did admire the women's part in the discussion.

The speeches at the last meeting were worth the entire conference in inspiring the students and giving them a view of their relation to life inside and outside college experience. Dr. George Vincent, the president of the Rockefeller Foundation, really made a brilliant appeal to the students for sympathy and understanding, under the guise of a talk on Human Nature in International Events.

Although the unexpected depths of ignorance which the undergraduates at times showed was rather disturbing, there was something very fine and promising in the group that met at Princeton. Students of today are finding out things that those of a college generation ago missed. They are capable of splendid things and they are discovering the way to accomplishment.

THE SECOND GENERATION AT AGNES SCOTT!

The Granddaughters Club is composed of those girls whose mothers before them were daughters of Agnes Scott. This picture, which was taken on the steps of the Anna Young Alumnae House, shows thirteen of the sixteen members of the club. Susan Shadburn, '26, is the president. ## THE SALARIED WOMAN WORKER

The so-called Modernist Movement among the women of this country in the last few years has produced many changes in the status of women in society and has given her a range of thought and activity that would have been thought impossible twenty-five years ago.

Three avenues were open to the girl finishing school in 1900. The first was marriage; the second was school-teaching; the third was business, and by business in that period we mean only stenographic work or clerking of some kind. Of these three careers only the first two were really considered respectable and desirable by her family and friends. We realize just how radically this situation has been changed when we think that in 1923 nine million women in this country were employed in gainful occupations, and now the number is undoubtedly larger.

This change has been caused to a great extent by the tremendous movement for the higher education of women. After completing a college education, a girl is no longer satisfied to sit at home and wait patiently for the right man to come along whom she will marry, or to be forced into school-teaching when she does not feel particularly fitted for it and it does not especially appeal to her. Her education has taught her to be independent enough to go out into the business world and find her proper sphere. Another cause was the war. It was necessary during 1917-1918, in order to carry on the business of the country while the men were in the army, that the women take their places for the duration of the war. After the armistice, however, the women who had really been contributing something to the industrial life of the country were unwilling to go back to a life of inactivity, and the business men to whom they had proven their worth and efficiency did not want them to go; so a large percent of them remained.

Now that women are in business to stay, the question is frequently asked, "What professions and industries are open to women?" The answer is that there is practically no field that is not open to women.

The professions are adding an increasing number of women to their ranks every year. Women doctors and lawyers are by no means the rarity that they used to be. And teaching is still holding its own. For the woman who is primarily interested in welfare work, there are the many branches of Social Service Work—settlement work, probation work, work in the juvenile courts, relief work, educational work among the foreign elements of our big cities, health education, etc., etc.—all interesting and with an unlimited future. Women who are artistically inclined find their way into interior decorating, designing, landscape gardening, etc. For women with scientific minds there is laboratory and research work.

while those who have a literary turn find more congenial work in publishing houses or in working out the intricacies and psychology of modern advertising. Or they may find their sphere in library work. A woman's natural orderliness and her accurate and methodical manner of handling details makes her valuable in office work. For some women the secretarial type of work provides the best expression for natural inclinations and talents, while the demand for expert stenographers and bookkeepers is always in excess of the supply. A number of women have entered salesmanship, and are selling insurance, real estate, or goods of various kinds with success. Banking has claimed its quota. The assistant cashier of one of the largest banks in the South is a woman who worked up to that position from the ranks.

Women have entered practically every line of business; they have made good there and are still making good. With constructive thinking and planning on the part of the women and intelligent and far-sighted vocational guidance on the part of the schools and colleges, there is no field which women cannot enter and where they cannot succeed.

BOOK REVIEW

"Portrait of a Man with Red Hair", by Hugh Walpole (Doran).

There are more things in Cornwall than are dreamed of in the philosophy of the casual traveler, concerned with sheer cliffs and tiers of houses looking down on yellow sand and a line of sea. There are the things dreamed of the "Phantasy of a Red Haired Man", by Hugh Walpole, things discovered by Charles Percy Harkness who at Maradick's suggestion set out for Treliss on the Cornish coast.

The "Portrait of a Man with Red Hair" does not confine itself within the bounds of probability nor hold itself inhibited from portraying persons that to the greater part of its readers will seem strange and impossible. Written as a rest and refreshment it should of course be the sort of a story that is sometimes scornfully called "readable".

Harkness's was the well-ordered soul that shunned human contact and traveled in the austere company of seven etchings, a volume of Browning's poems and a forgotten book called "To Paradise"—this last given to him by Maradick with the direction to Treliss. Everything about him was deprecating and unobtrusive—he filled his neat clothes inadequately, his hair retreated timidly from the too prominent position of his forehead. He became frozen with terror at the thought of pain, and he had never been in love in his life.

Maradick was the deus ex machina of the affair. It was even due to his suggestion that Harkness went up to take a look at the deserted minstrels gallery at the top of the Man-at-Arms and from the shadows caught a first glimpse of Hesther and heard the note of terror in her voice. He didn't really want to be involved in anyone's difficulties—he was not the stuff of which heroes are made, and he had come for a holiday. Timid gentlemen do not as a rule actively concern themselves with rescuing unhappily married girls, nor in matching their wits against extraordinary fathers-in-law whose flaming red heads and boneless fingers are the least of their eccentricities. But there was in Harkness more knight-errantry than he knew. Before his first dinner at the Man-at-Arms was over he was definitely committed to as fantastic a piece of quixotism as the windmill tilting of the knight of La Mancha.

The man with red hair enters the story as quietly as a moth from the garden overlooking the bronze sea; as unobtrusively as is possible to one with a head like a beacon—"une tete glabre" glaring challenge-like above a face as white as the clown in Paggiacci. There can be no mistake about his playing the part of the stock villain, but Mr. Walpole has tried to save him from too summary a "thumbs down" by supplying him with a rueful spirituality, that breathes its last only a few minutes before the curtain is rung down upon his defeated villainy.

The development of the "neat white pocket-handkerchief" soul of Harkness in his extraordinary day and night is nearly as incredible as the reformation of Crispin, which didn't happen. A few minutes after his impulsive promise of aid to Hesther he found himself taking part in a frenzied dance around the town, a custom surviving from Druid times; and then in a room of the Feathered Duck listening to Hesther's story from a wandering seaman named Dunbar. Events moved swiftly at Treliss. By 10:30 of the first night he had embarked upon an adventure that was to take him into the house of a mad-man, a dangerous flight and a nearly fatal return.

As a tale it is not wholly the series of sensational incidents that a chronicle of its events promises. Cornwall sees to it that it is not so.

THE ALUMNAE BOOKSHELF

"The Perennial Bachelor", by Anne Parrish. (Harper.) A novel of American life from 1850 to the present, beautifully written—a thing of tears and laughter.

"My Garden of Memory", by Kate Douglas Wiggin. (Houghton Mifflin.) An absorbing portrayal of a very real, very charming person for those who weary of fiction.

"When We Were Very Young", by A. A. Milne. (Dutton.) Delightful poems written for the author's little boy, Christopher Robin. They cannot fail to rejuvenate the most sedate grown-up.

"The Greatest Book in the World", by A. Edward Newton. (Little erary ramble thru the Thames valley.

Brown.) A delightful book of essays in which the first chapter tells of the rare and various editions of the Bible.

"One Increasing Purpose", by A. S. M. Hutchinson. (Little Brown.) Interesting characters struggle soulfully in a novel occasionally gay, but never so gay as it is purposeful.

"Cousin Jane", by Harry Leon Wilson. (Cosmopolitan.) The story of a girl brought up in the dim shadow of past family glory.

"The Author's Thames", by Gordon Maxwell. (Brentano.) A lit-

"Beau Geste", by Percival C. Wren. (Stokes.) Mystery and adventure well told.

"The Venetian Glass Nephew", by Elinor Wylie. (Doran.) A fantasy with Eighteenth century Venice as its background.

NOTES FROM THE ALUMNAE OFFICE

MISS McDUGALL HONORED

Miss Mary Stuart McDougall, head of the department of Biology, has received a signal honor by being asked to teach during the spring term at Johns Hopkins University in the course of Protozoology in the School of Hygiene and Public Health. A short leave of absence has been arranged for her. She will devote the summer months to research work, and return to her work at Agnes Scott in the fall. Professor George Hugh Boyd of the Georgia School of Technology is substituting in the department for Miss McDougall during the spring.

PLAY CONTEST POSTPONED

It has just been announced by Miss Mary Wallace Kirk, chairman of the Louise McKinney Play Contest Committee, that no prize award will be made this year. The committee has felt that the reason that no more plays have been submitted in the contest in the past was that proper instruction in the technicalities of play writing was lacking. This year the alumnae are sponsoring at the college a course in play-writing, under the direction of Miss Nan Stephens. It is in order that the member of this class may have an opportunity to enter the contest that the final award, which was to have been made this May, has been postponed until May, 1927. All plays must be in the hands of the judges by January 1, 1927.

TRIANGULAR DEBATE

Pi Alpha Phi, the debating club, is busily preparing for the annual triangular debate, which will be held on Friday, March 19th. Agnes Scott will be hostess to Randolph-Macon this year, and our visiting team will go to Sophie Newcomb. The subject for the debate is, Resolved, That China should at the present time be granted complete control over her customs, tariff, and foreigners within her boundaries. The members of the two debating teams have not yet been announced.

Y. W. C. A. LIBRARY

The Y. W. C. A. has started a two-cents-a-day library of current fiction in the old cabinet room in Rebecca Scott lobby. It corresponds with the faculty book club in furnishing to the students the newest and best in fiction. The cabinet room has been turned into a reading room, and books may be taken out and returned every afternoon from five to six, and on Saturday from eleven thirty to twelve thirty. The library was opened with about twenty-five books, but since the beginning of the session many more have been purchased with the rent from the first twenty-five.

PRESIDENT OF A. A. U. W. VISITS AGNES SCOTT

Mrs. Aurelia Henry Reinhardt, president of Mills College, Oakland, California, and the president of the American Association of University Women, was a guest at the college on January 28th, and spoke to the student body at the chapel hour that morning. This is the second president of the American Association of University Women to visit Agnes Scott. Mrs. Ada Comstock, president of Radcliffe, was here about five years ago. The association has had only the two presidents and Agnes Scott feels that she is very fortunate in having the opportunity of entertaining both of them. On Thursday night, January 28th, the faculty and seniors were invited to meet Mrs. Reinhardt at a reception in the Alumnae House. While at the college, Mrs. Reinhardt was the guest of the administration, and of Miss Hearon, Director of the South Atlantic field of the A. A. U. W.

FOUNDERS DAY

The Senior class are busy with plans for their part in Founders' Day dinner. George and Martha Washington, LaFayette, Jefferson, Betsy Ross, Patrick Henry, Franklin, Boone and other notables are to be present that night, and the colonial ladies and gentlemen who are to take part in the minut in the gym after dinner are already practicing.

FRESHMAN PUBLISHES BOOK OF VERSES

It is not often that a college freshman has a volume of her poems published, but Helen Ward Thompson, an Atlanta girl, and a member of the class of 1929, has this distinction. Her first volume, "O, Journey Again," came from the press in November.

MR. RANKIN CALLED TO DUKE

Professor W. Walter Rankin, Jr., who has been at Agnes Scott for the past five years as the head of the department of Mathematics, has been elected by the Trustees to the faculty of Duke University. Prior to 1926 he taught for two years at Columbia University, and before going there, taught at the University of North Carolina. Professor Rankin has accepted his election to Duke, and will take up his duties there in the fall of 1926. Professor Rankin is a native North Carolinian. No announcement has yet been made by Dr. McCain as to who will head the mathematics department at Agnes Scott for the next year.

WITH THE COLLEGE CLUBS

ATLANTA, GEORGIA

Miss Isabel Dew was the hostess of the Atlanta Agnes Scott Club for its regular January meeting.

The bazaar held in December was quite a success, clearing $148.00. A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Candler for the use of her home and the large part she had in making the bazaar a success.

The club voted to have only three rummage sales a year instead of four—having them in October, March, and June. Another motion passed was that we do away with the carnival this spring.

The Federation of Women's Clubs sent a request to us that we join the other clubs of Georgia in petitioning Governor Walker for Vital Statistics in Georgia. The club resolved to do this.

The following committee chairmen were announced:

Jane (Harwell) Rutland—Membership Committee.

Carol (Stearns) Wey—Program Committee.

Allie (Candler) Guy—Ways and Means Committee.

Elizabeth (Pruden) Fagan—Publicity Committee.

Dr. Goode, Professor of English at Agnes Scott, was a guest of the club, and gave a most interesting talk on that department at the college.

A social hour was very much enjoyed over its hostess's delightful refreshments.

MARIE S. HOPPE, Secretary.

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA

The Birmingham Club gave a tea on Thursday afternoon, December 31st, at the home of Mrs. F. M. Barker, honoring the Birmingham girls who are now studying at the college: Olivia Swann, Mary Ray Dobyns, Hulda McNeel, Martha Riley Selman, Eloise Harris, Leone Bowers, and Helen Ridley. The mothers of these girls, and two high school girls who are going to Agnes Scott next year were also invited. Mrs. H. H. Gifford was the chairman who managed everything, and to whom much of the credit is due for the success of the party. Mrs. John Chisolm poured tea, and Elizabeth Ransom, Dorothy (Bowron) Collins, and Anna Meade assisted in receiving. The rain poured in torrents all afternoon, but quite a number of people came—even Dr. Dobyns came in to get a cup of tea, and everyone had a lovely time.

At the last meeting of the club, the financial situation was discussed, and then the afternoon was turned over to Eugenia Thompson, who gave a most interesting review of "Porgy." Eugenia had met Mr. and Mrs. Heyward at the college last year, and she contributed several personal comments and anecdotes to her review which added a great deal to the discussion which followed.

The last meeting of the club was on January 28th. ANNA MEADE, Secretary.

DECATUR, GEORGIA

At the January meeting of the Decatur Agnes Scott Club plans were discussed for the dinner and radio program on the night of February 22d, Founders' Day. The committee on the Rummage sale reported a successful sale, clearing $87.30. Mrs. Augustine Sams turned over to the treasury a sum of $5.25, the proceeds from the annual Baby Show. It was announced that the Decatur Club would receive one-half the proceeds from the production of the plays written by the members of Miss Stephens drama class which are to be presented by the Blackfriars on the night of February 20th. After the business of the day was finished, the members present spent the rest of the afternoon preparing posters to be used in advertising Agnes Scott in the preparatory schools. Refreshments were served and the meeting adjourned.

LUCILLE PHIPPEN, Secretary.

NEW YORK CITY

On Sunday afternoon, November 1st, fifteen Agnes Scott girls met at Julia Ingram's (Mrs. L. B. Hazzard) and organized an Agnes Scott Club. The following officers were elected: Mrs. Hazzard, president; Elizabeth Wilson, vice-president; Mrs. C. J. McCullough (Dorothy Havis), treasurer, and Hester McMurry, secretary.

True most of the girls in New York are students, consequently their stay here is more or less temporary, however, we felt that with the few permanent ones, and the continual flow of students from Agnes Scott to Columbia, we ought to be able to keep up an enthusiastic club.

I am quite sure that there are some girls here whom we haven't been able to get in touch with. In several cases the notices which were sent out to the addresses given in the Alumnae Register were returned unclaimed. As we are most anxious to get in touch with every Agnes Scott girl in New York, we would appreciate any information that can be given us, and if those girls who have friends living here would either send me their names and addresses, or ask them to get in touch with me, I for one would be very grateful, and know the club would appreciate it very much.

Our club hasn't been organized long enough to work out any definite plans (having had only one meeting), but we hope to make some interesting plans for this Winter. The meetings are to be held on the evening of the second Wednesday of every month. HESTER McMURRY, Secretary.

NEWS BY CLASSES

1893—Secretary Mary Barnett Martin (Mrs. A. V.), 171 S. Broad St., Clinton, S. C.

1894—Secretary, Mary Neel Kendrick, (Mrs. W. J.), Fort McPherson, Ga.

Ruth Holleyman, ex '94, (Mrs. Frank Patillo) has moved into a lovely new home at 33 Clairmont Ave., Decatur, Ga 1895—Secretary, Winifred Quarterman, Waycross, Ga.

1896—Secretary, Mary Ethel Davis, Decatur, Ga. 1897—Secretary, Cora Strong, N. C. C. W., Greensboro, N. C.

Carline (Haygood) Harris's daughter Caroline is at N. C. C. W. this winter. She would have come to Agnes Scott but for the fact that she has close relatives in Greensboro.

Cora Strong spent the past summer in Chicago studying Mathematics and Astronomy at the University.

We sympathize deeply with Alice Coffin, ex '97, in the recent death of her mother.

1899—Secretary, Nellie Mandeville Henderson (Mrs. C. K.), Carrollton, Ga.

Bernice (Chivers) Smith has a daughter, Holly, in the freshman class at Agnes Scott this year.

Rosa Belle Knox is teaching in Asheville, N. C. Her address is 31 Grove St. Since her graduate study at Chicago University, she has taught in the state Industrial School at Columbus, Miss., and in the Normal School in Asheville, N. C.

Ruth (Candler) Pope is connected with the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company in Atlanta in the treasurer's office. She is the official "ghost" who walks on pay-day, and she says that judging from the broad smiles that greet her (and the pay-checks) on the first and fifteenth of the month, she is the most popular employe of the company. Ruth's daughter, Lucia (Pope) Green, and her daughter have recently moved back to Decatur from Greensboro, N. C.

Ex '99, Anais (Cay) Jones, along with the rest of the United States, has moved to Florida. Her new address is 1318 W. Flagler St., Miami. Her daughter, Anais Cay Jones, is a sophomore at Agnes Scott.

1900—Secretary, Ethel Alexander Gaines, (Mrs. Lewis M.), 18 Park Lane, Atlanta, Ga.

1901—Secretary, Adeline Arnold Lorida's, (Mrs. Charles), 16 E. 15th St., Atlanta, Ga.

Adeline (Arnold) Lorida's has just completed a tour of the world with her husband. During the month they spent in Egypt, she and Mr. Lorida's frequently had recourse to donkey-riding as a mode of traveling. This particular means of locomotion pleased Mr. Lorida's so much that he threatens to sell his automobile and buy a donkey on his return to Atlanta.

1902—Secretary, Laura Caldwell Edmonds (Mrs. A. S.), 240 King St., Portland, Oregon.

Annie Kirk (Dowdell) Turner was re-elected president of the Georgia Synical at the annual meeting which was held in Marietta in October.

1903—Secretary, Elleen Gober, 515 Cherokee St., Marietta, Ga.

Emily Winn had her tonsils removed at the Wesley Memorial Hospital in Atlanta in November, remaining there for several weeks afterward to luxuriate in a rest cure. She spent the holidays in Greenville, S. C., with Mr. and Mrs. James Winn (Elizabeth Curry, '07).

The friends of Grace Hardie are sympathizing with her in the death of her brother, John T. Hardie, which occurred in October in Charleston, W. Va. Grace and her mother are again in Greenville, S. C., for the winter, where Grace has accepted a part-time position with the public library. She was for several years on the staff of the New York Public Library following her graduation from the latter's training school.

1904—Secretary, Lois Johnson Aycock, (Mrs. C. G.), 170 Penn Ave., Atlanta, Ga.

Annie Shapard writes a most interesting account of her life at Glenrock, near Kellyton, Ala., "Jeannette and I are farming on our Grandfather's old place here in Coosa county. I have been teaching in the county High School for the last two years, driving seven miles to school every morning. Our nearest white neighbors are three miles away, and the railroad is thirteen miles. We love it out here, and I am afraid we shall never be satisfied in town again. I have a troop of girl scouts, twenty high school girls who meet in the county seat twice a month. Don't imagine us hopelessly lost in the backwoods, however, for we are only fifty miles north of Montgomery, and drive down there for a day's shopping quite often."

Mattie (Tilley) McKee has gone in for farming, too. She writes "We are living a very quiet but very busy life on a little farm about six miles from Forsyth, Ga. Right now we are running a dairy, too, shipping sweet milk to Atlanta every day. We have four children, two boys, and two girls, whose ages range from nine to two years. The girls are headed for Agnes Scott."

1905—Secretary, Mabel McKowen, Lindsay, La.

Sallie Stribling is again Primary Supervisor in the city schools, Greenville, S. C. She finds time, however, to enjoy housekeeping in her little apartment.

Ex '05, Eugenia Walker is Mrs. D. G. Stoner, of 300 N. Andrews Ave., Fort Lauderdale, Florida. She has three children, Douglass, Jr., Eugene, and Frances.

1906—Annette Crocheron, writes enthusiastically of her new job. Beginning January 1st, she has undertaken the work of Director of Religious Education in Tuscaloosa Presbytery, under a joint arrangement of the Executive Committee of Publication and Sabbath Schools, and the Home Mission Committee of Tuscaloosa Presbytery. Annette is planning to come back for that twentieth reunion in May.

Correction to register: May McKowen, ex '06, now Mrs. B. B. Taylor, 925 Convention St., Baton Rouge, La.

Ex '06, new address: Margaret (Berry) Lyons is now on Montgomery Ferry Drive, Atlanta.

1907—Secretary, Sarah Boals Spinks, (Mrs. J. D.), 501 Gloria Ave., Winston-Salem, N. C.

The sympathy of the alumnae is extended to Cleveland Zahner, ex '07, who lost her father in January.

1908—Secretary, Louise Shipp Chick, 306 C. St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Jane Hays Brown is moving from Harrisburg, Pa., to New Jersey to organize a county library. Temporary address: East Waterford, Pa., R. F. D. 1.

Lizzabel Saxon. New address: 23 McLendon Ave., Atlanta.

Rose Wood is teaching at the Atlanta Normal School and living at home.

Ex '08, Joy Patton is now Mrs. J. P. Thompson, of 9132 John R. St., Detroit, Mich. She has made much of her music, is organist in one of the Detroit churches, and is a finished pianist and accompanist.

Correction to register: Eleanor Collier, ex '08, is Mrs. Hubbard Keenan, Hubbard Woods, Illinois.

1909—Secretary, Margaret McCallie, 611 Palmetto St., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mec (McIntyre) McAfee has been dividing her time this winter between Atlanta and New York, where she is under the care of a physician.

Ex '09, Elizabeth Lassetter is teaching in Selma, Alabama. Her address is 520 Church St.

Ex '09, Roberta Zachary saw her name in the list of Lost Alumnae, and wrote promptly to the secretary to announce that she isn't lost any longer. "And I really never have been lost," she declares. "Unless being happily married and living in Fulton, New York with a nice husband and three nice children could be called that." The nice husband is Mr. Robert B. Ingle, and the three nice children are Ruth, Roberta and Robert. The three once famous R's—Reading, 'Riting, and 'Rithmetic—have to take a back seat when the five Ingle R's are anywhere about. We own up to being R's, but our names to the contrary, we vehemently chorus "no," when anyone asks us the question, "Are you a Robert?"

1910—Secretary, Agnes Nicolassen Wharton, (Mrs. T. J.), Bessemer, Ala.

Since the members of '10 refuse to send in news about themselves, and the secretary has too much of a New England conscience to let her class column be vacant, she very gallantly contributes a new baby and a new address to the class news.

Correction to register: Sarah McKowen, ex '10, is Mrs. David Blackshear, of 918 N. Boulevard, Baton Rouge, La. She is temporarily at 34 Cherry St., Jacksonville, Fla.

Ex '10, Rebe (Standifer) Strickland, new address: 404 Fairfax Road, Battery Park, Bethesda, Maryland. Her husband is a captain in the regular army.

Ex '10, Edith (O'Keefe) Susong is continuing her success along the lines of journalism and newspaper publicity.

1911—Secretary, Theodora Williamson Anderson, (Mrs. W.), 63 Avery Drive, Atlanta.

Eleanor (Coleman) Burchard is temporarily at Arlington, Texas. The birth of her new daughter is announced elsewhere in the Quarterly.

Mary Wallace Kirk made a visit to the Alumnae House during December when she was called to the college by a meeting of the Board of trustees, of which she is a member.

Mary Elizabeth Radford is teaching in Thomson, Ga.

Adelaide Cunningham has changed her street address to 595 W. Peachtree St. It isn't necessary to add the name of the city, for they say that if a letter is mailed anywhere in the world with no city or state address, but bearing the words "Peachtree Street" it will come safely to Atlanta.

Julia (Thompson) Gibson is keeping house in her beautiful old colonial home in Covington, Ga. Her husband is a professor in Emory University Academy at the old college town of Oxford, two miles from Covington.

Ex '11, Rebecca (Candler) Goodman managed a little gift shop in connection with the Silhouette Tea Room in the Alumnae House during the fall. Just before Christmas she and Mr. Goodman motored to Florida to live.

Ex '11, Fannie Rhea (Bachman) Summers, who was married in November, 1924, is now living at Rogersville, Tenn. She and her husband spent Christmas in Johnson City, Tenn., with his family.

Ex '11, Hazel (Brand) Taylor is temporarily in Natick, Mass. She has a daughter who, she hopes some day to send to Agnes Scott. Her husband is a major in the army.

Ex '11, Another "lost alumna", L. Inis Young, begs to be "un'lost." She is now Mrs. O. E. Brown, of 411 Washington St., Qui an Georgia.

1912—Secretary, Marie MacIntyre Scott, (Mrs. John T.) Scottdale, Ga.

Ruth (Slack) Smith, '12, writes: "New York is ever a mecca for Agnes Scott girls, not for the summer session only, but the whole year round.

Louise Slack, (My sister) and I spent the Christmas holidays there, taking a course in Theatrical evaluation, and during our stay chanced upon a number of Agnes Scott friends pursuing somewhat the same course.

"Margaret McCallie, '09, had come up from Chattanooga, and we frequently met in restaurants or theaters. One night as we were seated in one of Alice Foote McDougal's charming coffee shops, Louise Payne, ex '10, of Lynchburg, came in with three young girls whom she was chaperoning, and sat down at the table next us.

"On Sunday morning we went to hear Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin at the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, and during the first hymn heard a voice reminiscent of the little Decatur Episcopal Church, and turned to find Miss Cady and her sister just behind us—the same Miss Cady whom you would have known anywhere! She and her sister are living in Springfield, New York, and had come up for a brief holiday.

"We called at Miss Markley's office, but she had gone home for the holidays so we did not see her. Little did we dream in the days at Agnes Scott that we would ever be going to Brooklyn to have tea with Miss LeGate! But such happened, for she, now Mrs. Leslie Strickland, invited us over, and we spent a delightful afternoon with her, talking of Agnes Scott friends. In the words of the society editor: Mrs. Strickland was assisted in entertaining her guests by her charming little daughter, Phyllis." She is really a precious baby and so good.

"Arloretta (Blackburn) Rust, writes with a mother's pardonable pride that her new son weighed seven and three-fourths pounds at birth.

Mary Lee (Lott) Burkley is teaching this year.

Fannie G. (Marston) Donaldson is spending a very busy winter guiding the Alumnae Association abroad. During December, however, she found time to accompany her husband on a motor trip to South Georgia.

Cornelia Cooper is still associate professor of English at Judson College, Marion, Ala. Judson was admitted to the Southern Association of Colleges last fall.

1913—Secretary, Allie Candler Guy (Mrs. J. Sam), 65 N. Decatur Road, Atlanta, Ga.

Frances (Dukes) Wynne, her husband, and three children are at Stonehedge Sanitarium, Sunset Drive, Asheville, N. C.

Lilly (Joiner) Williams has a new son, Daniel. Mr. Williams is the pastor of the Methodist church at Summerville, S. C.

Ex '13, Ruth (Brown) Moore has moved from Conley, Ga., to Decatur. She is at 203 Avery Drive. Florinne Brown, ex '11, Ruth's sister, gave a lovely tea for her in the Alumnae House in January.

1914—Secretary, Lottie May Blair Lawton, (Mrs. S. C.) Box 1412, Greenville, S. C.

Ruth Graham (Blue) Barnes' new address is 16 Gordon Ave., Gordonston, Savannah, Ga. Nell (Clarke) Murphey's husband is in the wholesale grocery business in Augusta, Ga.

Annie Tait Jenkins is at home this winter at Crystal Springs, Miss. She says "Busy as usual! Hold offices in our synodical and presbyterian, to say nothing of local church work, chairman of a district club committee, town adviser for Girl Reserve Club, chairman of citizenship department in local woman's club. And trying to take two correspondence courses from Agnes Scott."

Kathleen Kennedy is teaching at the Grundy Presbyterian School at Grundy, Virginia.

Ex 14, Beverly Anderson has started something new in Lynchburg, Va. She is running an exclusive Little Dress Shop, buying her dresses in New York.

Ex 14, Ethel Pharr is teaching in the North Avenue Presbyterian School in Atlanta.

1915—Is well accounted for in another part of the Quarterly.

1916—Secretary, Louise Hutcheson, 1841 Pendleton Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

The secretary begs that before you read any further, you take note of the fact that she has a new address herself, and that you send your letters containing news items and plans for that big tenth reunion next May to her there.

Emmee (Brancham) Carter and her husband motored through Florida during the early part of the winter. Dr. Carter is a dentist in Atlanta, a graduate of Emory University in the class of '08, and very active in the Emory Alumni Work.

Mary (Bryan) Winn has moved to 2530-10th Ave., S., Birmingham, Ala.

Laura (Cooper) Christopher announces the arrival of her first baby on November 23rd.

Gladys (Camp) Brannon's new address is Woodstock Apt. 31, Lynchburg, Va. Her husband is an architect.

Our love and sympathy goes out to Mary Ellen (Harvey) Newton in the death of her little daughter on January 17th of diphtheria.

Elizabeth (Willett) Donaldson has moved from Alabama to 1435 Harmony St., New Orleans, La.

Louise (Wilson) Williams has a lovely new home in Lynchburg. She is secretary of the Lynchburg branch of the A. A. V. W.

Ex '16, Helen (Allison) Brown, the only A. S. C. alumna in the state of Wyoming, writes from her home in Pine Bluffs: "I live on a dry farm with my husband and three babies, Walter, Jr., age four and a half; Helen Allison, age three, and Mildred Jo, age one and a half years. Spend most of my time trying to keep them happy and healthy, and it is the biggest job I ever had. Junior's favorite song is 'I'm a ramblin' wreck', so I guess he'll have to go to Tech, and OF COURSE (the Capitals are Helen's) the girls will go to Agnes Scott."

Ex '16, Annie Cameron sends in a breezy letter from the mountains of north Georgia. She is teaching history and algebra in the High School at Nacoochee Institute at Sauttee, Ga.

1917—Secretary, Laurie (Caldwell) Tucker, (Mrs. J. H.), R. F. D. 5, Box 1055, Tampa, Florida.

The secretary is very busy keeping house in sunny Florida (and its just as sunny as the real estate ads say it is), but she is never too busy to receive letters from the members of '17 with news items about themselves and other alumnae.

Isabel Dew and Sarah Webster are teaching at Fulton High School in Atlanta. Isabel has twice done special work at Teachers College, Columbia University. Since her junior year at Agnes Scott, she has been teaching dancing during the summer at Camp Junaluska, and she is now head counsellor there.

Agnes Scott Donaldson is working as case supervisor of the Associated Charities in Colorado Springs, Colorado. She recently returned from a three months tour of Europe.

Annie Kyle is enjoying the winter at home with her parents in Lynchburg, Va.

Annie (Lee) Barker's new address is 1459 Milner Crescent, Birmingham, Ala. She has one daughter, Minnie Lee Barker, who was born last spring. Her name was erroneously printed in the register as Baker.

Janet Newton is spending the winter at 200 North Seventh St., Gainesville, Florida. She and her sister, Charlotte, '21, are together.

Margaret Pruden is again head of the department of Latin at Flora McDonald College, Red Springs, N. C. She spent last summer in Canada and New York City.

Louise Ware has torn herself away from her work with the Associated Charities in Atlanta for the winter and is studying in New York. She has a fellowship to the New York School of Social Work and is working on her master's degree at Columbia, too. Her address is 7 Gramercy Park, West.

Georgina (White) Miller is in Orlando, Fla., where her husband has a furniture store. She is keeping house, and looking after her four babies. Her address is 17 West Pine St.

Ex '17, Virginia (Allen) Potter's new address is 702 E. Washington St., Greenville, S. C.

Ex '17, Alice (Fleming) Clark has moved into Somerset Park, Lynchburg, Va. She has one son, Pendleton Clark, Jr., and an architect husband.

Ex '17, Helen (Hughes) Wolfe is still living in Blackburg, Va. Her husband is a V. T. I. professor.

Ex '17, Virginia Reed of Hope, Arkansas, is now Mrs. Robert Wilson. Her address is 405 S. Elm St.

1918—Secretary, Margaret Leyburn, 683 Peachtree St., Atlanta, Ga.

New address: Dorothy Moore, 139 S. Dean St., Spartanburg, S. C.

Katherine Seay is back at the Agricultural College in Corvallis, Oregon, as Y. W. C. A. secretary.

Ex '18, Helen (Connett) Amerman writes that her nine months old baby is absorbing all of her time.

Ex '18, Priscilla (Nelson) King is keeping house and raising her three fine children.

Belle Cooper is studying this year at Columbia University. Her address is 411 W. 116th St., New York City.

Ex '18, Virginia Haugh is now Mrs. Charles Franklin, 220 Columbia Heights, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Ex '18, Charlotte Cope is Mrs. Benjamin Watson Cade, Union Springs, Ala.

1919—Secretary, Alameda Hutcheson, 220 S. McDonough St., Decatur, Ga.

Lois Eve is teaching in Augusta, Ga.
On Thanksgiving Day, Margaret Leech was married to Mr. William Collier Cook, of Dickson, Tenn.

Margaret Rowe—our own "Peanut"—returned to America in September. She is in Memphis, Tennessee, and writes enthusiastically "I've got a whiz of a job—writing ads for a big chemical company, selling patent medicines and cold creams and beauty preparations all over America and five foreign countries. I simply adore it."

Julia Lake Skinner is again director of religious education at the Church of the Covenant, at Wilmington, N. C.

Ex '19, Louise English was married on November 25th to Dr. Elmer Clarence Moore, a dentist of Statesboro, Ga. Leaving Agnes Scott at the end of her freshman year, Louise went to Brenau, and after being graduated from there, studied for a year at the American Academy of Arts in New York. She went to Statesboro this September to teach oratory in the public schools.

Ex '19, Sarah (Randolph) Truscott and her husband have returned from the Hawaiian Islands and are now stationed at the Cavalry School, Fort Riley, Kansas.

1920—Secretary, Mary Burnett Thornton, (Mrs. W. L. Taft), Texas.

Louise Abney is teaching in the high school at Athens, Ga., and attending classes at the University of Georgia in the afternoon, working for her M.A.

Beff Allen is doing Child Welfare work in Hale County, Alabama, with headquarters at Greensboro. She spent last summer studying at the University of Chicago, and was fortunate enough to run into some more Agnes Scott people there, among them Miss Davis, Miss Torrance, and Martha Stansfield, '21.

Margaret Bland is planning to take a leave of absence from the French department at Agnes Scott and study during the year 1926-27 at either Yale or Chicago.

Mary Burnett Thornton, II, arrived May 7th, 1925, and since then her parents, formerly most practical and prosaic of people, have scarcely touched earth with the tips of their toes, being completely overpowered with happiness.

Ruth (Crowell) Choate's wedding was one of the most beautiful that Charlotte, N. C., has ever seen. It was solemnized on Wednesday the 18th of November at the second Presbyterian church, and Margaret Bland, Julia (Hagood) Cuthbertson, Elizabeth (Moss) Harris, Gertrude (Manly) McFarland, and Elizabeth (Pruden) Fagan, were among the attendants. Now after two months of housekeeping, Ruth says that for the life of her she can't see what women find hard about meal-planning and cooking. The way she solves the problem is to give her husband a glass of milk for breakfast, and take him to her mother's for lunch and dinner.

Agnes Dolvin is teaching in Augusta, Georgia. Her address is 103 Jackson Ave., North Augusta.

Sarah (Davis) Murphy is living at 211 E. 20th St., Jacksonville, Fla.

Anne Houston has recently had an operation for appendicitis.

Louise Johnson is spending the winter with an aunt in California. The advertising department of M. Rich and Bros. is a wreck without her, but Louise says that she would have been the wreck if she had worked on any longer without taking a vacation. After only two months in California she writes that she is about to agree with the native sons that it is the only place in the world when the sun shines or the sky is blue or the roads are smooth and that is all the time. Her address is c/o Mrs. John Kitchin, Jr., Walnut Creek, Contra Costa County.

Louie (Harris) Henderson is keeping her house and family in Guntersville, Alabama, and a most efficient housekeeper we are sure she is. She has two little daughters, one three years and the other ten months old, but still finds time for music, club work, and church work.

Marion McPhail is studying at Columbia University this winter. Her address is 411 W. 116th St., Johnson Hall. Other Agnes Scott girls there are Janef Preston, Belle Cooper Melissa and Brownie Smith.

Margaret McConnell has been studying in New York City. She will have charge of the kindergarten work at the Atlanta Normal School during the rest of this year.

Virginia McLaughlin is teaching History and English at Montreat, N. C.

Elizabeth Marsh spent the past two winters teaching in Miami, but resigned this year in order to be with her family in Atlanta.

Julia (Reasoner) Hastings' new address is 901 Ohio Ave., Bradenton, Fla.

Margaret Sanders is teaching French and Spanish at Arkansas College, Batesville, Ark. Nancy Evans, '24, is teaching there also.

Louise Slack is working with the Presbyterian Sunday School committee on leadership training. Her headquarters are in Richmond, Virginia, but she travels all over the United States, teaching a week in each place. She has already visited Charles Town, West Virginia; Norfolk, Virginia, and Atlanta. She and her sister, Ruth (Slack) Smith, '12, spent Christmas in New York.

Ex '20. Lillian Jenkins is Mrs. Willoughby Middleton, 10 Limehouse St., Charleston, S. C.

Ex '20. Agnes Randolph is Mrs. George Marvin, "Cloverfields," Keswick, Virginia.

Ex '20. Frances Simpson is teaching in Atlanta.

From the wilds of India comes a cablegram from the Mowbray Veltes, (Mrs. Velte was Marguerite Davis, ex '20) to the effect that they have a new baby daughter. We shall have to wait until a letter can get here to learn little Miss Velte's name.

Gertrude (Manly) McFarland's husband was recently elected mayor of Dalton. Martha Lin Manly, '25, and Squint Sims, ex '25, were terribly excited over the election, as it was the first time they had been old enough to vote. Martha Lin said that she intended to have the rest of her political life blameless, but that just this first time, when her own brother-in-law was running, she considered herself justified in stuffing the ballot-box, and making Squint, Mary (McLellan) Manly, and Marian McCamy do likewise.

1921 - Secretary, Frances Charlotte Markley, Miss Fine's School, Princeton, New Jersey.

Our reunion, 1921-1926.

With the prospect of a big gathering for our fifth reunion this year, we should begin to make some really thrilling preparations. What would you like to do? Have a class camp out at Stone Mountain? What about a swimming party in the new pool and a picnic afterward? Shall we have a class costume? Who's going to get up our class stunt? Why not send in some suggestions as to what you want? Perhaps it can be arranged so that all of us who return can be together in the same building, and we wouldn't have to be quiet after ten either! There are, we hear, some strange stories to be explained—the correspondence course in hair-dressing, and that weird dinner party are among them.

You'll doubtless be hearing soon from several people in regard to our reunion, meanwhile you'd better make some plans to be there.

It would be an excellent idea if every one of us in the class could be paying members of the Alumnae Association—it does add much to one's knowledge of college affairs to get the Alumnae Quarterly. Many of us haven't paid our dues to the association for several years. Why don't we surprise ourselves and the rest of the alumnae by an every-member-paid-up-reunion-year? Send your dues to Polly Stone, Alumnae Secretary, at the Alumnae House.

Plan now to come back in May!

CLASS NEWS

Our love and sympathy goes out to Charlotte (Bell) Linton, who lost her father recently.

Augusta (Brewer) Groome's address is High Point, N. C.

A new record is being made in religious circles by the news that the son of Peg (Bell) Hanna has not missed Sunday School since he was a month old!

Edythe Bland Clark is one of the four deans at Lucy Cobb Institute, Athens, Ga.

Lois (Compton) Jennings has moved to 1027 S. Beacon St., Dallas, Texas.

Marion Cawthon is teaching at home this winter in DeFuniak Springs, Fla.

Louise Fluker is teaching Latin in the high school at Valdosta, Ga., and coaching the girls basketball teams. She says she has been coaching athletics for two years for inter-high games, and during that time has lost only one game. Her address is 320 Ashley St.

Cora (Connett) Ozenberger says she hasn't much news to give, but she adds the more important facts of life in announcing that she is "still alive and very happy."

Peg (Hedrick) Nickols and her husband and nineteen months old baby are keeping house in a new white bungalow, built last summer. Her husband is in business with his father in a manufacturing concern which makes ladies and children's dresses. Peg says it is fine, for she can wear all the new dresses she wants to, and put it down under the head of advertising for the firm.

Mary Louise Green is spending the winter visiting in San Antonio, Texas. Her address is 109 E. Ashby Place.

Sarah Harrison is teaching in the High School in Murfreesboro, Tenn.

Eula (Russell) Kelly has a husband who travels over the south, and as a result she takes his trips as an opportunity to visit her college friends. Her home is named Hickory Hill Hut.

Anna Marie (Landress) Cate writes that they have made reservations on the Dollar Liner President Cleveland, due in San Francisco on May 5. Letters sent to her there would reach her upon arrival. She expects to get to Agnes Scott for the reunion. She says "there is no special news from my little family, but we are all busy and happy. Dr. Cate thoroughly enjoys his medical work and teaching in the medical college, as well as recreation in the form of tennis, baseball and recently taking part in a minstrel show. Next week he leaves for Tokyo to attend the sixth congress of the Far Eastern Association of Tropical Medicine. I have my hands full with three year old Billy and his little sister to look after, not to mention other duties—housekeeping, entertaining missionaries visiting Seoul in an almost constant stream to attend committees. We have a lovely group of young missionaries here in Seoul. I do practically no formal missionary work, but do enjoy my contact with the Koreans and Japanese. Mrs. Kasaya, the wife of the secretary of the Japanese Y. M. C. A. here, comes to me for help in planning clothes for her two little boys. She is especially anxious to improve her English and learn to dress herself and her children in American style clothes, because her husband is leaving soon for several months stay in America."

Sarah (McCurdy) Evans has omitted to tell us that she has a son, and we duly apologize for not getting the news in the Quarterly before he arrived at the dignified age of eighteen months. She is teaching science in the high school in Stone Mountain this winter. Her husband is the DeKalb County Health officer.

Charlotte Newton's Florida address is 200 N. 9th St., Gainesville.

Janef Preston, who is working in English at Columbia University, is writing her master's thesis on "The Fairies in Elizabethan Literature." We sympathize with Janef on the death of her brother on Christmas Eve.

Surprising fact! Lucile (Smith) Bishop, 523 E. Livingston Ave., Orlando, Florida, has answered a letter! Of course the fact that she has a peddler for a husband keeps her moving from Cuba to New York,—but then one can get free stationary in the hotels! Upon close questioning she admits that despite the broadening effect of travel she has become completely Florida-ized. "Did you ever hear of a garage apartment? That's the way we do it in Florida. We have a garage on the rear of the lot, with an apartment above. When we have turned our sand into millions we shall have a home on the front of the lot and rent the apartment to tourists." Lucile is continuing to study voice; after a lapse of several years she says it gives quite a kick.

Clotile (Spence) Barksdale, who was married in Kinston, N. C., last June, is in Miami, where Mr. Barksdale is circulation manager of the Miami Herald. She is living in her new home, one of the Spanish type, but she says the city is growing so fast that the houses can't be numbered with sufficient speed, so her mail is to be sent to Mr. Barksdale's office. Tilly gets the prize for sending in the most news!

TEACHING

Mariwil Hanes: English, at Griffin High School, Griffin, Ga.

Ellen Wilson: Bible, at Peace Institute, Raleigh, N. C.

Margaret Wade: Latin and Mathematics at the High School, Surgoinesville, Tenn.

Myrtle Blackmon: English, at the Columbus, Ga., High School.

Pearl Lowe Hamner: Science at the Columbus, Ga., High School.

Helen Hall: French at Salem College, Winston-Salem, N. C. During the Christmas holidays she and Helene Norwood, ex '21, were the guests of Mary Stewart McLeod, '23. On Christmas Eve, Helen gave an Agnes Scott tea for Catherine Haugh, '22.

Jean McAlister: Civics in Greensboro, N. C., High School. Other news from Jean is that she has a troop of girl scouts, and has not an appendix.

Eleanor Carpenter: French, at the Kentucky Home School, in Louisville.

Elizabeth Floding: At the North Avenue Presbyterian School, Atlanta.

Ex '21, Marie Bennett is Mrs. Bill Lane. Her husband is a lawyer in Miami.

Ex '21, Elise Bohannan is now Mrs. George Maier, 1372 Myrtle Ave., Walnut Hills, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Ex '21, Margaret Brinson is teaching in the High School in Miami.

Ex '21, Elsie Estes is Mrs. J. D. Clark. She lives in Raleigh, N. C., where her husband is head of the English department at the North Carolina State College.

Ex '21, Adelaide (Park) Webster's new address is 4832 Penn St., Frankford, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Ex '21, Nell (Upshaw) Gannon's new address is McCormick, S. C.

Sarah Fulton is teaching at the Bass Junior High School, Atlanta. She lives at home and commutes every day on that Dec. car.

It is a source of much grief to the secretary that the answers to the last communication were so few. That is the reason for the small column of news. But it was fun to have those Christmas cards.

1922—Secretary, Julia Jameson, 1046 West End Ave., Franklin, Tenn.

Agnes Adams is studying at the Atlanta Conservatory of Music.

Jeanette Archer will receive her diploma.

Liz Brown and Ruth Evans are in Florida, selling real estate. Their address is c-o S. B. Brown, Jr., 709 N. Poinsettia St., West Palm Beach. Ruth is planning to come back to Fort Valley when the peach season arrives, and carry on the business she started last year of selling fancy basket assortments of peaches.

Nell Buchanan says that Florida has no charm for her. She is planning her third trip to Europe this summer, being in charge of a party under the direction of the Brownell Tours. They sail from New York on June 19th, and land at Cherbourg eight days later. After a week in Paris and a day in Avignon, they go to the Riviera and thence down into Italy. Genoa, Rome, Naples, Pompeii, Amalfi, Sorrento, Capri and the Blue Grotto, Florence, Venice and Milan are all visited; then a week in Switzerland, two days each in Brussels and the Hague, and they cross the Channell into England. Another week is spent in "dear damned delightful dirty London," and the last week in Scotland and a trip up through the Lake District. They sail from Liverpool on August 20th and land at Montreal, August 28th. Any Agnes Scott alumnae who would be interested in joining the party should write to Nell at once. Her address is Marion, Va.

Ivylyn Girardeau is studying medicine at Tulane University in New Orleans.

Frances Harper's new address is Box 272 Keutwood, La. She spent the summer in Orlando, Florida.

Ruth (Hall) Bryant celebrated her first wedding anniversary on the 23rd of December. In one short year she has accumulated a new husband, a new home, and a new baby. She says that Virgil, Jr., is just like the Agnes Scott spirit—to wonderful to be described by a poor wobbling human pen. He goes to sleep every night to the accompaniment of Agnes Scott songs, thus proving that he has a keen appreciation of melody. We only hope for his sake that his mother doesn't sing his lullabys with the same vim and pep that she used to display as song leader during her college days.

Mary (McClellan) Manly visited at the Alumnae House during January. She and "Duddy" were in Atlanta on a furniture shopping trip. Mary is keeping house in an upstairs apartment and learning to cook. They are having many adventures in painting breakfast room furniture and putting up kitchen shelves.

Carolyn Moore taught in Bainbridge, Ga., for the past two years, but she is at home in Eu-faula, Alabama, this winter.

Laura (Oliver) Fuller's apartment is named "Fuller Fun," and if it is half as full of fun as the Three Bear's room on second floor In-man used to be, it is most appropriately named. Her address is 1115 South 30th St., Birmingham, Alabama.

Ruth Pirkle ran away from molecules and frog anatomies and earth worms' nervous systems in the Biological department at the college during December and took a trip to Florida. She has developed a desperate case of Florida fever, and she and Miss Calhoun, who is also a Florida fan, regale White House dining room with their marvelous tales of Sebring and Miami.

Althea Stephens drove from Russellville, Kentucky, to Jacksonville, Florida, to spend Christmas. On the way down she passed through Fayette, Miss., and saw Sarah Till.

Louie Dean Stephens is teaching the second grade at Marietta, Georgia.

Sarah Till writes "I am (supposedly) doing nothing this winter after a summer of being very ill. But people won't let you do nothing in peace. So I am at present a (dollar a year man), coaching two basketball teams, masculine and feminine, superintending a Christian Endeavor Society, and teaching some high school girls to lead their songs. I am hoping to make Agnes Scott a visit this spring."

Ex '22, Hallie (Cranford) Daugherty and her husband and two babies have moved to Daytona, Florida. Mr. Daugherty is in the lumber business there. Hallie and the babies spent Christmas in Valdosta, Ga. Her Daytona address is Box 856.

Ex '22, Dinah (Roberts) Parramore is keeping house in Valdosta, Ga. Her husband runs the Union Bus Line, which covers South Georgia and Florida.

Ex '22, Frances Stokes is now Mrs. Hinton Longino, 93 Greenfield Ave., Buffalo, N. Y.

Ex '22. Faustelle (Williams) Mabry spent Christmas at her old home in Cordele, Ga. After a year in Seattle, Washington, Faustelle and her husband and their three-year-old boy have moved to Orlando, Florida. Her address is 444 S. Lake St. Mr. Mabry works for the Telephone Company.

Mary Knight is working with the Retail Credit Company in Atlanta.

Emily Thomas is teaching school in Selma, Alabama.

1923—Class Secretary, Emily Guille, 3400 Brook Road, Richmond, Va.

It is hard to realize that we are on the verge of our second reunion, that we have been away from Agnes Scott nearly three years, and that the freshmen of 1923 are now seniors. We want to go back while there is at least one class left who knows that we are the "Peelankys." Our reunion this year should be a very significant one for us, because there is a greater opportunity now for us to get together than there will ever be again. Let's plan now to be there one hundred per cent strong!

Hazel (Bordeaux) Lyon is keeping house in the Capitol Hill Apartments in Little Rock, Ark., until March 1st, and then they expect to move into their new home, a stucco English cottage which they planned and are building themselves. Hazel says the biggest job she has now is cooking. Mr. Lyon is director of the Fones Brothers Hardware Company, the biggest firm of hardware jobbers in the state. After March 1st, Hazel's address will be 453 Midland Ave.

Dot (Bowron) Collins accompanied her husband to Atlanta in December on a business trip, and while here attending to business, she ran out to the college. Her new address is 2530-10th Ave. S., Birmingham, Ala.

Margaret Brenner is working at the Carnegie Library in Atlanta.

Louise (Brown) Hastings' new address: "Hastings", Lovejoy, Ga.

Thelma Cook is now Mrs. H. Malon Furton, 1450 Fairmont St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Eileen (Dodd) Sams accompanied her husband on a motor trip through Florida last summer. Her son is two years old now.

Maud (Foster) Jackson's new address is 2255 Grandview Ave., Cleveland Heights, Ohio.

Brooks Grimes is teaching History at Quitman, Georgia, during the rest of this year. Brooks had a nervous breakdown last year, and was at home resting during the fall.

Fredeva Ogletree visited Viola (Hollis) Oakley in Columbia, Ala., before Christmas. Viola has a lovely new home, and is one of those "happy, though married" people.

The members of '23 sympathize with Lucie Howard in the recent death of her father.

Elizabeth (Lockhart) Davis' new address: 111 S. McDonough St., Decatur, Ga. Mary Hewlett is living with her.

Both McClure spent Christmas in Decatur as the guest of Dr. and Mrs. McGeachey.

Hall McDougall's address for the winter: c-o Mrs. Ed Lindsey, Elkton, Ky.

Martha (McIntosh) Nall's new address is 324 N. W. 9th Ave., Miami.

Anna Meade has been elected secretary of the Birmingham, Alabama, Agnes Scott club.

Potato Molloy is at home in Murfreesboro, Tenn., this winter.

Ruth Sanders is attending Vanderbilt University, continuing her work in History.

Ex '23. Maybeth (Carnes) Robinson's new address: 1797 N. E. 2nd Court, Miami.

Ex '23. Anabel Stith is at home in Birmingham, Ala. She takes a prominent part in the work of the Little Theatre there.

Ex '23. Harriet Noyes is secretary at the James L. Key School in Atlanta.

Ex '23. Emma Herman is now Mrs. W. Herman Lowe, 2 Proctor Court, Bowling Green, Ky. Her husband, "Suds," published a little book of verses in December.

Ex '23. Mart Hay, Vassar '23, writes from Paris, "After a gay summer of traveling, I am in Paris for work at the Sorbonne in French literature, art, and philosophy, lessons in conversations, phonetics, and intonations, and incidentally am reading up on contemporary French literature, and indulging in concerts, theatres, teas, dinners, and cathedrals." Her address is 4 Rue de Chevrense.

Ex '23. Margaret (Walker) Sellers is now living on Peachtree Road, Atlanta. Her address is Box 5.

Ex '23. Alex Morrison, Ward-Belmont, '23, has just returned from another delightful trip abroad. She spent Christmas at home in Waycross, Ga.

Ex '23. Connie (Leak) Austin is living at 1766 Carr Ave., Memphis, Tenn. Connie had a brilliant wedding in November.

Ex '23. Lucia (Pope) Green has moved back to Decatur from Greensboro, N. C.

Ex '23. Erskine (Jarnigan) Forgy is living in the Ansonia Apts., 21st and Liberty Sts., Miami Beach, Fla.

Ex '23. Jessie (Watts) Rustin is living at 338 W. Ridge St., Danville, Va. She is keeping house and teaching music. As a minister's wife she is president of several organizations and leader of the Young People in her church. Besides all these, she finds time to work with the music study club.

Ex '23. Anna Harwell is teaching in Decatur, and studying violin at the Atlanta Conservatory.

Ex '23. Rachel Maddox is working in Atlanta.

Ex '23. Edith Ruff attended Emory University last summer.

Ex '23. Lillian Kirby's new address is 2603 Colfa Ave., Minneapolis, Minnesota. She visited Eileen (Dodd) Sams, '23, last summer.

Ex '23. Lucile (Bailey) Williams has a boy three years old. She still lives in Covington, Tennessee.

Ex '23. Achsah Edwards is teaching in La-Grange, Ga.

Ex '23. Estelle Gardner is working at the Court House in Decatur.

Ex '23. Margaret Terry is teaching at the Atlanta Normal School.

Ex '23. Rosalie Robinson is working at Allyn Bacon Publishing House in Atlanta.

Ex '23. Nell Veal has a lovely position with the Veteran's Bureau in Atlanta.

Ex '23. Joyce Alexander is teaching school and living at home in Decatur.

Ex '23. Adeline Bostic was an attendant in Willie Chappell's wedding during December in Dawson, Ga.

Ex '23. Mary White Caldwell's new address: 3313 Park Ave., Richmond, Va.

Ex '23. Catherine Waterfield is now Mrs. Joe Haskin, San Francisco Mines of Mexico, Parral, Chihuahua, Mexico.

1924—Secretary, Dick Scandrett, Agnes Scott College, Decatur, Ga.

Francis Anis writes "much to my surprise, I have loved being at home this winter. I can't realize that everybody else is doing something and I am not, but it really is a joy to be at home, and I haven't been idle by any means, because people with neither job nor husband are expected to do a great many things, especially in a small town. We have had lots of company this Christmas and I have had a huge time entertaining all the 'sisters, and the cousins and the aunts' (Oh, the night we saw 'Pinafore' from the Atlanta peanut!) I just looked up from writing this letter to see an old-fashioned prairie schooner passing up the street. Every now and then we see these last vestiges of a period that has 'gone with the last frontier.' It looked as if it might have belonged to that miner, forty-niner, and his daughter, Clementine that Vic used to sing about so vociferously.'

Emily Arnold is getting her M.A. at the University of Colorado, and doing a little coaching of Latin in odd hours. She is living with her brother in Boulder and having a great time. She says that those great open spaces of the west appeal to her.

Nancy Evans has forsworn straight hair for marcells, we hear.

Emmie Ficklen is teaching at home in Washington, Ga., this winter. She spent the weekend of January 22nd at the college visiting her sister, Mary Ficklin, '29, and Cora Morton.

Frances (Gilliland) Stukes, our only married member, spent the Christmas holidays at her former home in Greensboro, N. C. She is still enthusiastic over housekeeping, and has advanced as far as rolls in her cooking lessons.

Louise Hendrix is teaching in Newnan, Ga. E. Henry is planning to go to Geneva, Switzerland, next year as a governess.

Kate Higgs is studying at the University of Arizona. Her address is 721 E. 7th St., Tucson, Arizona.

Marion Johnson is working for the Retail Credit Company in Atlanta.

Speedy King visited Quenelle Harrold, '23, in Atlanta during December.

Vivian Little is teaching in Jacksonville, Florida, and looking forward to her next trip to France.

Margaret McDow—"Mag, the Hag, the belle of York"—visited Mary Green in Abbeville, S. C., during Christmas.

Mary McCurdy is teaching history in the high school at Stone Mountain.

Mary Mann is at home in Newnan, Ga.

Fran Myers is back in America for a visit. She has not made any definite plans yet for returning to Japan.

Virginia Ordway writes tearfully that she always knew she would some day even when she was vowing loudest that she never, never would teach school! She is to finish out the term in Junior high in Anniston, Alabama.

Nonie Peck and Gusta Thomas visited Quenelle Harrold, '23, in Atlanta during January.

Cora Richardson is teaching history in the high school in Ocilla, Ga.

Dick Scandrett spent the Christmas holidays at home in Cordele with her mother and sister, Ruth, '22. She says that she believes she is the only person in the world who has not been to Florida, and doesn't want to go.

Mary Stewart is teaching three English classes and three Latin classes in the high school at Geneva, Alabama. Last year she taught at Rivers Academy, the prep department of Athens College, Athens, Ala.

Polly Stone spent Christmas in Blakely, Ga. Outside of a duel, two murders, and a crazy man being carried off to the asylum, she says the town was very quiet.

Annie Wilson Terry is still teaching at Butler County High School. Her address is 521 Ft. Dale St., Greenville, Ala.

Clara Waldrop has moved to Atlanta, and is living on Park Ave.

Ex '24, Elizabeth Branch is working at the Carnegie Library in Atlanta.

Ex '24, Mary Anderson Brown is studying at the Conservatory of Music in Atlanta.

Ex '24, Helen (Crocker) McElwain's new address is 2003 Grand Central Ave., Tampa, Fla.

Ex '24, Anabel Burkhead is Mrs. E. H. Greene, Apt. 19, Elmwood Apts., Peachtree Road, Atlanta.

Ex '24, Cornelia Cartland is teaching in the grammar school at High Point, N. C.

Ex '24, Jack (Evans) Brownlee is spending the winter in Florida. She celebrated Christmas by having her appendix removed.

Ex '24, Dorothy (Luten) Cave's address is Wichita Falls, Texas. She has been married two years. Her husband is a geologist.

Ex '24, Nannabeth (Preas) Smathers is back home in Johnson City, Tenn., after a motor trip to Florida with Dr. Smathers.

Ex '24, Ruth Spence is supervisor of Public School music in the schools at Kinston, N. C. She expects to go to New York to study voice after another season in light opera in Atlanta this summer.

Ex '24, Frances Turner is teaching at Stone Mountain, and running home to Atlanta for week-ends.

1925—Secretary, Belle Walker, Stillmore, Ga.

Mary Phlegar Brown is teaching in the Tuxedo High School near Hendersonville, N. C. Her address is P. O. Box 760.

Elizabeth Cheatham is teaching in the high school in Athens, Ga. Her address is 135 Prince Avenue.

Mary Palmer Caldwell writes from Lucy Cobb Institute: "The fear of ye dread examinations is gripping the tender souls of my enfants terribles. I am on the other side of the looking-glass this year and I realize that to make out said exams is not such a cinch as I once had an illusion it was."

Bryte Daniel is teaching in Wood Long, N. C.

Our love and sympathy goes out to Mary Palmer Caldwell in the death of her only brother, Jack, on December 5th.

Ruth Drane has been working in Orlando, Florida, and singing in a church choir there. Her engagement is announced in this Quarterly.

Vera Hickman spent last summer visiting in Washington, D. C., for two months, and then motoring over into Canada, making a six thousand mile trip in all.

Araminta Edwards spends her days working for the Retail Credit Company and her nights doing the Charleston in Atlanta.

Frances Gardner is teaching at Elkmont, Ala. Her post office box Number is 91.

Annie Johnson gave up her school when she was called home in the early fall by the death of her father.

Lillian Middlebrooks is teaching history in the Russell High School in East Point, Ga., and coaching an eighth grade boy in Latin. She says that she is finding as much to do to keep her busy as she did at Agnes Scott.

Ruth Owens is teaching at Simpsonville, S. C. The Owens sisters spent Christmas at Anniston, Alabama.

Charlotte Smith is at home in Atlanta after a nervous breakdown, when she was forced to stop teaching.

Jo Douglas, "Professor of Spelling," at Warrenton, Ga., writes: "From September until January 9th, I was completely satisfied with loafing. But now I have come down here for a big experience and I'm getting more than my money's worth. I came to teach History, but am in charge of a very obstreperous 7th grade (a few boys larger than I). The young lady who preceded me was asked to resign because this same 7th grade was taking the roof off the building right over her dead body—so maybe you have an idea I teach a little of everything but mainly am I a disciplinarian. The first day when I came home and looked in the mirror I was afraid of my own stern countenance, and I think it has grown that way. I'm all prepared to wear out some young lads trousers but haven't yet. My opportunity will come though, and I do hope I don't lose my nerve. Every day, I recall what Miss McKinney told me: 'You will learn more than they for two years.' On the whole, I've never had a more interesting time. Every minute is something new, and to my own surprise I like it."

Ex '25. Ruth Pund is now Mrs. Max McCanniss. She has a baby almost a year old.

Ex '25. Annie Mae Terry is teaching in Huntsville, Ala.

Styx Lincoln visited at the college during the last week in January.

Josephine Schuessler is studying at the New York Biblical Seminary. Her address is 541 Lexington Ave., Box 36.

Elizabeth Shaw is teaching Bible and science in Gainesville, Fla. This is the first public school in the state of Florida to put Bible in the curriculum, and Elizabeth is the first teacher. Her address is 22 E. Court St.

Marianne (Strouss) Judson's Tampa address is Box 898. She spent Christmas with her father in Atlanta.

Mary Ben Wright has had to resign her position with the Wayne P. Sewell Publishing Company on account of her health.

Poky Wight is having a great time in Paris studying violin. She is living with a delightful French countess, and ran down into Italy to spend Christmas with a New Orleans girl, a friend of Mary Palmer's, who is studying art in Rome.

And the very idea of Mag Wood's being married all of her senior year and our not knowing it!

Eunice Koll writes enthusiastically of her sixth grade in Pascaugoula, Miss., but she misses her noisy freshmen in Main. Kell was back for the informal reunion of '25 at Thanksgiving.

1925 had a grand and glorious reunion at Thanksgiving at the college! Mary Ann McKinney, Maria Rose, Sarah Tate, Peg Hyatt, Emily Spivey, Mary Brown, Eugenia Thompson, Dot Keith, Lit Griffin, Lou Buchanan, Izzy Ferguson, Carolyn Smith, Ella Smith, Sine Caldwell, Mary Palmer Caldwell, Elizabeth Cheat-ham, Georgia Mae Little and Anne McKay, were back.

Ex '26. Mary Louise Dargan will be graduated from Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C., in June. Last year, Mary Louise started and edited a weekly paper at the College. This year she is giving more of her time to writing. Many of her poems are published in the "Converse Concept," a magazine corresponding to our "Aurora."

Ex '26. Harriet Ferrington writes from her home town of Pine Bluff, Arkansas, that she works only on Thursdays, putting in a full day then with Girl Reserves Clubs and gym classes at the Y. M. C. A. "Only one day's labor in seven would be fine enough, if it were not that I get paid accordingly. I wish I could find a job with more pay and less glory. The other day I substituted in the French and Spanish classes at the high school. It made me swear off all over again. I'd rather be a pauper than a school teacher." The week before Christmas Harriet went over to Carlisle and Hagen, where her sister teaches expression, and danced between the acts of a play her sister was putting on.

Ex '26. Margaret Perry is now Mrs. H. E. Beacham, Box 3562, West Palm Beach, Fla.

COME BACK FOR COMMENCEMENT

"When Spring comes round with rustling shade,
And apple blossoms fill the air—
When Spring brings back blue days and fair—,"

then it's May in Georgia!

Agnes Scott Commencement this year is to be on the week-end of May 22-25, just when the campus is looking its very loveliest. The College gates are always hospitably open to returning alumnae, but especially at commencement time are the "old-timers" welcomed back to the College they love the most.

Dear old Agnes Scott girls, this is a most cordial invitation to you to come back this year and revisit your College, to warm your hearts with pride by learning more of its rapid and sure growth, to see the progressive changes on the campus with your own eyes, and while admiring the new, to see again the dear old places, too,—to stroll along the winding paths beneath the same old oaks, and live again the happy years you spent on Agnes Scott campus.

Every year more and more is made of class reunions, and this commencement we have planned such a big time for returning alumnae as was never heard of before. From Alumnae Headquarters (which will be our lovely Anna Young Alumnae House, of course,) we intend to take the entire campus, and have such a glorious good time that the "stoodents" will sit up and take notice, and long for the May when they are "old-timers" and can come back and put on such a reunion.

All classes ending in '11 and '16 are to meet at the Alumnae House this year for one of the biggest gatherings of alumnae in the history of the College. Not only are the reunion classes invited to return, but any "old girls," graduates or non-graduates, will be welcome. The fact that you live in Tennessee or Virginia or Arkansas must not keep you away for a minute! Why, Anna Marie (Landress) Cate, '21, is bringing her two little Cates all the way from Korea to show them proudly to the class of '21 on their five-year reunion!

Followeth the commencement program for alumnae, which has been worked out with equal parts of joy and hard work—just so that when you arrive Friday night or Saturday morning (or Saturday afternoon if you belong to the laboring class and your boss's heart is hard) you can slip right back into the spirit of Agnes Scott and enjoy every minute of this week-end that comes only once in five years!

ALFRED KREYMBORG LECTURES AT AGNES SCOTT

The College Lecture Association was glad to present on April 15th the poet, dramatist, and editor, Mr. Alfred Kreymborg. Mr. Kreymborg has written a number of volumes of poetry wherein he proclaims himself a rebel against conventions of form and content in poetry; he has contributed many plays to the American theatre, in an ever individual form of comedy, romance, and rythm; he has edited three anthologies of the radical poets; and he has won further fame and popularity in the recent publication of his interesting book, "Troubadours," which is already in its fourth edition. Mr. Kreymborg afforded a unique and delightful evening to the Agnes Scott audience, by reading one of his plays and chanting many of his poems to the accompaniment of the mandolite, (an instrument which is a cross between a mandolin and a lute). Mr. Kreymborg had planned to bring his puppet plays of the Mushroom Theatre to Agnes Scott but on account of the illness of his wife who assists him in manipulating the puppets, he was unable to do so this time. The repertory of the Mushroom Players is entirely composed of his own plays, poems, and pantomimes.

Mr. Kreymborg's lecture was the last in the series brought to the college this year by the Lecture Association. Other speakers were Mr. John Drinkwater, Professor Edward P. Cheyney, and the Count Byron de Prorock,

THRONGS WITNESS MAY DAY DANCES

May Day! How the name brings up a thousand memories to those of us who have anxiously peeped through the protecting background of bushes at the enormous crowd of spectators, before whom we should presently be whirling and skipping and waltzing; or, if such were denied to us, sat on cushions on the front row, watching our more graceful room mates, and friends transformed into fairies, spirits of smoke, snowdrops, Grecian maidens!

This year May Day was bigger and better than ever before. It was held, instead of under the "May Day Oak," down in the woods in our new amphitheatre, beyond the new gymnasium. The orchestra was larger this year and the cast consisted of a hundred and seventy girls where heretofore there have never been more than a hundred and thirty or forty.

The scenario was written by Caroline Essig and the title was "The Triumph of Spring." Briefly, the story is as follows: A little Elf has the Golden Apple, "Youth," which was stolen by Winter from the Hesperides. All the flowers beg for the apple. The Elf calls the most beautiful maiden in all the world to decide which shall have it. The May Queen and her attendants enter. Then the flowers of the various nations come to dance before the Queen. There are dancers from the American Indian, Ancient Greece, Japan, Holland, Hungaria, Scandinavia, China, Spain, and Old England. At the close of the dances of the nations, the Queen rises and says that each one is perfect and as the pervading spirit of all is Spring, she will give the apple to her. When, however, the Queen turns to get the apple she finds that the little Elf has eaten half of it. So Spring, who rules only half the year, gets just half the Golden Apple which is "Youth."

The May Queen, Edythe Coleman, of Atlanta, was beautiful in a dress of white taffeta. Her fourteen attendants also wore taffeta dresses in pastel shades and carried old-fashioned bouquets. Hundreds of visitors from Atlanta, Decatur, and from out of town thronged the campus during the afternoon to witness this great spring spectacle which the College puts on each May, and which each year attracts an increasingly large number of spectators.

INSTITUTION OF THE BETA CHAPTER OF GEORGIA OF PHI BETA KAPPA IN AGNES SCOTT

The outstanding event of the year at Agnes Scott was the institution, March 23rd, of the chapter of Phi Beta Kappa that was granted to the College last September. As President Thwing of the United Chapters was in Europe, the secretary, Doctor Oscar M. Voorhees was commissioned by President Thwing to conduct the exercises.

At four o'clock Doctor Voorhees and the charter members assembled in the Propylean Hall and Doctor Voorhees proceeded to organize the chapter. After the chapter was installed and the officers elected the chapter proceeded to the formal election of new members. President James Ross McCain was elected as a Foundation member.

It was a deep disappointment to the charter members to find in drawing up their by-laws that the regulations of the United Chapters restrict the consideration of alumnae for election to those whose day of graduation dates back fifteen years. Through much correspondence it was found impossible to modify this regulation. Under this provision the alumnae of only six classes were eligible and, as those six early classes were small, only six alumnae members were elected. They are:

Ida Lee Hill Irvin, '06.
Lizzabel Saxon, '08.
Ruth Marion Wisdom, '09.
Margaret McCallie, '09.
Lucile Alexander, '11.
Mary Wallace Kirk, '11.

Five members in course were elected from the class of 1926. They are:

Grace Augusta Ogden, Mobile, Alabama.
Juanita Greer, Atlanta, Georgia.
Isabel Clarke, Atlanta, Georgia.
Margaret Whittington, Atlanta, Georgia.
Nan Russell Lingle, Richmond, Virginia.

These candidates were all present and, with two other candidates elected to membership in the Gamma Chapter of North Carolina, and the Gamma of Iowa, respectively, were duly initiated. Following the initiation the new members were welcomed into Phi Beta Kappa by Doctor Voorhees and the other members of the Society.

The initiation was followed by a dinner given by the College to the Phi Beta Kappa Society in the Anna Young Alumnae House. There were sixty-five present including Trustees of the College and representatives of twenty-one chapters. The tables in the Silhouette Tea Room were arranged in banquet style and lovely with daffodils, pussy-willows and other spring flowers and the dinner was beautifully served by the very efficient staff of the Alumnae House. Professor Holt, president of the Beta of Georgia chapter, presided and Doctor McCain welcomed the guests and pledged that Agnes Scott College would maintain the ideals and standards of Phi Beta Kappa. Mr. Dudley Cowles made a brief speech as the representative of Phi Beta Kappa in Atlanta and greetings were received from representatives of the chapters in Randolph-Macon College, Goucher College, the University of Georgia, the University of North Carolina, Davidson College and Johns Hopkins University.

Shortly before half-past eight o'clock the meeting adjourned to the auditorium in the new gymnasium. The speakers of the evening, the representatives of other chapters, the charter members and the new members entered in academic procession. After songs by the Glee Club, and a brief speech by Professor Holt, the charter was presented to the chapter by Doctor Voorhees and read aloud to the audience. The presentation was followed by a discussion by Doctor Voorhees of the traditions and ideals that Phi Beta Kappa intrusted to the Beta of Georgia Chapter. Professor Holt then introduced the speaker of the evening, Professor R. E. Park of the Alpha of Georgia Chapter, who spoke in a most compelling manner of the responsibility of the scholar in the community. Following Professor Park, Doctor Voorhees spoke more at length on the ideals and influence of Phi Beta Kappa and the distinction and achievements of its members. The meeting was adjourned with the singing of Alma Mater.

The Beta Chapter of Georgia is especially appreciative of the warmth of the welcome extended to it by the members of Phi Beta Kappa in Georgia and the chapters in the South Atlantic District. On the evening preceding the institution of the chapter, a dinner was given to the charter members and the members-elect by Phi Beta Kappa in Atlanta at the Piedmont Driving Club at which time the President, Mr. Dudley R. Cowles, and other speakers expressed their hearty approval of the new chapter. The following afternoon and evening the President and many of the other members of Phi Beta Kappa in Atlanta showed their interest further by attendance on the ceremonies at Agnes Scott. Many members of the Society from other parts of the state were also present. The chapters of the District were cordial in their letters of congratulations and were well represented by official delegates and other members at the institution of the chapter.

AGNES SCOTT VICTORIOUS IN INTERCOLLEGIATE DEBATES

The annual intercollegiate debates between Agnes Scott, Randolph-Macon Womans College, and Sophie Newcomb were held this year on the night of March 19th. According to custom, the affirmative team of each college stayed at home, and the negative team was sent out to battle with the "friendly enemy." Randolph-Macon debated Agnes Scott at Decatur, Ga.; Agnes Scott debated Sophie Newcomb at New Orleans, La.; and Sophie Newcomb met Randolph-Macon on its home ground at Lynchburg, Va. The subject for debate was "Resolved, that China should be given at the present time complete control over her customs-tariffs, and foreigners within her boundaries." Elsa Jacobsen, Janet McDonald and Louisa White, alternate, represented Agnes Scott at home, and Catherine Graeber, Eloise Harris and Mary Loyd Davis, alternate, chaperoned by Miss Hearon, went to Sophie Newcomb. True to unbroken precedent, the decision at Agnes Scott was given in favor of the affirmative. Isabel Ferguson, '25, herself a former intercollegiate debater, presided, and as soon as she had read the decision, and the Alma Mater had been sung, the crowd surged over to the Main Building to await the phone call from Miss Hearon at Newcomb. When the message came that we were victorious there also, a shout went up that Miss Hearon said she heard all the way to New Orleans. Agnes Scott has won nine of the twelve debates she has taken part in since the triangular arrangement was started six years ago. Sophie Newcomb was victorious over Randolph-Macon this year in Lynchburg.

PINE LODGE AND VENABLE GUEST COTTAGE ARE AGNES SCOTT CAMPS

Agnes Scott students realized a long-cherished dream when, in the spring of 1924, the doors of "Pine Lodge," their camp at Stone Mountain, were formally opened. They have been informally open ever since, and not a single Saturday has passed which has not seen a bus-full of week-end campers from the College drive up the winding road through the woods to Pine Lodge. It is a charming little brown cabin situated in a grove of hickory and pine trees overlooking the Venable lake. Mr. Sam Venable who owns Stone Mountain and a large tract of land adjoining it, very graciously gave the College the privilege of building the Lodge on his private estate, about half a mile from his own beautiful summer home. Inside the Lodge, there is a long comfortable living room extending across the front of the house, where a big leather davenport drawn up before the huge fire-place made of Stone Mountain granite adds greatly to the comfort and attractiveness of the room. In the back there is a sleeping porch with double decker built-in beds, and a convenient little kitchen equipped with a wood stove and a sufficient supply of pots and pans to prepare meals for fifteen week-end guests and the camp appetites that a climb up Stone Mountain or a swim in the lake gives them.

Just across the lake from Pine Lodge is the guest cottage belonging to the Venables, which they have turned over to the Agnes Scott girls to use from September to June of every year. It has a spacious verandah from which you get an exquisite view of mountain and lake, and inside the house is a piano, another huge stone fireplace, a full length mirror,—in short, all the comforts of home. Now two parties of ten or more each can go out every week-end to rusticate after the intellectual storm of the week. Agnes Scott can never thank the Venables enough for their kindness and the many thoughtful things they have done for their week-end neighbors.

There are quite enough amusements at Pine Lodge and the Guest Cottage to fill every minute of a too-short week-end. There is always the grey old mountain towering up behind the Lodge and challenging you to a stiff climb. There are beautiful paths winding away through the woods to explore, and after spring comes, if there is an approved life-saver in the party and Miss Randolph has marked the limits with turkey red flags, and Dr. Sweet has killed all the typhoid germs, there is swimming in the Venable lake. In the evening, there is always dancing and stunts. If the night is warm you can sit out on the verandahs in the moonlight and sing to the campers across the lake, or if it is a cool November evening, gather around the fire blazing in the huge stone fireplace.

Pine Lodge welcomes Agnes Scott's daughters, old and young. During the summer months when the present generation of students is away on summer vacations, the alumnae or faculty are enjoying its peace and beauty. This year for the first time, it is to work in with the general scheme of things during commencement week-end, for the class of '21 is to spend a day and night of their reunion there.

Pine Lodge is a very important part of Agnes Scott life now—we marvel that we ever got along without it!

NEW READING COURSES OFFERED TO ALUMNAE

The experiment tried for the first time during 1925-26 by the Alumnae Association of offering reading courses to the members of the Association has worked out so successfully that the curriculum committee, which is in charge of this work, is announcing not only that the same courses will be available for study during 1926-27, but four new courses are to be added.

The outlines used this year dealt with the following subjects:

Art History.
 Modern Drama.
 Modern Poetry.
 Sociology.
 History of Europe Since 1870.

The new courses are to be:

Music Appreciation, prepared by Mr. Dieckman.
 Politics, Government and Parliamentary Law, prepared by Miss Hearon.
 Child Psychology, prepared by Mr. Stukes.
 Modern French Reading Course, prepared by Miss Alexander.

The charge for the outline of each course is $1.00. Only one outline will be sent to an alumna, at a time, but on completion of any course the secretary will be glad to send another outline.

Although the majority of us resent very keenly the unjust remark of Mr. James Branch Cabell's that "the South is an intellectual Sahara," many of the alumnae who have taught in some of the tiny towns we find in the South would be almost ready to agree with him. The work in the College after College courses, arranged by the Curriculum Committee has been eagerly carried on this year by a number of the alumnae, but a great cry has gone up from those stranded in towns such as the ones just mentioned, that they cannot do the work satisfactorily because they cannot obtain the necessary books. Many of these towns have no libraries, or very inadequate ones connected with the High Schools and containing only the books for required reading in High School courses; and it is impossible for any one to buy from a school teacher's salary check the twelve or fourteen books used in each college after college course. Yet these same small town teachers were among the ones who manifested the greatest interest in the courses and wished to do the work.

At this very critical time in the life of the College after College courses (for without help they would most certainly have perished), Miss Jean Davis, professor of Sociology and Economics, came to the rescue with a generous personal gift of the following fifteen volumes, needed in connection with the general course in Sociology.

The Standard of Living—Comish.
 Principles of Labor Legislation—Commons and Andrews.
 Heredity and Environment—Conklin.
 The Causes of Industrial Unrest—Fitch.
 Taboo and Genetics—Knight, Peters and Blanchard.
 Human Origins—McCurdy, Vols. 1 and 2.
 Representative Government in Industry—Myers.
 The Lady—Putnam.
 Social Work in the Light of History—Queen.
 What is Social Case Work?—Richmond.

Social Control—Ross.

Criminology—Sutherland.

The Scientific Spirit and Social Work—Todd.

American Economic Life and the Means of Its Improvement—Tugwell, Munro, Stryker.

Problems of Subnormality—Wallin.

These books have established their headquarters in the Alumnae office, but they are to be mailed out to any alumna on request and the price of postage, and it is expected that they will have very little opportunity to sit unused on the Alumnae Bookshelf.

Miss Davis has helped the alumnae in a very vital way. Can we not dream that others, seeing the usefulness of such a circulating library among the alumnae, will add more volumes to this collection and so fill a great need among us?

NEW BOOK OF VIEWS

One of the most welcome college publications of the year is the new book of campus views, which came from the press in March. The old view book was decidedly passé, not even containing a picture of the Alumnae House, which celebrated its fourth birthday last month. Other new pictures are several good interiors and exterior views of the new Bucher Scott gymnasium-auditorium and the same views of the college camp at Stone Mountain that are printed in this issue of the Quarterly. Any alumna who would be interested in having one of these books of views can obtain it by writing to the Alumnae Secretary.

SHRUBBERY PLANTED BY ALUMNAE

The Alumnae Association committee on beautifying buildings and grounds has done a most satisfying piece of work in the foundation planting that was done in March around the sides and rear of Inman Hall, and behind the Alumnae House. Several years ago, shrubs and dwarf evergreens were planted by this committee in front of Inman and during the time that has elapsed since then they have added greatly to the looks of the dormitory. These new shrubs are exactly the same kind and already they have helped the looks of this side of the campus a great deal.

RADIO PROGRAM

The radio program which was broadcast by the College Glee Club on Founders' Day was a phenomenal success. This is by far the biggest thing we have ever attempted in the way of publicity, and the excellent station used (WSB, the Atlanta Journal), the splendid weather which made it easy to pick up the program, and the loyal response of alumnae over the country, all combined to let hundreds of people scattered over the entire United States know that not only does the Atlanta Journal, Atlanta Georgia, cover Dixie like the dew, but that Agnes Scott is a great college and a well loved one.

A notice of the program had been sent out beforehand from the Alumnae office to every girl who ever attended Agnes Scott, and on the appointed night, they were listening in and eagerly waiting to hear Miss Hopkins' and Dr. Cain's voices. Telegrams, long distance phone calls, and letters were received from twenty-seven states in the Union, from California to New York to Florida. Until some other invention comes along to take the place of radio, a program of songs and speeches will continue to be broadcasted from the college every Founders' Day.

ALUMNAE PLAYS WIN SUCCESS

The three one-act plays written by the members of Miss Nan Stephens' play-writing class have won fame and glory for Agnes Scott outside the campus gates. The first performance, which was given at the College on February 20th, was such a success that the Charlotte, North Carolina, Agnes Scott club asked the Blackfriars to come to Charlotte and give them during Spring holidays. The Charlotte branch of the A. A. U. W. and the local Agnes Scott club were joint sponsors for this performance. On April 13th, the same bill of plays was given a third time—this performance being in Atlanta in the Woman's Club Auditorium, sponsored by the city Drama League. The alumnae are very proud of the success achieved by the Blackfriars. Miss Nan Stephens, teacher of the class, who is a member of the class of '—, and the three authors, Margaret Bland, '20; Polly Stone, '24; and Grace Augusta Ogden, '26.

MISS HEARON HONORED

Miss Cleo Hearon, head of the department of English at the College, has been invited by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace to go to Europe this summer to study International Relations. This conference has as its object the desire to make American teachers more familiar with international problems and to help them in their investigations along this line. About fifty teachers in American universities and colleges, who are especially interested in the study and teaching of international relations, will form the party. They will visit Paris, The Hague, and Geneva, and will have an unusual opportunity to visit many places of interest, such as the Permanent Court of International Justice, the Permanent Court of Arbitration, the Academy of International Law—all at the Hague—and the League of Nations at Geneva.

CONVENTION OF ALUMNI SECRETARIES

Polly Stone, '24, general secretary of the Alumnae Association, attended the thirtieth annual conference of Alumni and Alumnae Secretaries held in Columbus, Ohio, upon invitation of the Ohio State University, April 15, 16, and 17. One hundred and twenty-two secretaries, representing ninety-one colleges and universities in the United States and Canada sent representatives. The various problems which confront the secretary in his work were discussed, and a magazine clinic held to analyze the different alumni publications. Among the inspirational speakers at the convention were President George W. Rightmire of Ohio State University; Professor William J. Newlin of Amherst College; Dr. Clarence Cook Little, President of the University of Michigan; and Dr. Harry A. Garfield, President of Williams College. The convention will be held in the South next spring.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., ORGANIZES LOCAL CLUB

The Agnes Scott alumnae in Asheville, have been wanting to form themselves into a club for some time, and during the spring holidays, when Miss Lucile Alexander of the French Department was visiting in Asheville, they seized the opportunity of starting off the club under her inspiration. E. (Moss) Harris, the secretary of the club, writes:

"Beth Taylor invited us to meet at her house, 34 Courtland Ave., on Wednesday, March 31st, at 3:30 P. M. We were all so glad to see Miss Alexander, and to know that she will be here all next summer. The alumnae present were:

Jeanette Archer, '22 (from Montreat);
Maurine Bledsoe, '27;
Catherine Carrier, '25;
Virginia Carrier, '28;
Eloise Gaines, '28;
Reba Barnard;
Elizabeth (Moss) Harris, '20; Bess McConnell;
Margaret McConnell, '20;
Catherine Randolph, '25;
Ruth (Warner) Stout, ex '24.

Catherine Carrier was elected President; Beth Taylor, Vice-President, and Elizabeth (Moss) Harris, Secretary-Treasurer. We decided to meet the last Saturday in every month, but our next meeting will be May 1st, as Jeannette Archer is going to Atlanta for Grand Opera week and we want her report on opera and doings at the college as part of the program.

OTHER CLUBS

The other Agnes Scott clubs are carrying on their work steadily and quietly. The Atlanta club is completing plans for re-furnishing the living room of the Anna Young Alumnae House next year. They will have the new curtains up by commencement of this year. The Decatur club is busy with plans for their annual spring rummage sale to make their pockets jingle. The Baby show plans are well under way, also, and they have volunteered to keep fresh flowers in all the rooms of the Alumnae House during commencement. The Richmond club presented the House with a doorstop in March. It represents a lovely little old fashioned lady with wide pink skirts, and is used in the 1921 room. It was painted by Louise Payne, ex 11, a member of the club. The president of the Birmingham club has done a wonderful year's work with her group. They are planning a mysterious gift to the Alumnae House with the surplus in their treasury, but until commencement time no one is to know the nature of the gift. Other clubs are busily winding up their work for the year, and making plans for even better and bigger achievements during the coming months.

Concerning Ourselves

The announcements of engagements which usually fill this space will be read at the Trustees' luncheon to the alumnae and senior class on May 22nd at the College. For the benefit of those who are unable to get back to commencement this year, these will be printed in the first Quarterly issued in the fall.

NEWS BY CLASSES

1893—Secretary, Mary Barnett Martin (Mrs. A. V.), 171 S. Broad St., Clinton, S. C.

1894—Secretary, Mary Neel Kendrick (Mrs. W. F.), Fort McPherson, Ga.

1895—Secretary, Winifred Quarterman, Waycross, Georgia.

1896—Secretary, Mary Ethel Davis, 820 Sycamore St., Decatur, Ga.

Mamie Baker, ex '96, is church secretary at Wesley Memorial Methodist Church, one of the big downtown churches of Atlanta.

New address: Mary Frances (Winship) Walters, ex '96, is now at 750 Ponce de Leon Ave., Atlanta.

'96, this is our reunion year, and we must by all means come back to commencement in May, for we shall be the oldest class, and all the new young grads are pledged to make a fuss over us, and make us feel more important than we have felt since that May day thirty years ago when Dr. Gaines handed us our diplomas. Get in touch with the class secretary about reunion plans.

1897—Secretary, Cora Strong, N. C. C. W., Greensboro, N. C.

Willie (Goss) Gardner, ex '97, has joined the general exodus to Florida. She is living at 249 Fifth St., N., St. Petersburg.

1899—Secretary, Nellie Mandeville Henderson (Mrs. C. K.), Carrollton, Ga.

Lost—The address of Mary Carson, now Mrs. Linton Johnson, ex '99. Any members of '99 who are now in touch with Mrs. Johnson, are asked to send her address to the alumnae office.

1900—Secretary, Ethel (Alexander) Gaines (Mrs. L. M.), 18 Park Lane, Atlanta.

1901—Secretary, Adeline (Arnold) Loridans (Mrs. Charles), 16 E. 15th St., Atlanta.

The twenty-fifth year reunion class! If Georgia (Kyser) Youngblood and Addie (Arnold) Loridans don't win the attendance cup, something ought to be done to them, for they are the only living members of their class, and one of them lives in Alabama and the other in Atlanta!

1902—Secretary, Laura (Caldwell) Edmonds (Mrs. A. S.), 240 King St., Portland, Oregon.

Ex '02, Mattie (Wright) Goodwin has a son, Thomas, in the University of Georgia orchestra, the Bulldogs. The orchestra is going to Europe this summer and play their way across the continent. Mattie's other children are Robert Roy, Jr., Charles, and Anna.

1903—Secretary, Eileen Gober, 515 Cherokee St., Marietta, Ga.

Lucy (Candler) Heinz, ex '03, made a trip to Florida during March. The lawn of Lucy's home is a forest of little dogwood trees, and during the spring when they are all in bloom, her home is one of the most beautiful places in Atlanta.

The class secretary has been undergoing a siege of flu, and she offers that as a legitimate excuse for having no more class news.

Lost alumna: Anna Daum, ex '03.

1904—Secretary, Lois (Johnson) Aycock (Mrs. C. G.), 170 Penn Ave., Atlanta.

1905—Secretary, Mabel McKowen, Lindsay, La. Mistake in register: Emma Bell (Dubose) Johnson lives at 95 Cottage Grove Ave., East Lake, Decatur, Ga.

1906—Secretary, Ethel (McDonald) Castellow, Cuthbert, Ga.

Girls of '06, mark May 21st on your calendar with purple ink, for that is the day to pack your suit case and board the train for Decatur. Commencement is to be from May 22nd to May 25th, and we want to show Agnes Scott that the class of '06 can come back to reunion, twenty years later, one hundred per cent strong!

Ida Lee (Hill) Irvin is our most illustrious member, being the first graduate of Agnes Scott to be taken into the chapter of Phi Beta Kappa installed at the college in March. She was a guest at the Alumnae House during the installation. A recent letter from her reads: "The life of a mother of three has variety aplenty. Between nursing chicken pox, which the children developed while I was at the Phi Beta Kappa initiation, painting Easter eggs, and getting ready for our "trek" to Valdosta in June, I am very busy. If you do not believe getting ready and taking three small children, their mother, grandmother and "Mammy" on a three hundred mile trip through the country is a job that calls into use all of the brains you ever trained at college—and some you didn't—just try it. All this year I have been in the third grade with my oldest girl, and now after being initiated into Phi Beta Kappa, next year I shall be demoted to the first grade, with the entrance of my oldest boy to school. All three children continue to puzzle me with their questions—in theology, and other things. So while I am not adding M.A.'s and Ph.D.'s to my Agnes Scott A.B., my brain is not shrivelling from absolute lack of use."

Speaking of degrees and graduate study, Carlotta Alexander's record is an interesting one. She had two years at Chicago University; Smith College summer school of Psychiatric Social Service; Johns Hopkins; one year under Dr. V. V. Anderson, of the National Mental Hygiene Association in his survey of Georgia; and one year at Columbia, where she took her B.S. degree.

Mary (Kelly) Van de Erve has been visiting in Atlanta.

Correction to register: Anna Plunkett (Mrs. Norwell Cullom), ex '06, deceased.

Lost alumna: Julia Preston, ex '06.

1907—Secretary, Sarah (Boals) Spinks (Mrs. J. D.), 501 Gloria Ave., Winston-Salem, N. C.

Ex '07—Maye (McDonald) Mills has moved from Mississippi and is now living in Charlotte, North Carolina.

Lost alumnae: Nellie Legg, ex '07; Annette Moore, ex '07; Floy Moore, ex '07; girls of '07, please help the alumnae secretary to get in touch with these lost alumnae. If you do not know their present addresses, send her the names of people who would be apt to know, and through whom she can probably trace them.

Louise Strong Fallizant, ex '07, has moved to 301 E. 40th St. She is head of the department of English at the 35th Street Junior High School in Savannah, Ga.

Rachel (Young) Gardner has a daughter, Lenore, in the freshman class at Agnes Scott this year.

1908—Secretary, Louise Shipp Chick, 306 C. St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Lizzabel Saxon is the illustrious member of '08, who was taken into the new chapter of Phi Beta Kappa in March. Lizzabel is still teaching at the Girls' High School in Atlanta. They have moved into a fine new building, and have one of the best equipped high schools in the South.

Ex '08. Marie Houston is now Mrs. John O. DuPree, 101 Penn Ave., Atlanta. Penn Avenue must be a regular A. S. C. settlement; no less than seven former Agnes Scott girls live there, and the street is only a few blocks long.

Ex '08. Annie Ludlow is now Mrs. Joseph F. Cannon, of Concord, N. C.

Ex '08. Anna (Patton) Kirkpatrick's street address was omitted in the Alumnae Register. It is 601 Green St., Augusta, Ga.

Ex '08. Nellie Taylor is Mrs. Charles E. Evans, of Shreveport, La.

Lost alumnae: Louise Phinizy, ex '08, and Lucile Shuford, now Mrs. James W. Bagley, ex '08. Also Eleanor Somerville, ex '08.

1909—Secretary, Margaret McCallie, 833 Fort Wood St., Chattanooga, Tenn.

The secretary paid a visit to the college recently when she and Ruth (Marion) Wisdom were initiated into Phi Beta Kappa. Margaret is going to spend the summer in Italy and Spain.

Ex '09, Nell (Coats) Pentecost has moved from Arkansas to 638 N. McLean Blvd., Memphis, Tenn.

Ex '09. Eloise Ervin is now Mrs. Louis Brown McKoy, Clement Ave., Charlotte, N. C.

Ex '09. Fendley Dudley Glass has moved from Alabama to 1244 N. W. 7th Court, Miami, Fla.

Ex '09. Correction to register—Agnes Kime, deceased.

Lost alumnae: Mildred Dickson, ex '09; Dina Wisdom, ex '09.

1910—Secretary, Agnes (Nicolassen) Wharton (Mrs. T. J.), Bessemer, Ala.

Whenever the secretary gets up a tree for class news, Flora (Crowe) Whitmire obligingly moves again, and sends in a new address for the '10 column. Until the publication of the next Quarterly, at least, Flora is living at 8919 Sutphin Blvd., Jamaica, New York.

Clyde (McDaniel) Jackson is one of the leading spirits in the Agnes Scott club at Charlotte, N. C.

Julia (Christian) Preston, ex '10, Queens Road, Myers Park, Charlotte, N. C.

Lost alumnae: Ethel Alderman, ex '10; Sydney Gabbett, ex '10; Lilly Satterthwait, ex '10; Edna Wade, ex '10; Marian Wood, ex '10; Euphemia Young, ex '10. Girls of '10, surely some of you have kept up with these members of our class, and can send their addresses to the Alumnae Secretary.

1911—Secretary, Theodosia (Willingham) Anderson (Mrs. W.), 63 Avery Drive, Atlanta.

Lucile Alexander and Mary Wallace Kirk were honored in March by election to membership in the Phi Beta Kappa chapter at Agnes Scott. Only six of the alumnae were taken in, and 1911 feels very proud to have contributed two of the six alumnae members.

Adelaide Cunningham and Theodosia (Willingham) Anderson are busily making plans for the biggest and best reunion yet! May 22nd to May 25th are the dates. The fifteen year reunion class won the cup for attendance last May—why can't we take this as a precedent and let it happen again this year?

Gladys (Lee) Kelly has moved from Monticello, Ga., to Hendersonville, N. C.

New address: Rebecca (Candler) Goodman, ex '11, 436 S. Florida Ave., Lakeland, Fla.

Eliza (McDonald) Muse, ex '11, is at 9 East Ave., Greenville, S. C.

Gussie (O'Neal) Johnson, ex '11, is largely responsible for the success of the radio program broadcasted from the Atlanta Biltmore by the college glee club on Founders Day. She is the director of the glee club. Gussie's father has recently had a stroke of paralysis.

Richmond address of Louise Payne, ex '11, is 101 E. Grace St.

Lost—Ex-members of '11: Nina Anderson, Jane Gwinn, Margaret Murphy, Alice Weathers, Louise Wise, and Charlotte Woodbridge.

1912—Secretary, Marie (MacIntyre) Scott (Mrs. John T.), Scottdale, Ga.

Antoinette (Blackburn) Rust has a new street address: 925 Oakview St., Columbus, Ga.

At the tea given to the Senior class recently by the Alumnae Association, one of the seniors said to Marie (MacIntyre) Scott: "Mrs. Scott, it sounds just too grand for anything to be Mrs. Scott, of Scottdale." "Yes," Marie replied, "and I'm the richest and the best looking woman in town, too." The senior was simply staggered for a minute by the conceit of the woman. "And the poorest and the ugliest, too," Marie went on. "In fact, I'm the only woman there."

Mary Bacon Duncan, ex '12, is now Mrs. S. F. Clabaugh, Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Susette (Joerg) Flournoy's street address is now 1502 Stark Ave., Columbus, Ga.

Helen McClaughry, ex '12, who has been figuring in the "Lost Alumnae" column, is living at 1941 Blake Blvd., Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Margaret Tissington, ex '12, is now Mrs. G. G. Curl 1136 W. 33rd St., Oklahoma City, Okla.

The alumnae office will be grateful for the addresses of the following ex-members of '12: Fannie Anderson, Bernice May Benson, Hortense Boyle, Alice Houston.

1913—Secretary, Allie (Candler) Guy (Mrs. J. Sam), 65 N. Decatur Road, Atlanta.

The Committee of the Alumnae Association on Beautifying Grounds and Buildings, of which Allie (Candler) Guy is chairman, has been busy planting evergreens around the back of Iman and the Alumnae House. They are growing nicely, and are a beautiful addition to the looks of the campus.

Janie McGaughy writes: "I am still a member of the staff of a wide-awake downtown church of 1,400 members—the First Presbyterian Church of Knoxville, Tenn. Am directing work of young people, teaching Bible to business girls, industrial girls clubs, and in the mills, and am deeply in love with my work. Each summer finds me at Camp Greystone, Tuxedo, N. C. This summer will be my seventh as Head Councillor there. We found fifteen Knoxville Agnes Scoters and had a fine get-together luncheon just preceding Founders Day. Were all so enthusiastic and enjoyed the radio program."

We sympathize with Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Dieckmann in the death of their first baby in February. Mrs. Dieckmann was Emma Pope Moss.

New address: Florence Smith, Box 525, Hayward, California.

Mary Harlee, ex '13, is now Mrs. D. C. Anderson, 6000 Velasco St., Dallas, Texas.

LaValette (Sloan) Tucker, visited Emma Pope (Moss) Dieckmann in April.

Lost alumnae: Helen Harvey, ex '13; Walter Lewis, ex '13; Margaret Slummons (or Slummons), ex '13; Fannie Sterne, ex '13.

Annie Ray, ex '13, is now Mrs. Howard H. Jones, of Atlanta.

Lina (Andrews) Rauchenberg, ex '13, has been very ill at an Atlanta hospital for several weeks.

1914—Secretary, Martha (Rogers) Noble (Mrs. George H., Jr.), West Andrews Drive, Atlanta.

Lottie May (Blair) Lawton is secretary of the Greenville, S. C., branch of the A. A. U. W., a lively organization of about one hundred members. The Branch recently held its annual College Day celebration at which time Lott was spokesman for Agnes Scott. Quite a little gathering of A. S. C. grads was there and they held a delightful confab comparing times at A. S. C. They were: Elizabeth (Curry) Winn, '07; Grace Hardie, '03; Eugenia (Fuller) Estes, '09; Margery (Moore) McAulay, '20, and Lott.

Helen (Brown) Webb spent Christmas in Louisville, Ky.

Theodosia (Cobbs) Hogan has a new home in Columbia, Mo.

Sarah (Hansell) Cousar is living in St. Albans, West Virginia, where her husband is pastor of the Presbyterian church. They are on leave of absence from their mission work in Japan. They have two children, a boy and a girl.

Charlotte Jackson is still travelling in her work as representative of Dr. Sweet's office in Louisville, Ky., in the interest of Christian Education and Ministerial Relief of the Presbyterian Church. Chartie has a large territory and hence has the opportunity of meeting many Agnes Scott friends. She was recently in Florida and speaks knowingly of Miami real estate and such. She also took a jaunt over to Cuba. She emphasizes this as a pleasure trip. Now just what does Chartie mean by that? It is through Charlotte that we learn news of Margaret (Brown) Bachman, ex '14. She is living in Tampa, where her husband is a Boy Scout Executive. They have two little daughters and an orange grove! The girls are named Margaret and Katherine.

Annie Tait Jenkins raises tomatoes in Crystal Springs, Miss., the Tomatopolis of the world! Isn't that a good word? Crystal Springs made it up, or maybe Tait did!

Essie (Roberts) Dupre's new address (1062 Piedmont Ave., Apt. 7, Della Manta Apts., Atlanta, Ga.), is as long and complicated as those north-west, south-east 18th court addresses that Miami people have. But Essie has more than a yard-long address; inside apartment number seven is little Miss Anne Dupre, born January 27th.

Ex '14, Beth Duncan is supervisor of music in the schools in South Charles Town, W. Va. Her permanent address is still Elberton, Ga.

Linda (Miller) Summer writes from Newberry, S. C.: "Charlotte Jackson has been here making a talk in the Presbyterian church. We enjoyed a long talk over our four annuals, 1911, 1912, 1913 and 1914."

Ex '14: Sarah G. Adams received her M. A. degree from Columbia University in February and since then has been teaching in New York. She will spend the summer at Statesville, N. C., her former home.

Edna (Taylor) Walker, ex '14, is back from the Canal Zone and is living at 1909 S. Main St., Hopkinsville, Ky.

Lost ex-member of '14: Evelyn Hubert. Ex '15: Annie Irvin is working in the Georgia Railway Bank in Augusta, Ga.

1915—The class of 1915 doesn't mean to appropriate the whole rest of the Quarterly, but the secretary has been urging us ever since we were graduated to send in news about ourselves, and we have simply "up and done it!" These writings were prepared for our tenth year reunion.

BETWEEN THE LINES AT '15'S REUNION

Ten long years had passed over our heads—shearing the locks from some of us, adjusting pince-nez to the noses of others, and adding a few pounds and "that matronly air" to still others, yet when we met in the mob of alumnae at the Trustees' luncheon on Saturday of commencement, the class of 1915 recognized itself without the slightest difficulty.

The luncheon was lovely, and when the reunioning classes were asked to rise, and '15 stood blushing, happy, and self-conscious, Mary Kelly spoke up nobly and said that we felt that it would not be complete unless Miss McKinney stood with us. Across the big dining-room we saw dear Miss McKinney rise and beam on us.

After the luncheon and after the annual alumnae meeting, we drove in to the Atlanta Biltmore to see the exhibit from the Grand Central Art Galleries of New York. The Blackfriars Commencement outdoor play that night brought old memories of the time back in 1915 when we spent that day anxiously watching the sky and praying for it not to rain that night—it always did!

Sunday afternoon Mary Helen and Mary West took the crowd to ride all around Atlanta and then to Mary Helen's to supper. There were in our midst three husbands—Sally's, Mary West's, and Mary Helen's. One of our chief sports was looking at Mary Helen's kodak pictures taken ten or fourteen years ago. We shouted with laughter over the spectacles we must have been in those days in our long, long skirts, high shoes, tight waists and huge pompadours. We all agreed that we were far younger and better looking today—a sentiment in which the three husbands joined.

Monday we went to a luncheon given by Mary West in the Alumnae House, and there we had, in a sense, our real reunion. We read all the letters that we had received from absent members—absent in body, present in spirit, as we were constantly assured. It was there that we talked most of our next reunion and how we simply must make it a great success.

We had a protracted meeting, after Class Day in the Alumnae House, and while we were all sitting around together, Grace Harris's wedding announcement reached us, and Eunice Kell, Frances's little sister who was graduating in the class of 1925, brought her father and mother over to see the House, and incidentally to join our reunion for a few minutes.

Supper together in the tea room, then a grand heira into town to a movie with Grace Reid.

And so happened and ended the reunion.

Each year the reunion class with the highest percentage of attendance is awarded a loving cup by the Alumnae Association. This year the class of 1910 won. If they can come back after fifteen years and get the laurels, why can't we? Let's make our next reunion in 1930 the best yet!

C. P.

THE CLASS OF '15 SPEAKS FOR ITSELF
602 N. Patterson St., Valdosta, Georgia.

"A preacher husband and two small boys" might be considered a summary of my life for the last several years. Those of you who know much about preachers and boys, can fill in the rest.

MARGARET (ANDERSON) SCOTT.

Le Brou Avenue and Thorn Place,
Montgomery, Alabama.

The summer after graduation was spent at Columbia, then back to dear old Agnes Scott as fellow and laboratory assistant. The following year, through the assistance of Dr. Guy and Miss Cady, I was given the graduate fellowship in Chemistry at Bryn Mawr. We shall draw a curtain quickly over the next year when I taught Chemistry in the high school here at home; I'll scrub floors before I'll teach again. I can't go into all the joys of the summers, some in New York, others on the sea coast from Massachusetts to Georgia, always happy and varied. My father's health failed and I gave up salaried work—and plunged into war work. I taught illiterate soldiers at six each morning, had breakfast at camp, and then to the Red Cross office for Home Service interviews all day, and canteen calls at night. After my father's death, mother and I packed up and went to New York for a change of scene. I had a three months' residence requirement to fulfill before getting my M.A., but before I matriculated at Columbia, I accepted a position with the Fleischmann Yeast Company at Peekskill, New York, in the research department of the laboratory. Five years ago, I came home and was married in Margaret's veil and from her home. She, of course, was matron of honor. Dr. Anderson performed the ceremony with Mr. Scott as a groomsman, and Mary Ellen Harvey as one of the bridesmaids. We built a little home the first year we were married and I immediately became a most ardent devotee of a garden. I can experiment no longer with test tubes, and retorts, but can try out all sorts of theories of propagation and plant breeding. My other hobby has been my girl scout work. Five years ago, Mary Burnett, '20, and I started in with a group of sixteen girls. Today there are nearly four hundred in the city, but I still have my original group. Besides the scouts, there is a world of club, civic and church work to fill every crevice of my time. Arch and I have found time for some wonderful trips. We have been to New England twice, eastern Canada, the Pacific coast, and to the Canadian Rockies. Everywhere I found Agnes Scott without "D. G." and "Arm," or with the many broadening changes. I love it just as I left it, when we could slip down the back stairs and steal ice cream, or pour out our troubles to Miss McKinney in the White House.

MARION (BLACK) CANTELOU.

Secretary's note: A son, Lamar Black, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Cantelou on Sept. 29th, 1925.

1018 Main Street, Evanston, Ill.
The year after I left college was spent at home, in Augusta, Ga. Then came the war. I was asked to help in the public health work as an inspector for the Red Cross Sanitary District, and went forth to battle with dirt, and unsanitary conditions in the eating places which were frequented by our soldiers. In October, 1917, the honorable James Noble Shryock arrived on the scene, I feel as though I owe Jimmie to Agnes Scott influence, for it was through a letter of introduction from Miss Markley that I really met him, so you see how Agnes Scott has shaped my destiny. Much to Jimmie's disgust, he did not get overseas, but like many others, fought the war in Georgia. Within a year we were engaged. After the war ended, the government closed its work around the camps and by spring after the war our sanitary work was closed. The summer of 1919 was an exciting one, for I made my first trip north and visited Jimmie's mother at her summer home on Long Island Sound. Jimmie had gone to Chicago the first of 1919 to learn the newspaper business. We were married on February 5, 1920, and at present are living in Evanston, twenty minutes by train from Chicago. Jimmie is business manager of "The Chicago Daily News," a conservative evening paper, publishing six days a week. Chicago is a nice stopping-off place, so whoever journeys this way, remember that the Shryocks welcome all friends.

MARTHA E. (BRENNER) SHRYOCK.

1638 Park Street, Jacksonville, Florida.
After commencement in 1915, I lived for a year with an aunt in Connecticut. For the sake of occupation I assisted in the summer kindergarten in the foreign quarter of New Haven. From the fall, 1915, until June, 1919, I was head of the Freshman history department in Ansonia High School, Ansonia, Conn. Meanwhile, I taught Sunday school, conducted a young girls' club, sang in the church choir, conducted two weekly Red Cross classes, was vice-president and later secretary and treasurer of the choir guild and an active worker of the altar guild of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Shelton, Conn. I took part also for two years in the Ansonia Choral Club, which formed part of the chorus of the Yale pageant. After my first year north, my family moved to Connecticut for mother's health. So along with everything else, I was housekeeper for mother and dad until after the war. How I enjoyed those busy years! But I must have used up all my surplus energy for after my second attack of flu in the spring of 1919, I had to take an enforced rest until my marriage. Except for doing church work and occasional "subbing" and going as councillor in the summer of 1920 to Camp Greystone, then in Greenville, Tenn., I did very little. In January, 1921, I married Joseph H. Ross, graduate and Phi Beta Kappa of the University of Georgia and also graduate of Harvard Law School. Since our marriage I have spent my time getting adjusted to new communities. While we were in Atlanta in 1921 and 1922, I was active in the Atlanta Agnes Scott Club, serving as its treasurer one year. While we were in Savannah, 1923, until April, 1924, I helped in the Christ's Church Colonial lunch room once a week, substituted in the church kindergarten on Sundays and was assistant at the regular mid-week session. In the year that we have been in Jacksonville I have done nothing except acquire a son, Robert Briesenick Ross, and struggle back to health again. By next fall, I hope to be able to become interested in things beyond the family circle—in church work and in that of the Agnes Scott Club which has recently been formed here in Jacksonville. My husband is a lawyer engaged in the active practice of law.

GERTRUDE (BRIESNICK) ROSS

306 Avery Street, Decatur, Ga. The year after my graduation was spent within the beloved halls of Agnes Scott as a fellow in Latin and History. I studied some also in the department of Education. The following year I went to Montgomery to teach in the Lanier High School, where for three and one-half years I strove diligently to instill into the minds of young hopefuls an appreciation for the Latin Miss Smith had taught me so faithfully. After teaching a while, I decided it was time to fulfill Mary Helen's prophecy for me, namely, that "true to Agnes Scott, I should bear the Scott name." So Milton and I were married in March, 1920, nearly a year after his return from France. In this it is not enough to say "and they lived happily ever after," for that would leave out two of our greatest joys—Annie Bryan Scott and Betty Pope Scott. With the exception of trips to Florida in the winter and to the mountains in the summer, most of my time since marriage has been spent in our little home in Decatur. At present, I am chairman of the Alumnae House and Tea Room committee, which work keeps me in rather close touch with people at the college. In church organizations, my interest has been chiefly in the Sunday school, and the Woman's Auxiliary in the Presbyterian Church. (Yes, I was a Methodist before I married). We have a Fine Arts Club in Decatur now, of which I have been active as treasurer for the past six months.

ANNIE POPE (BRYAN) SCOTT.

Elizabeth Bulgin is now Mrs. Gilbert A. Hamilton, McGregor Heights, Fort Myers, Florida. She has a little daughter, Margaret Adelaide, born last July.

Sallie Carrere is now Mrs. J. S. Bussy, Jr., 2666 Henry Street, Augusta, Ga.

138 Henderson Ave., Athens, Ga. The years between 1915 and 1925 have been very happy ones for me, for they have brought me a wonderful husband, two babies and a home.

RUTH (COFER) WHELCHER.

Jessie Ham is at 2319 11th Ave., Birmingham, Alabama.

Mary Evelyn Hamilton is at 1328 Lady Street, Columbia, S. C.

914 Government St., Mobile, Ala. Studying and teaching is the briefest possible record of those ten years, 1915-1925. I taught in Mobile during 1916-17 at the Baker Graded School, a prep school for girls. During the summer of 1916 I studied at Moody Institute in Chicago and during the summer of 1917 taught freshman Bible class at the Y. W. C. A. student conference at Blue Ridge, N. C. Then came the war, and work in the Mobile Y. W. C. A. as general secretary for a time, and later Y. W. C. A. work throughout the state of Alabama. Then I taught four years in the University Military School for Boys. During all this time I have had a Sunday school class which now numbers forty senior girls. For the past few years I have been director of Young Peoples activities in the Government Street Presbyterian Church, Mobile. For my own delectation, I have acquired a grand piano, studied the pipe organ, and belong to the Shakespeare club and the Music Study club. I recently resigned my position at the church because I am planning to marry Will Durant on June 10th. Here begins the second chapter, which I shall take pleasure in narrating when we meet again in 1930.

GRACE ESTHER HARRIS.

Winter Garden, Florida. My history seems to be Vick history from the start, and when you add two little Vicks you can almost picture the other years. When Ned was only eight months old the fire swept away everything we owned—including ourselves. Instead of coming back to reunion that year, 1920, as I had planned to do, I stayed in bed for months. Now that the boys are older (John is almost eight and Ned six) I've about gotten over my nerves and have decided life is very much worth living. If the Florida boom only pans out, everything will be fine, and I'll be at every reunion.

MARY (HYER) VICK.

Mary Frances Kell is now Mrs. E. O. Munson, Pascagoula, Miss.

175 Stafford Ave., Barnesville, Ga. Since that day in May, 1915, when I went out loud in chapel as we sang "God Be With You," my path has been in pleasant places and I have been almost as carefree as during college days. The summer of 1915 was spent as so many previous ones, in a round of visits, house-parties, etc. I was an attendant in Maud Lott's wedding that June and later visited Martha Brenner. I was on the go constantly that winter, supposedly being at home with nothing to do. I taught sixth grade in Monticello the term of 1916-17, and English and French in Forsyth the term of 1917-18. The nearness to Barnesville and Emmett proved fatal to me, and we were married that fall. That summer I had a lovely visit with relatives in Kentucky and later a trip to Cincinnati, Detroit, Toronto, Niagara, Montreal, Ottawa, Quebec, Lakes Champlain and George, New York, and Washington. There was one shadow to mar the happiness of my wedding. Just ten days before, my sister died, after only a week's illness of influenza. Our plans were changed, and we had a quiet home wedding instead of a church affair, and went to Florida by motor for our honeymoon. We began housekeeping in the fall of 1919 in our own home after boarding a year with Mary Anderson's parents. Emmett and Mr. Anderson were at that time in the drug business together. The summer of 1920 I had a wonderful trip west, going the Canadian route and returning from California by Yellowstone and Colorado. I stopped by Arkansas for a visit with Mable Meek Derby, who was a bride at that time. I have always had the "going fever" and matrimony has not seemed to stop me. The summer of 1923 Martha Kelly and I were in a party of six and toured Europe for three months. We went the regular beaten path of the tourist, visiting England, France, Italy, Switzerland, Germany, Holland and Belgium. I have never failed to be at every reunion our class has had, first, third, fifth and tenth. Now as to what I do everyday besides keeping house: I teach the students' class at Sunday school, am publicity agent of the Missionary Society, parliamentary member of the Woman's Club and vice-president of the Arts Club.

MARY (KELLY) COLEMAN.

417 W. 120th St. New York City.

No doubt all I have to tell of the last ten years will seem very tame compared with the thrills and joys of married life, yet I've had some rather interesting times too. This year at Columbia University has been quite refreshing after the humdrum life of teaching. I've done many nice things and have met quite a few interesting people. This week-end after examinations are over I expect to go with a friend to Boston for a few days.

SALLIE MAY KING.

McDonough, Georgia.

After finishing Agnes Scott I obtained a position to teach English and history in the high school in McDonough. I met Hugh Turner on the fifth of September, and we were married the sixth of September, 1916. We built a bungalow immediately and began housekeeping in January. Hugh, Jr., put in his appearance on May 29, 1917, and Augusta Morrill on March 5, 1921. As soon as I came here I was made a teacher in the Sunday school and an officer in various organizations. I am now a trustee of the local school, elected by the people to serve until March, 1926. I am also a trustee of the Sixth District A. and M. School, appointed by the Governor for a six-year term, expiring in 1928 (the term, not me). I give most of my time and attention to my children. My little boy completed the second grade this year, making A grade in every subject. Neither of the children has red hair and both look like their father.

HENRIETTA (LAMB DIN) TURNER.

Secretary's note: Henrietta has moved to Atlanta. Her address is Apt. 1, 233 E. 10th St. Lula G. Maddox is at 6701 3rd Ave., S., Birmingham, Ala.

920 Mill St., Salem, Oregon. Most of my life since leaving Agnes Scott has been spent teaching and I truly love the work and the boys and girls I worked with. The first two years I was in Strasburg, Va., teaching Latin. From 1917 to 1922 my work was either Latin or science, in Florida. The last year of teaching Latin was spent in Harrisonburg, Virginia. On February 22, 1923, I was married to Mr. L. G. Bulgin, of Salem, Oregon. On January 19 of the next year my baby, Lawrence Gould, Jr., was born and died two days later. Since the first of this year I have been in a sanatorium for tuberculosis. I am much improved and well enough to take some interest in sanatorium life. It is not as dreadful as might be expected, although home is vastly preferable. MILDRED (McGUIRE) BULGIN.

Lucy Jordan Naive is teaching at Queen's College, Charlotte, N. C.

12 Avery Drive, Atlanta, Ga. I have spent the ten years since 1915 at Girls High school, right here in Atlanta, teaching English. Besides the teaching, I have been to New York, to Chicago and to camp in Wisconsin. I have had two permanents. I own a Ford. I am still single and am likely to stay in that condition. I enjoy good health and have picked up about twelve or fifteen pounds in the last few years. CATHERINE PARKER.

403 Sycamore St., Decatur, Ga. For the past ten years teaching Latin has been the task that has filled my waking hours—and for the most part my sleeping hours as well. I have spent the time near home, though have taught in different portions of the state. One year I decided I did not care to teach Latin any longer, so stopped and took a business course, but soon came back to my first love. The past four years I have spent in Decatur, three of them as teacher in Decatur High School. This year I am at home devoting my entire time to coaching work and private teaching. GRACE REID.

Kate Lumpkin Richardson is now Mrs. John J. Wicker, Jr. She lives at 1207 Confederate Ave., Richmond, Va.

627 Piedmont Ave., Atlanta, Ga. After that most wonderful commencement, I went dutifully home to show the old home town what a college woman could do for the community. I participated in all things social and civic with this end in view. It chanced to fall my lot to substitute in a prep school for two weeks. Here began and ended my teaching career. I saw that as a teacher I'd be a better anything else. In due course of time, meaning the following year, I was married to one Ben Head and I have been married to him ever since. I lead a most delightfully proper kind of life with the usual club, church and bridge-playing activities combined. Some of the girls were astonished to hear that I have joined the Presbyterian church, but you know an Episcopal "pillar" fits in anywhere. Fate and fortune have dealt kindly with me, except last summer in the long illness and death of my father. I have been very much enthused over planning and building our new house and now when I have everything fixed just as I want it, Ben is being overtaken by that prevailing malady, the Florida fever. More than likely we'll soon join the rest of Atlanta in Miami. But speaking of the house, it was doubly interesting fixing it as I have been taking several courses in interior decorating. As to my family, my "little boy," son, had a birthday last week. I had a party for him and he invited all his little friends; he had thirty-one candles on his cake!

MARY HELEN (SCHNEIDER) HEAD.

Mary Helen is now living at 527 S. W. 7th Court, Miami, Florida.

1801 Beach Drive, South, St. Petersburg, Fla. Since I have accomplished nothing matrimonially, I suppose I am expected to have accomplished something educationally. Educationally then, I spent a year at Columbia, 1917-18, and received my M. A. in Biology. I taught one year before going and then four years at Tubman High, in Augusta, Ga. After that I studied one summer at Columbia, traveled in Europe the summer of 1922, and came home to spend the winter with my mother and father. I have been teaching here now for two years and have decided that St. Petersburg is a fine place to stay, especially when it is home. Last summer I traveled out west and spent six weeks at the University of California. Yes, I love to teach and I am quite fond of traveling. I also went to Cuba one winter. I enjoy my work in the college club, a branch of the A. A. U. W. I was interested in organizing the branch in Augusta and was a president almost two years there. I was president of the St. Petersburg club its first year and have recently been re-elected for the coming year. It was also my good fortune to attend the meetings of the International Federation of University Women, being held in Paris the summer I was there. FRANCES LOUISE WEST.

160 Lullwater Road, Atlanta, Georgia. The winter of 1915-16 I was back at Agnes Scott as a fellow in the chemistry department. Most of the next summer was spent in the Adirondacks, and the following winter in South Georgia and Florida, visiting. In February, 1917 we came to Atlanta to live. During that year I made several trips, but the most memorable one was to Chattanooga in August to visit Frances Thatcher, whom most of you probably remember at Agnes Scott. While there I met her cousin, Samuel Eugene Thatcher, and in April, 1918 we were married. In July, 1918, Gene enlisted in the Marine Corps, and was sent to Paris Island, S. C., for training. After a few weeks I went to Buford, S. C. to be near him. Each day I made the eleven-mile trip back and forth, partly by automobile, partly by boat, and partly on foot, leaving at 9 a. m. and returning at 11 p. m. Some days I was lucky and saw Gene for an hour or two, and some nights I returned to the hotel without having had even a glimpse of him after an all-day wait. In October he was transferred to Quantico, Virginia, and I followed him there. While there, Gene had influenza and was desperately ill. Fortunately circumstances worked so that I was able to nurse him in the tiny piano-box of a room, the only place I could find to live. For days and nights I did not take off my clothes. There was no time to rest, for he was unconscious, and besides watching him, I had to prepare all his nourishment on a small oil stove, and do all his washing, the water for which had to be brought in buckets from a well nearly a block away. Five days after he was up for the first time, his regiment was ordered to France, and he left with them, when he was so weak that he could hardly walk with his pack. Perhaps there are some of you who went through the experience of having your husbands go to war. If you have, you know what real suffering is. After Gene's departure I returned to Atlanta to be with my mother, and while the influenza epidemic was at its worst, to do volunteer nursing with the Red Cross here. Gene was in France from October, 1918, until June, 1919. After his discharge from the Marine Corps in July, we took a second honeymoon trip to North Carolina and then went to Cincinnati to live. The three years in Cincinnati were very happy ones, but I grew very homesick for Atlanta, so

Gene gave up his business there and we moved to Atlanta in March, 1922. We lived with my mother until our own home was completed in October. We have had an awfully good time since we have lived here; have enjoyed our home and friends, and have traveled some, spending parts of two winters in Florida. I have tried too, to help dear old Agnes Scott a little, working in the Atlanta Club and in the general alumnae association in connection with the House and Tea Room committee, and with the Entertainment committee. In June, 1925, our happiness and our home were made complete by the arrival of Samuel Eugene Thatcher, Jr., the most wonderful baby ever. Dear girls of 1915, whenever you come back to visit the college, there is always a welcome awaiting you, not only at the Alumnae House, but in our home. Even though I've grown so fat you may not recognize me when you arrive, I am, as ever, the same old

MARY (WEST) THATCHER.

1916—Secretary—Louise Hutcheson, 1841 Pendleton Avenue, Kansas City, Mo.

After reading the account of the good time the 1915 class had at their tenth year reunion, the class of '16 can hardly wait to get back and swap yarns about the many things they have been doing since May, 1916. As many of '16 as can possibly manage it are planning to come back to the college for commencement, but the class secretary is now from Missouri, and you know what that means! Get in touch with her right away and begin the process of showing her that you are not only going to be here, but to be here umpt-teen strong, armed with the determination to win that attendance cup!

Margaret Phythian drove down to Fort Valley, Ga., during the peach season to see the orchards in bloom.

Hallie (Smith) Walker, ex '16, has moved to Crescent Avenue, Charlotte, N. C.

Mary Vee Strickland, ex '16, is Mrs. Cosby Swanson, Cherokee Road, Atlanta. Dr. Swanson is a prominent skin specialist.

Elizabeth Walker, ex '16, is Mrs. Allan A. Hunter, of Peking, China. She has been in China for the past year with her husband, who was sent there as a representative of the "Youth Movement." In June they will return to this country and will go to New York. Any mail sent to 2642 VanBuren Place, Los Angeles, Calif., will reach them on landing.

Lost: Leila Johnson, now Mrs. L. P. Moore; Claudia Lowenheim, ex '16; Mary Treadwell, ex '16.

1917—Secretary—Laurie (Caldwell) Tucker (Mrs. J. H.), R. F. D., 5, Box 1055, Tampa, Florida.

Anne Graham Kyle has been visiting Regina Pinkston in Greenville, Ga., and together they came up and paid the college a visit. Although it poured rain the whole time of their visit, and they had to navigate from one building to another in swimming suits, they "did" the campus thoroughly, and showed the proper amount of enthusiasm over the Alumnae House and the new gym. Anne visited Birmingham also on her trip south or perhaps since Anne lives in Virginia, we should say "farther south" and saw Vallie Young (White) Archibald, and Annie (Lee) Barker. In Corinth, Miss., she visited Priscilla (Nelson) King, and Spot Payne in Athens, Ga. Ruth Nisbet, formerly Mrs. Ward Morehouse, Jr., is now Mrs. Sanford Jarrell, of Stuart, Fla. New address: May Smith, 6054 Ingleside Ave., Chicago.

Edna Cohen, ex '17, is a feature writer for the Montgomery Advertiser, a daily paper. She lives at 119 Holcombe St., Montgomery, Ala.

Sarah Conyers, ex '17, new address: Augusta Road, Greenville, S. C.

Lilly Currell, ex '17, is Mrs. Frank Simrill, York, S. C. She has two children.

Ethel Pharr, ex '17, is teaching at the North Avenue Presbyterian School, in Atlanta.

Maude Shute, ex '17, is Mrs. Claude B. Squires, Providence Road, Charlotte, N. C.

Lost ex members of '17: Lucy Caldwell, Effie Wrenn Doe, now Mrs. W. M. Huber; Lena Louise Dyer; Jessie Eames; Elsie Hendley; Mary McIver, now Mrs. Edmund Clarke Luster, of Miami (street address unknown).

1918—Secretary, Margaret Leyburn, 653 Peachtree St., Atlanta.

Emma (Jones) Harwell points proudly to the "Born To" column, since it announces the arrival of her young son.

Annie White Marshall is teaching at the Loulie Compton Seminary in Birmingham, Ala.

Fan (Oliver) Pitman has moved to 404 E. Ponce de Leon Ave., Decatur, Ga. Her husband is a physician.

Claude Polk Dunson, ex '18, is Mrs. Eugene Dunaway, of LaGrange, Ga.

Catherine Montgomery, ex '18, is Mrs. Adrian Williamson, of Monticello, Ark.

New address: Miriam (Reynolds) Towers, ex '18: 2015 Park Ave., Richmond, Va.

Martha Grace Young, ex '18, after leaving Agnes Scott, took her A.B. degree at the University of Wisconsin in 1919. She is now Mrs. Frederick Wm. Peel, 462 Nona Ave., Dearborn, Michigan.

Lost alumnae: Leucia Reynolds Butler, ex '18; Elizabeth Miller, now Mrs. J. B. Shaw, ex '18; Marie Shippen, ex '18; Beatrice Williams, ex '18; Amelia Worthington, ex '18.

Ex '18—Effie Boyd Brewer visited in Savannah in the early spring. She does playground work in Augusta, Ga.

Died—Elizabeth (Denman) Hammond, April 17, 1926.

Although we knew that Elizabeth had been very ill for some months, the sad news of her death comes as a shock to many of us. She was taken ill last August while visiting her grandparents in Nicholasville, Kentucky, and through the months that followed, failed to show satisfactory response to medical treatment. Her death occurred early Saturday morning, April 17, at the Davis-Fischer sanitarium in Atlanta, following the operation which was resorted to in a final effort to save her life.

While at Agnes Scott, Elizabeth made a splendid scholastic record, being graduated with honors in the class of '18, and was one of the most popular and beloved members of the student body. Besides being a member of Gamma Tau Alpha, she took an active part in the community life of the College, belonging to both Blackfriars and B. O. Z. She was also a member of the Bulldog social club.

After her graduation and marriage, Elizabeth continued to be a valued member of her community. She took an active interest in church work, being superintendent of the beginners' department and superintendent of the Cradle Roll of the North Avenue Presbyterian church in Atlanta at the time of her death. To all with whom she came in contact she imparted much of the inspiration of her life and was beloved by a wide circle of friends who will hear of her death with deepest sorrow.

In addition to her husband, P. W. Hammond, she is survived by her Mother, Mrs. George B. Denman, and three children, Elizabeth Penn, Thomas Taylor, and George Denman Hammond.

1919—Secretary, Almada Hutcheson, 4122 Rawlins St., Dallas, Texas.

Elizabeth (Richardson) Callaway's new baby says that if we wait much longer to announce his arrival, he will be able to walk into the office and sit down at the typewriter and write it out himself. We humbly ask young Master Callaway's pardon for the oversight—honestly, we didn't know a thing about him, or we would have put it in sooner. He is now seven months old and weighs twenty-five pounds. (To the alumnae who are mothers, that statement will probably bring forth many "oh's" and "did you ever's"; to the school teachers and Y. W. C. A. secretaries a baby who weighs twenty-five pounds means—simply a baby who weighs twenty-five pounds!) Elizabeth's son is named Edgar Allan for his paternal grandfather, and is called Allan. He has large brown eyes and a cunning dimple and is altogether a very attractive youngster. He is Elizabeth's second child. The first, Adolphus Sanford, is now four years old, and the two of them keep her very busy.

New address: Sue Ethel Rea: College Apts., Charlotte, N. C.

Llewellyn Wilburn is coming back to Agnes Scott next year as head of the physical education department, during Miss Randolph's leave of absence.

The combination of spring fever and wanderlust proved too strong for Pete Hutcheson. When March 1st came Atlanta couldn't hold her, so she journeyed out to Dallas, Texas to help Allyn-Bacon Publishing Co. open up their new office. Pete is living at 4122 Rawlins St. She will return to Atlanta in June.

Rheba Barnard, ex '19, is credit manager for Gilmer's Inc., in Asheville, N. C.

Martha Elizabeth Lawrence, ex '19, is Director of the Third District in the Georgia federation of music clubs, with headquarters in Cordele, Ga. At present she is recuperating from a nervous breakdown.

Annie (Silverman) Levey, ex '19—change of address: 317 E. 8th St., Atlanta.

Nellie Kate Stephenson, ex '19, is now Mrs. H. W. Gee, Tampa, Fla.

Girls who started out with the class of '19 and whose present addresses are missing from the Alumnae office: Lenoir Gravelly Lewis; Verna McKee, now Mrs. Edmund A. Corby; Frances Thomas, graduated; Erma Rebecca Timmons, 1920—Secretary, Mary (Burnett) Thorington, (Mrs. W. L.), Taft, Texas.

Margaret Bland is the author of "The Darned Dress," one of the one-act plays which were given with success by the Blackfriars in the college auditorium on Feb. 20th, and later on March 27th in Charlotte, N. C. The Charlotte Agnes Scott club and the University Women's club, sponsors for the plays in Charlotte, realized over three hundred dollars from the sale of seats for these plays. On April 13th the plays were given again in the Woman's Club auditorium in Atlanta.

Clara Cole is still at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She is librarian in the Library Extension Department.

Alice Cooper has returned to her home in Atlanta after spending the winter studying in New York.

Ruth (Crowell) Choate has moved to Asheville, N. C.

Romola Davis is selling real estate in Clearwater, Fla. She went to Clearwater to teach school, and took up selling on the side, but she was so successful at it, and Florida real estate was on such a boom, that she gave up her school and went into it as an all-time job. She is with the firm of Davis and Butts.

Emilie Keys has moved to 100 Vallette Way, West Palm Beach, Fla. She writes that she is still working with the Palm Beach Post, doing sob sister stories for them.

Margaret McConnell's address is Box 1145, Asheville, N. C. The announcement that she was to teach at the Normal School in Atlanta was an error.

Ex '20, Louise (May) Mell is visiting in Florida. She has a daughter two years old named Mary Anne.

Having announced with a flourish of trumpets in the last issue of the Quarterly the arrival of Marguerite (Davis) Velte's new daughter on January 11th, the editors beg to announce in this issue that she wasn't a daughter at all, but that he was a son. The editors are duly apologetic for the error, and solemnly assure the gentle readers that this announcement is authentic, and that they need not look for an item in the next issue to the effect that they were twins. Master Velte has been named John Davis Mowbray Velte, and his hair is a beautiful red.

Beverline Adams, ex '20, is now Mrs. George Cochran. She still lives in Covington, Ga.

Elise Hay Currell, ex '20, new address: 810 Sumter St., Columbia, S. C.

Frances Elizabeth (Cooper) Mickle has moved to Sunset Drive, Anniston, Ala.

Catherine Cameron Reed, ex '20, is Mrs. C. W. Rothe, 111 Linton Ave., Natchez, Miss.

Alberta Russell, ex '20, is Mrs. Chas. M. Smelker, Beaumont, Texas.

Frances Simpson, ex '20, who has been listed as a "Lost Alumna" and frantically searched for all over the country and Canada, has been living within "hollering distance" of the campus all the time! She is at 115 S. Church St., Decatur, Ga.

Maggie Phillips Trawick, ex '20, is Mrs. F. E. Aiken, Jr., Hotel Hampton, Hampton Springs, Fla.

Dorothy Caldwell Walker, ex '20, is Mrs. J. C. Burress, 3336 San Marino, Los Angeles, Calif.

Frances Simpson is found, but 1920 still has several members and ex-members who are not accounted for. Any information as to the addresses of the following girls will be appreciated at the alumnae office: Mrs. Dorothy Wilhelm Boyd; Nell Gene Caldwell; Pauline Van Pelt, now Mrs. B. W. Claunch.

1921—Secretary, Charlotte Markley, Miss Fine's School, Princeton, N. J.

Charlotte (Bell) Linton has a new boy, Hugh McIntyre, born February 22nd. This makes the third son. Charlotte says that even though her children aren't the kind that will come to Agnes Scott, she is proving her loyalty to the college by having one born on Founders Day.

Thelma Brown teaches in the Spring Street Grammar School in Atlanta.

Marion Cawthon is teaching English in the High School in St. Augustine, Fla.

Eleanor Carpenter will play in the concert to be given by the Kentucky Chapter of the National Association of Harpists in Louisville on the second of May. The program is to be broadcast from Louisville.

Mary Robb (Finney) Bass new address: 1613 Jefferson Ave., Ensley, Ala. Her husband is a chemist for the T. C. I. Co.

Eleanor (Gordon) Elliott, with the plans of a new home flitting in her head, writes to the homeless and teaching secretary, "I know of no profession that will bring the gray hairs sooner than teaching."

The Murdock Sykes Equens have moved out to Druid Hills—134 Briarcliff Road. Atlanta. Mrs. Equen was Anne Hart.

Emily (Hutter) Stewart has the most comforting philosophy we've seen in a long time: "I haven't attempted anything brilliant, and I don't intend to." She is living in Rayville, La., and will visit her sister, Caroline (Hutter) Williams, ex '22, in June.

Martha Laing has been visiting in New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

Marian (Lindsay) Noble has evidently taken up traveling as a profession, for in one year of married life she has wandered from Cuba to Lake Louise, and from Mexico to Washington, D. C.

Janef Preston will be back at Agnes Scott as a member of the English faculty next year.

Helen Hall drove down from Winston-Salem to Charlotte, N. C., to the plays given by the Blackfriars there on March 25th, sponsored by the Charlotte Agnes Scott Club and the University Women's Club.

Martha Stansfield will spend the summer in Europe, going over with Miss Harn and Miss Lewis.

Marie (Bennett) Lane's Miami address: 2158 S. W. 15th St.

New address: Sarah Elizabeth Cragwell, ex '21, 49 Ziegler Tract, Penn's Grove, New Jersey.

Alethea Pinkston (ex '21), taught music until this winter, when she decided to enter the business world. She is taking a business course.

Isabel Pope is at 605 W. 115th St., New York City.

Amy Twitty is teaching at her home, in Pelham, Ga., and studying piano and voice. She expects to get back for commencement.

Margaret Roach, ex '21, is Mrs. C. M. Chreitzberg, Moscow,—no not Russia, but Tennessee.
Edith (Shive) Parker, ex '21, new address: 1346 Magnolia Ave., Norfolk, Va.

Frances Dearing is now Mrs. San Burney Hay. Her husband is the Presbyterian preacher in Covington, Ga. They have a little girl, Burney, almost a year old.

Allie Louise Travis, ex '21, has been supplying in the high school in Covington, Ga., teaching French and history.

Lost: Carrie Lou Born, ex '21; Annie Dow Wurm, now Mrs. Wm. W. Moore, ex '21, 1922—Secretary, Julia Jameson, 1046 West End Ave., Franklin, Tenn.

Jeannette Archer received her diploma as graduate nurse from the Presbyterian Hospital in New York in February. She is now in Montreal, N. C., with Dr. and Mrs. Archer.

Sarah Clarkson, aged nine months says that a baby with a college woman for a mother leads a very strenuous life. Sarah's mother, Cama (Burgess) Clarkson, takes such an active interest in church and club work in Charlotte that Sarah has almost as hard a time keeping up with her as James James Morrison Morrison Weatherby George Dupree had with his.

Edith (Davis) Croley has moved from Atlanta to 3544 Haynie Avenue, Dallas, Texas.

1922 seems to be a peripatetic class. Catherine (Dennington) Jervey has shown her class spirit by moving from Georgia to 123 Washington St., Hartford, Conn.

Mary Knight visited Margaret Powell in Little Rock, Ark., during March, and was one of the attendants in Margaret's wedding on March 30th.

Roberta (Love) Brower drove from Winston-Salem to Charlotte, N. C., for the plays put on recently there by the Blackfriars.

Ruth Pirkle was given her Masters degree by Emory University on Monday, March 22nd. During spring holidays "Miss Pickle" entertained a group of the young instructors from the college at a house-party at Cumming. This summer, she will assist Mr. Johnson in conducting a party through the western states.

Ruth Seandrett is planning to study at the University of Wisconsin next winter.

Laurie Belle Stubbs is teaching at Dalton, Ga. The class of '22 sympathizes with Laurie Belle in the death of her mother in April.

1922 has been out of college less than three years, and already over a third of our number have declared in favor of wedded bliss. What has happened to all the theories that nobody wants to marry a college woman?

Elizabeth Wilson writes that she "is sailing in May for a European gesture. Having never sailed before I am rather proud of it, but when the 21st person says "On my fourth trip over—" I shall probably realize that I am not living in Columbian times. I expect to have a glorious time as I am visiting the U. S. navy anchored off England and France for a month, and as our nation's officers have nothing to do but dress up and give parties, I am hoping for a good month. Then I am visiting friends in Paris, and thence to southern France, Italy, Switzerland, and Belgium, where, alas! I have no friends to visit."

Kathleen Belcher, ex '22, has followed the real estate boom to Florida. Her address is Box 892, West Palm Beach, Fla.

Lois Drake, ex '22, is teaching in Danville, Ky.
Nell Esslinger, ex '22, visited at the Alumnae House during March.

Helen (Hill) Brownell, ex '22, has a young son 19 months old. They have moved just outside of Tampa in the subdivision Memorial Villa. Her address is Route 4, Box 388.

Evelyn Lovett, ex '22, has a studio in Atlanta and teaches dancing and expression. She was a bridesmaid in Louise Pappenheimer's wedding in March.

Lucile Lyon, ex '22, is Mrs. Rae Crowe, Haig, Ala.

Eunice (Dean) Major came down from Anderson, S. C., to meet Mary White Caldwell, ex '23, at the Alumnae House in April.

Westward Ho! Ruth Pirkle is assisting Mr. Johnson in conducting a party of Agnes Scott students, faculty, alumnae and friends on a four weeks' trip through the golden West, California and the Canadian Rockies this summer. They are to leave Atlanta about June 2nd and return June 30th. Mr. Johnson has planned a most comprehensive tour, including Kansas City, Denver, Colorado Springs, Salt Lake City, Riverside, Los Angeles, Hollywood, Pasadena, San Francisco, Oakland, Berkeley, Portland, Seattle, Victoria, Vancouver, Winnipeg, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Chicago. There will be all day side trips to Pike's Peak, Garden of the Gods, Catalina Island, Columbia River Highway and the boat trip from Seattle to Vancouver. The trip is very reasonably priced, $275 covering every expense except meals. Ruth asks that anyone interested in joining the party get in touch with her or with Mr. Johnson.

1923—Secretary, Emily Guille, 3400 Brook Road, Richmond, Va.

Dorothy Bowron will be the matron of honor in Lib Ransom's wedding in June. Lois McClain will be a bridesmaid.

Nannie Campbell continues to shower hospitality upon the Agnes Scotters in Richmond. The Richmond club met Saturday, April 10th, with Nannie.

Thelma (Cook) Turton has changed her address to 1103 Abbey Place, Washington, D. C.

Imogene Allen is teaching in Plymouth, Fla. She will return to Decatur in time for commencement.

Elizabeth Molloy, Dell Bernhardt, '24, and Mary Keesler, '25, have been visiting Charlotte (Keesler) Everett in Rockingham, N. C., during March.

Geraldine Goodroe and Hilda McConnell will study in New York at Columbia this summer. Jerry's father died in the early spring.

Frances Harwell is teaching in a grammar school in Atlanta.

Christine Evans took a prominent character part recently in the famous Georgia Peach Festival, held in Fort Valley every spring.

Eleanor Hyde, ever an enterprising soul, is going to study for six months next winter in Paris, at the Sorbonne.

Beth McClure has accepted a position as Young Peoples Worker with Dr. Vance's church in Nashville for next year. The following year she expects to live in Edinborough, Scotland. Beth visited the college in March.

Elizabeth (Lockhart) Davis has just come home from a six weeks' stay in the hospital with heart trouble. While there, her nine months' old son celebrated his mother's absence by a case of double pneumonia.

Eloise Knight is recovering from the terrible automobile accident which occurred during February, when her little sister, Roberta, was instantly killed, and Eloise, Nancy Lou, ex '27 (another sister), and Emily Winn, ex '03, were all seriously injured.

Eugenia (Pou) Harris, ex '23, has a poly-poly son a year old—the image of Pou.

Ruth Sanders is at 2213 Pierce Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

Lillian (Moore) Rice, ex '23, and her husband are homesteading in Eustis, Florida. They have a lovely cottage on a lake which they call "Palmetto Lodge." Mr. Rice is a salesman for the Frigidaire Company.

Lois McClain has broken her record of never having had a single day's sickness in her life. She was taken with an acute attack of appendicitis on March 21st, brought from Jasper to the Georgia Baptist Hospital in Atlanta on a stretcher, and operated on the next day. Lois is getting on splendidly, and will soon be back at her work in the Bank of Pickens County.

Catherine Shields was maid of honor in the wedding of her brother, Ernest, to Irma Heath, on April 7th, in the Decatur Presbyterian church.

Martha (McIntosh) Nall has moved back to Albany, Ga., from Miami.

Fanibel Adams, ex '23, has moved to Sebring Fla.

Ruth (Bowden) Davis, ex '23, is living at 520 Mulberry Street, Abilene, Texas.

Virginia (Burum) Cumming, ex '23, has a new son. It takes a stretch of the imagination to imagine Virginia a mother with two children. Virginia's first baby was a girl—Virginia Neville Cumming. Mr. Cumming is a lawyer.

Evelyn Cohen, ex '23, is Mrs. Morris Meyer, 408 Elm St., Frederick, Md.

Rebecca Dick, ex '23, author of the famous "Pelanky," is a traveling woman, but she gets her mail at the National Arts Club, 15 Grammercy Park, New York City.

Rosalie Engel, ex '23, is Mrs. Myron S. Green-tree, 263 N. E. 20th St., Miami, Fla.

New address: Mary Malone, ex '23, 213 W. 42nd St., Savannah, Ga.

Parrish (Little) Jette, ex '23, Agnes Scott; '23 Barnard College, is living at 5 Sherman Ave., New York City. Parrish is assistant to Dr. Thorndyke, professor of Psychology at Columbia University.

Margaret (Parker) Turner, ex '23, has moved to 1030 W. Peachtree St., Unit 2, Apt. 83, Atlanta.

Mildred Ryan, ex '23, is a student at the Berlitz School in Chicago. Her address is 7244 Coles Ave.

Mary Goodrich is teaching the sixth grade in one of the Jacksonville, Fla., public schools.

Lucia (Pope) Green, ex '23, has moved back to Decatur, Ga. She is in the Columbus Court Apartments.

Nell Veal, ex '23, is living at 871 W. Peachtree Street, Apt. 409, Atlanta.

Best wishes to those of '24 who are about to take the final step. For a long time we have thought that Frances (Gilliland) Stukes and the elusive Annadawn (Watson) Edwards would be the only ones.

Margaret Powell was married March 30th. She has promised to take good care of the veil and let others—if there will be such—use it. It is a beautiful thing that she bought in Brussels last summer. Margaret says she has already gotten one bid. Margaret will live in Shreveport, La., where her husband is the representative for the Aetna Life Insurance Co.

Margaret Griffin is to be married in the merry month of May. She will live in Birmingham, Ala.

Between getting out an annual and arranging for judges of a triangular debate, Beulah Davidson is spending her time going to the Peach Festival, and taking visitors through the "Tate Marble Mansion" and showing them the marble plant and quarries. Dick Scandrett and Polly Stone spent two week-ends with Beulah and Lois McClain in March.

Barron Hyatt is head of the English department of the Norton, Va., high school.

Frances Myers came over to the states to be in her cousin's wedding in St. Louis, Mo. Since then she has been visiting in Washington, D. C., and New York. Elma Swaney joined her for a week in New York.

Emily Arnold's address is Chi Omega House, Boulder, Colo.

Janice Brown and Mary Green visited the Alumnae House in the early spring.

Edna McMurry is teaching at Buford, Ga., high school. Along with her regular work, she is the coach in the inter-High debating team.

Cora Fraser Morton spent spring holidays at home in Athens, Ga. She is planning to come back to Agnes Scott next year.

Vic Howie is teaching in Union, S. C. She is also singing and playing for the meetings of the Union Kiwanians.

Grace Bargeron is teaching in Langdale, Ga. One of "Miss Bargeron's" last year pupils is going to A. S. C. this year, and is certainly a credit to her teacher.

There are few of you who haven't heard of the four one-act plays written by Miss Nan Stephens' playwriting class and presented three times by the Blackfriars. Polly Stone wrote one of them. She is working now on a three-act play.

Elizabeth Branch, ex '24, is working at the Carnegie Library in Atlanta.

Sarah (Brandon) Rickey was graduated from the Mississippi State College for Women in 1924, but will always hold "Miss Agnes" foremost in her heart, she writes. Her husband is head of the modern language department at Louisiana College, Pineville, La.

Mary Martha Denny, ex '24, is Mrs. Paul Pearce.

Miriam Harrison, ex '24, is in Cleveland, Ga., this winter. It is a little town in the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Corinne Jackson, ex '24, is Mrs. A. B. Wilkerson, Jr., Westwood, Calif. She was married in Reno, Nevada, last August.

Agnes Jackson, ex '24, is teaching music at home in Monticello, Ark. After leaving Agnes Scott, she studied at Bush Conservatory in Chicago.

Lollie Johnson, ex '24, is Mrs. Reginald Maxwell, 2341 McDowell St., Augusta, Ga. Her husband is a dentist, the junior partner of Dr. Henry, Elizabeth Henry's father. Lollie is making quite a reputation for herself as a golfer. In February she was in the semi-finals of the Woman's Invitation Golf Tournament at the Augusta Country Club, playing with Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd.

Lewis (Murchison) Jenkins, ex '24, has moved to 52 Murray Blvd., Charleston, S. C.

Ella Louise Landress, ex '24, has moved from Texas back to her old address in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Virginia Merrin, ex '24, is teaching piano and voice in Plant City, Fla.

Louise (Pappenheimer) Finsterwald, ex '24, Agnes Scott, '24 Vassar, was married in March. She and Mr. Finsterwald spent their honeymoon cruising in the Caribbean.

Mildred (Shelton) Stokes' husband is the Methodist students' pastor in Baton Rouge, where the Louisiana State University is located.

Peyton Stinson, ex '24, is living at 214 E. Jefferson St., Greenwood, Miss. She is managing a little shop called the Polly Anna Dress Shop.

Frances Wooley, ex '24, is Mrs. John L. Farmer, 1653 Fourth Ave., Los Angeles, Calif.

Madre Page Rodgers is the only ex-member of '24 whose address is not known. Surely some of you have kept up with her. Won't you send any information as to her present address to the alumnae office?

Ex '24: Sophie Saunders is teaching physical training in Washington, D. C.

Mary Moberly is teaching at Laurel, Miss.

Ex '24: Ruth (Warner) Stout, is living at Montreat, N. C. She has two children, Cornelia, aged two, and Charles Warner, aged one.

1925—Secretary, Belle Walker, Stillmore, Ga.

Put that other dress and a toothbrush in your hat-box, Girls of '25, and board the train for Decatur, Georgia. They tell me there's going to be a whale of a reunion at the college this year, and there are about eighty-one of us who don't want to miss it. It's been a bit lonesome out in the world all alone, as 'twere, this year, what?

Teaching school, perhaps, in a little town, where you were the only Agnes Scott alumna? but May 22nd is the date for the clan to gather again. Agnes Scott campus is the place, and we are the girls! Anybody who doesn't put in an appearance is going to get talked about!

Elizabeth Blalock is to be a bridesmaid in Carolyn Smith's wedding in May.

Mary Phlegar Brown and Sarah Tate are going to take Horace Greely's advice (with a pinch of salt) and "go west, young woman, go west." They are members of the party conducted by Mr. Lewis Johnson.

After three months of school teaching, Jo Douglas declares in favor of matrimony and announces her engagement.

Louise Buchanan, who has been with the Retail Credit Company in Atlanta this past winter, is to work in Nashville, Tenn., next year. She says that Atlanta is a good town, but that Nashville is home.

Sine Caldwell spent the week-end of April 2nd at the college with Beulah Davidson.

Catherine Carrier was elected president of the newly established Asheville, N. C., Agnes Scott Club.

Isabel Ferguson says that Lou Buchanan is not the only one who has felt the call of home. Izzy is going to help along the real estate boom in Waynesville, N. C., next winter. She presided at the Randolph-Macon vs. Agnes Scott debate at the college in March.

Frances Gardner spent a week-end at home during March. Besides teaching Latin and English, Frances is faculty advisor for the Elkmont, Ala., high school alumni bulletin, gotten up by the students themselves, and giving information about the high school alumni of the past fifteen classes to be graduated.

Louise Hannah is teaching school in Grantville, Ga., filling out Melly Zellars' unexpired term.

Lucile Gause visited the college during April. Elizabeth Griffin is planning a trip to Europe this summer.

Gertrude Henry and Larsen Mattox spent their spring vacation during April at the Alumnae House. They are teaching together in Moultrie, Ga.

The Florida boom must be over, for Tootsie Jones has deserted the state and moved to Atlanta.

Dorothy Keith, Anne McKay and Eugenia Thompson met at the Alumnae House for the debates on March 19th. Dot had been visiting Eugenia in Birmingham, Ala. Anne is to study at Columbia this summer with a group of Macon, Ga., girls, and share an apartment.

Georgia Mae Little's last address is 538 Hope St., Biola Hotel, Los Angeles, Calif. George says the great open spaces are even greater, opener, and spacier than the Zane Grey stories lead you to believe—(and goodness knows they stretch the ordinary imagination!) As to California, George has a bad case of that insidious thing known as "booster fever."

Elizabeth Norfleet, '27, visited Mary Anne McKinney in Nacadoches, Texas, during spring holidays. Lib was prepared for cowboys, lassoes, saw-dust saloons, and Indian raids, but do you know that actually people in Texas know bridge, too? And she found Mac wearing the same kind of clothes in her natural habitat that she wore on the Agnes Scott campus. What has happened to the last frontier anyway, and where can one expect to find it, if not in Texas?

Martha Lin Manly is planning a trip to Europe this summer.

Jo Marbut has deserted the actuarial office of the Southern States Life Insurance Company for the lure of the big Sears-Roebuck catalogue. She is in Chicago receiving her preliminary training now, and when the new plant of the Sears-Roebuck people is opened in Atlanta in the summer, Jo will be transferred back here. Every member of '25 is urged to write immediately for a catalogue and begin planning commencement regalia from its pages. Jo promises personal attention to your order. Woe to anyone who comes back to commencement wearing a Montgomery Ward dress!

Mary Anne McKinney and Virginia Peeler, '26, will study in New York together next year.

Eugenia Perkins is teaching in Midville, Ga., high school. She came down and home with the flu in March.

Lucille Phippen is another living example of the fate of the Agnes Scott student volunteer. It was while on a student volunteer conference in South Carolina that she met Mr. Shingler, to whom she will be married in May.

The Charlotte Agnes Scott Club's various activities are keeping Mary Keesler and Maria Rose busy. They both declare vociferously that the girl who is staying at home without a job is the busiest person in the world.

Carolyn Smith is to be the first alumna ever married in the Alumnae House. Her wedding will take place there on May 28th, three days after commencement. Wendell Whipple is an Emory man, and the wedding party is made up largely of Agnes Scott and Emory alumni.

Frances Tennent has been working on the Endowment fund for the college in Augusta, Ga., this winter. She visited the college in April.

Mary Ben Wright is doing clerical work at Emory University. She lives at home.

Emily Spivey's school closes the middle of May, and she expects to spend the rest of the month at Agnes Scott.

Ruth Owens is coming back for commencement, and then she and her two sisters are going to Massachusetts for the summer.

Ex '25: Squint Sims was a bridesmaid in Frances Lineweaver's wedding in Harrisonburg, Va., during March.

Louise Saunders, ex '25, is running a gift shop in Richmond, Va. She is crazy about her work and is making a success with it.

Bessie (Winston) Williams and her husband drove over from Richmond, Va., to the Easter dances at Washington and Lee. They had a great time attending the Beta Theta Pi. house-party.
